The Administration Building, conveniently located just across from the Gables, is the place that all of the little R. S. V. P. cards come from. One can be hailed there to pay back dues, to be warned of this or that, or just to come over for a friendly little talk. It is there that all of the records are kept and the smoke-ups are sent from. In fact, it is there that one is called to graduate without the benefit of diploma. The deans of the university hold forth there and flag those who are not doing well. The best visit that one ever pays to the Administration Building is to get the rebate from the little blue war suit or to sell his vote to the highest bidder in some kind of an election.

SCHOOL OF MEDICINE

Established at last in its new building, the Medical School is looking toward even greater success than it has already attained.

Above are some details of the bas-relief of the building. On the facing page are pictures of the anatomy lab, the library (filled, incidentally by students of the School of Business Administration and a few Laws), and the faculty and their guests at the cornerstone laying ceremony two years ago.

THE LIBRARY

The Library is the clearing house for the whole campus. The administration stores there among other things, books, an art gallery, and the mathematics department. Fully one third of all persons who go to the library sit in the study rooms and look at books and things. The rest of the regular library visitors spend their time running out for smokes, counting blondes, and doing nothing in general.

Fraternities and sororities make a practice of shipping all of their pledges over to the library to study during the afternoons and nights. The pledges write letters, make new acquaintances, bother other people, and read the latest magazines.

The main hall of the library resembles Grand Central Station on Saturday morning, except that it is a little more noisy. Students gather there by age race and class to kill time as best they can. All of it results in a grand time and no work done.

THE FIELDHOUSE

The university fieldhouse plays host to all parts of the students body. The football team practices there during the late fall and the track and basketball men take it over for the winter.

Freshman and Sophomores visit the Military Department upstairs in the gym to see whether or not they are to major in basic military or get off with the two year's required work.

Rubinoff, Kriesler, Swarthout, and others of national renown give their performances amidst the hanging rings and parallel bars in the upstairs gymnasium.

The intramural department has its office on the second floor of the building and sponsors many events in the gym and in the field-house proper.

The Wolf Line at Registration

Husky athletes, clad in towels or less, charge from one room to another in the fieldhouse, shocking the girl's physical education classes that may be stuck almost anywhere in the building.

Carrie and Ferguson, the university trainers, repair broken athletes in their room in the southwest corner of the fieldhouse.

The famous Indiana army stows its rifles in the basement of the fieldhouse and has its practice range there. One who is not watching his business can charge around a corner quite easily and meet a slug going the other way.

The fieldhouse boils with athletes every afternoon. The missiles that fly at you run all of the way from a ping-pong ball to a sixteen pound shot. Watch your step in the fieldhouse!!!!

WILLIAM LOWE BRYAN

William Lowe Bryan, President Emeritus of Indiana University, lived the first part of his life nearly within sight of the university he was later to head. Doctor Bryan obtained his earliest education in a little country school house just east of Bloomington, after which, he went to Bloomington High School. Upon graduation from high school, young Bryan entered Indiana University. He took an A.B. degree here in 1884 and a master's degree in 1886.

Following this, he studied in several colleges and universities in Europe. Due largely to the influence of these schools, he established a psychology laboratory at Indiana in 1888—the second in America.

While engaged in intensive study of psychology, he discovered the famous "learning curve", a marked advance in the field of human learning. This discovery brought world-wide distinction to Doctor Bryan during the early years of his career as an educator. Aside from his work as the head of a great university, Doctor Bryan participated in the affairs of several prominent national groups. He was president of the American Psychological Association, trustee for the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, and a member of numerous other educational groups of prominence.

President Bryan holds honorary degrees from Illinois College, Hanover College, University of Notre Dame, University of Pittsburg, University of Michigan, and Clark University.

Doctor Bryan's continuous association with Indiana University dates from 1887, when he was made head of the department of psychology and philosophy. From 1893 until 1902, Doctor Bryan served in the capacity of Vice-President of the university. In 1902, he was elected to succeed Dr. Joseph Swain, who resigned to take another post. From that time until his resignation last year, Doctor Bryan acted as the leader of Indiana University.

Indiana had the period of its greatest growth under the thirty-five year reign of President Bryan. His wide, progressive program of administration directly accounts for the growth and progress of Indiana University. A firm belief that all of the interests of the university must be fostered together guided Doctor Bryan in his successful term of presidency. It was his desire that all of the interests of the university grow together—that none should gain at the expense of others. This wisdom on the part of Doctor Bryan during the critical period of the university's growth accounts for its present high position in the field of education. There is here a debt of gratitude which the students and alumni can never repay.

HOMECOMING DECORATIONS

PRESIDENT HERMAN B WELLS

Herman B Wells, Dean of the School of Business Administration, on March 24, 1938, answered the invitation to become the 11th president of Indiana University. The thirty-five year old president is the youngest man ever to assume this position at Indiana University and the 71st I. U. graduate to become president of an institution of higher learning. Wells, who was born June 2, 1902, is said to be the youngest president of a state university in the United States.

President Wells began his educational career in the public schools of Jamestown where he was born. He entered the University of Illinois in 1920, but transferred the following year to Indiana, where he was awarded the B.S. degree in Commerce in 1924 and the Master of Arts degree in Economics in 1927. He continued his graduate work at the University of Wisconsin for practical completion of the doctor's degree.

He was called back to Indiana University as assistant professor of economics in 1930 and served in that capacity till 1933 when he left to work with the state department of financial institutions. He returned here in 1935 to succeed Dr. William A. Rawles as dean of the school of business administration, and when Dr. Bryan resigned in June of last year, the trustees appointed him to serve as acting president.

President Wells' mother and father are both former teachers. His father, Granville Wells, is now vice-president of the Citizens' State Bank of Jamestown. He operates a farm in Boone county, Mr. and Mrs. Wells live in Lebanon.

President Wells, unmarried, lives on North College Avenue, in the old home of Professor Emeritus James A. Woodburn. The house is one of the pioneer dwelling places of Bloomington. Visitors to the home will find it appropriately furnished in cherry and mahogany antiques from Hoosier pioneer homes. Antique rugs, paintings, silverware, and china reflect the culture of the Indiana University bachelor president's home.

ENIORS

Near the close of the first semester the eagerly awaited selection of Senior Class officers was announced. The merit system was again employed, and, as might be expected, secured a group of very capable students for the positions. Or did it?

Committee Chairmen Frank Anderson, James Cathcart, Elizabeth May, Margery Dudley, Philip Rothrock, and Edwin Ham gaze avidly at the contents of a loose leaf notebook. Why?

THERE ARE ALSO 3,871 UNDERGRADUATES IN INDIANA UNIVERSITY

When the third year of college rolls around, many of those who haven't already done so begin to look into the honor situation and snatch a few keys, ribbons, and positions of responsibility. The Junior year is noted for its abundance of honors to bestow on those who have worked in relative oblivion during the first two school years.

Juniors traditionally are polished gentlemen and ladies, have long before cast off the proverbial moisture behind the ears. They also must have rid themselves of the practices and antics which would mark them as frosh or, even worse, as sophomores. They are at the turning point; they have a smile of indulgence for the words and deeds of those below them; they cast short, longing glances at their more dignified superiors, the seniors. But they continue in their good work, and as a result, we find many of the class of '39 in all the activities of the campus.

The Junior Prom of 1938 was in all respects quite as successful as its predecessors. Henry Busse's music was tuneful, the decorations were, in the words of the committee, "exquisite", and the tickets were all sold out. Here we picture the band; Busse; Jeanette Prinz, the comely queen; Chris Savage, Martha Jean Caster, Jim Bob Anderson, Chairman Ted Fleming, and Ruth Smith, the committee; and two scenes of the gayety at last year's function. One of these shows Chairman Bud Ham and Queen Emily Croxton performing a bit of terpsichorean tripping to the music of Isham Jones, who is shown in the background. The other is a view of the 400 couples, trying to convince themselves that their five dollars each was well spent.

Suddenly bereft of the guiding influence bestowed upon them just one year previous, members of the sophomore class, finding themselves "on their own" in the college world, first suffer an attack of sophomoritis, some of the attacks approach really critical stages, lasting throughout the year (and perhaps beyond), while for other members of this worthy class, the malady merely assumes the proportions of a temporary ailment, accompanied by a speedy recovery as the victims become entangled in a whirl of EXTRA-CURRICULAR ACTIVITIES so numerous that there is no remaining time to bark out harsh commands to the frightened frosh.

There are several who go at this activities stuff in such a frenzied fury that at the end of the second year on the campus they are completely burned out, and are content to spend the next two years reflecting on the glory of their past achievements. For others this is merely a beginning, and they work on and on, grasping at some noble goal such as the senior managership of the varsity deck tennis team. Those not interested in activities turn, as a general rule, to thoughts of love, and their gravest problems throughout the year consist in making up their minds whether to be or not to be attached to a ball and chain.

This year's sophomores include several who really aren't half bad, though. The class turned out some who added materially to the athletic prestige of the university in the fields of football, basketball, baseball, track, wrestling, swimming and tennis. Four men of the class—Bob Boughman, Buck Mauck, Walt Smith and Louis Bonsib—were selected to serve on next year's Union Board. Mary Holsinger and Rosemary Treanor will serve on the A.W.S. Council. There are varsity debaters, and staff members of the University Theatre among the sophomore ranks, as well as a large number of aspiring journalists and dramatists, and activity people of various sorts.

THE SOPHOMORES

Freshmen! You see them walking on air the first week, placed on a pedestal while they listen to the exalted histories and glories of the different lodges. Registration is a mere nothing, for there are abundant old-timers to push them through between dissertations on the merits of fraternity life. Enrollment isn't much, either, after they finish listening to all recommendations and decide to draw names out of a hat.

From then on, life for the organized frogs is a vicious circle consisting of paddles, rhinie pods, demerits and blind dates (which often could be classified simply as more demerits). They have numerous opportunities to make the acquaintance of such notable campus personages as librarians, assistant librarians and people who work in the library. But amid all this stress on academic advancement, let it not be thought that their physical development is being neglected. On the contrary, each freshman man, who does not have flat feet is faced with the pleasurable opportunity to drill twice a week, wearing a most striking military uniform. As for the women of the freshman class, they get to don rompers of a beautiful blue hue four times weekly while they dash through various gymnastic contortions.

After and if they survive hell week, usually early in the second semester (after and if they previously have survived the first semester), they are invested with the long-awaited pins, which may come in handy in later years. From then on, there's no holding them down.

Most organizations, as well as a few individual consciences, dictate that freshmen shall participate in activities of some sort, and this year saw some results along this line of which the freshman class may well be proud. The class roll includes some very promising athletes, participators in the fields of drama and debate, even a trace of journalistic talent, and quite a bevy of beauties.

THE 1938 ARBUTUS

Lacking any sort of a theme or motif, the 1938 Arbutus has very little to recommend it. It is, at best, a harum-scarum willy-nilly collection of pictures and copy which tries, in a feeble way, to picture some of the persons, events, and activities which make up Indiana University. The inevitable misspelled names, omitted pictures, and other seemingly inexcusable errors are hereby acknowledged, and our apologies are apprehensively presented. Perhaps next year will be a better year. Or 1940. At some day in the not too distant future we hope the perfect Arbutus will be published. Until then, let us hold faith.

Co-operation from the staff members was unusually good this year. On the day when the staff pictures were taken, the office was literally glutted with sophomore and junior staff members. Some of them really worked for the book, and the others, when chosen to the staff, had good intentions. A few of the sophomores could type, another could spell, and there were even two or three who could draw up a tolerably true dummy sheet.

Let us, then, heave an appreciative sigh or two for those unsung martyrs of the Arbutus staff who strove so diligently for a decent publication, and whose dreams were so bitterly frustrated.

WILSON PRENTICE

The Indianapolis section of this book was prepared by Charles McCormick and John Campbell, Medical and Dental Editors respectively. Business affairs of the Naptown pages were handled by Howard Romack of the medical school and Wilson Prentice of the Dental School. Their co-operation has been complete and their efforts have been appreciated.

Professor J. Wymond French, of the department of journalism, was a valuable faculty advisor to the staff of this book. His help on various problems was deeply appreciated.

SUMMER AND STATE FAIR STUDENT

The Daily Student was published twice a week for those who attended the summer session last year. The paper was made up mostly of state news items and Associated Press stories.

Joe Deupree served as the editor-in-chief and was assisted by Bob Franks, sports editor; Creath Smiley, news editor; Bill Buchanan, afternoon editor; Joan Dinklelaker, administrative reporter; and Earl Hoff, feature writer. The regular reportorial staff was chosen from the summer students by W. J. Wright, faculty advisor for the summer term.

The Daily Student published its State

Fair issue again last year. The copy was written at the Indiana University building on the fair grounds and was sent to Bloomington to be printed. The Student is the only daily paper in the country that is published strictly for a state fair. The State Fair staff consisted of Ed Rose, Tom Buck, Creath Smiley, Kehrt Cochrane, Helen Weatherwax, Miriam Meloy, and Justin Salyards. Rose was editor-in-chief for the issues. Professor J. W. Wright served as faculty advisor. The paper appeared from Monday through Friday during the week of the fair and all of the news contained was about the fair itself.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST COLLEGE DAILY!

The Daily Student was edited by Ed Rose during the first half of the first semester of this year and by Earl Hoff during the second half of the semester. The staff that assisted them was made up of Bill Buchanan, sport's editor; Justin Salyards, campus editor; Nathan Kaplan, city editor; and Kehrt Cochrane, Tom Buck, and Pat Litell, night editors.

The paper followed the same set-up that regular city dailies use. The editorial page was made up of feature articles, columns by specialty writers, and letters from the readers. Regular interviews with professors concerning their particular fields were a part of the Daily Student editorial page during the first semester. Near the end of the semester, the Student came out with a vigorous campaign for a three day study period before finals. The faculty responded by granting a one day period. Another regular feature of the Student during this time was the weekly appeal to the university and student body to effect a better distribution of honors between the organized and unorganized students.

Each Friday issue featured a woman's page, made up of fashion notes, personality sketches, and organization activities. Mary Aldred was in charge of the women's page during the first semester of this year. A church page was run every Friday, and one issue was put out by an all women's staff, in accordance with a student tradition.

The Student was published the second semester by Kehrt Cochrane and Pat Litell, each of whom held the job of editor-in-chief for one half of the semester. Their assisting staff consisted of Rob Williamson, sports editor; John McLeod, city editor; Helen Weatherwax, campus editor; and Ellis Walker, Tom Buck, and Creath Smiley, night editors.

The second semester staff made very few changes in the set-up of the paper. The largest reportorial staff in the history of the paper assisted in gathering news for the editors. The new staff followed the policy of using Associated Press dispatches and grouped the state items in the "News From Home" column.

February twenty-second marked the seventy-first birthday of the Daily Student. The paper first came out as a monthly publication, after which, it became bi-weekly, weekly, semi-weekly, and daily. It has appeared as a daily since 1898,

The Student, after considerable effort, was able to secure free Wasserman tests for all students that desired them. The editorial policy remained much the same during the second semester. After several week's work, the Student staff brought enough pressure to bear on the Union Board to make it call an open meeting of men students. In spite of the interest aroused, there was not a quorum in attendance for business to be carried on.

Loy Baxter and Dan Bretz, Editors, in a
3:00 A. M. Deadline Battle

The Bored Walk, known by the staff as Middle West's Greatest College Comic, has staggered through nine more school issues. It was a good year, and nothing was accomplished. The magazine led with its chin in selecting a Freshman Princess when campus rods were gnashing their collective bicuspid to eliminate all but two queens.

The jokes used were the same as last year's, to acquaint undergraduates with stock collegiate humor. Once in a while a good one slipped in by mistake. The prize boress of the year was something that wasn't there. One entire page was torn from all copies of one issue. It attracted more interest than a bank balance, proving that you can get something from nothing.

Editor-in-chief for the first semester of the year was Loy Baxter; Dan Bretz took over the helm at the beginning of the second term. Co-eds published the April issue. Betty Lou Fraling was acting editor.

The Folio, now in its second year, has assumed all the aspects and qualities of a literary magazine. Since its beginning in April, 1936, each succeeding issue of this quarterly magazine for writers and would-be writers at Indiana has become more noticeable for its increase in volume, variety, and vitality.

This year's staffs of associate editors and contributing editors were under the guidance of Miss Josephine K. Piercy, who was editor-in-chief for the first three issues and Mr. Ralph Collins who acted as editor-in-chief for the last issue. The editors were assisted by a staff of English instructors in the preparation of the issues. Almost all the contributions were by members of the student body. The magazine is published by the English department. Art work is done by the Dauber's Club.

New to the campus this year was Indiana in Portrait, a handsome pictorial calendar for 1938, published by Hugh Dillin. The calendar contained beautiful views of the campus and a calendar of University events in addition to the features of ordinary calendars such as are issued by Dr. Miles and the Equitable Life Company.

MINOR PUBLICATIONS

The Red Book serving primarily as the official student handbook and directory is published at the beginning of each school year by a student staff under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A. The Red Book furnishes information on the faculty, fraternity memberships, honorary and professional organizations, publications, athletic schedules, social and University calendars, and social regulations. The staff in charge of the 1937-38 Red Book included F. Jay Nimtz, editor; A. Robert Lawrence, business manager; and James Newkirk, circulation manager.

The Indiana Athletic Review is published during the football season by the Publicity Department in the interest of Indiana University athletics. The Review contains information about football teams and coaches and offers occasional articles on other sports. Andrew G. Olofson edited the 1937 issue.

The Freshman Guide, published by the Y.M.C.A. of the University is issued each year to assist new men students in their orientation into the University. Robert Sturgeon served as editor and F. Jay Nimtz as business manager of the 1937 issue.

The Freshman Handbook is published annually to assist new women students in orienting themselves to the opportunities and regulations of I.U. This year it was the responsibility of the Y.W.C.A. to edit the book. Doris Seward served as editor and Mary Jane Tharp as business manager.

THE 1939 ARBUTUS

The bright-eyed lass pictured below is Betty Lou Fraling, who was named by the Arbutus selection committee on April 26 as the Editor-in-Chief of the 1939 opus.

Below her is the somber visage of Al Higdon, who will hold the post of Arbutus Business Manager in 1939. Both have so far shown themselves to be extremely capable of producing an All-American yearbook.

Miss Fraling's work on organizations and Higdon's effective advertising campaign this year have marked them as able Arbutus executives.

Allen Harrison, Buck Mauck, Virginia Heller and Audrey Smith were named Associate Editors. The Associate Business Managers of the 1939 book will be Charles Barnhill, Manuel Rothberg, Bob Twyman, and Rembrandt Hiller. These eight sophomores have shown great promise in their work this year, and are worthy of junior positions on the 1939 staff.

EAUTIES

Above: Beights and Shores, two piano team entertain while the judges deliberate . . . Judges Eleanor Nangle, Noble Bretzman, and Les Tremayne . . . Part of the mob . . . Bobby Bash seems interested, too.

The Arbutus sponsored its annual beauty raffle at the Princess Theatre during the second semester. Eighty entrants paraded before the judge's box during the first round of the contest. This group was cut to twenty-five, from which ten semi-finalists were picked. The five winners were picked from this group in order, according to the judge's estimation of their beauty as displayed on the Minsky-style runway that projected into the crowd.

Master of Ceremonies, J. Earle Roose, introduced the contestants as they strolled on the stage. Jimmy Cathcart's band played during the contest and while the judges were making their decisions.

Yvonne Debruton, Kappa Alpha Theta, was named winner of the contest and the runners up were Helen Emly, Frances Heiny, Margaret Hall, and Jane Bosart, in no particular order.

GIRL'S BAND

The Indiana Girls' Band, founded last year, has the distinction of being the only one of its kind in the country. It was established for the benefit of girls who are interested in carrying on band work in college.

The organization consists of fifty-four members, showing a considerable increase over last year's membership. The sponsors are planning to get uniforms as soon as the band becomes well established on the campus. The band sponsored a campus dance during the winter.

The band features the best marches and symphonic numbers on its programs. The girls entertained at the home basketball games during the past season and plans to expand its activities as it becomes better known.

Nichols and Haskell in "Hotel Universe"

The University Theatre under the direction of Professor Lee R. Norvelle and a capable staff of assistants was responsible for an unusually successful and highly enjoyable program of plays this year. Vergil Smith's success as technical director in creating unusual settings for such plays as "Hotel Universe" and "Ethan Frome" contributed greatly in providing the all-important atmosphere.

Student directors were used throughout and outstanding work in costuming, make-up, and properties was done by Peggy Leininger, Betty Carmony, and Mary Ellen Thornton respectively.

THE SEASON

By request this year's program included more comedy and University Theatre patrons welcomed Martin Flavin's hilarious domestic comedy "Broken Dishes" as the first production of the season. Two newcomers to the Theatre, Charlotte Fields and Gaylord Allen, gave an effective first performance as the character leads. The audience gleefully received Henry Beidinger's realistic portrayal of the drunken comedian.

The second production of the season was "Lady of Letters" by Turner Bullock which dealt with campus life in a satirical and amusing although somewhat exaggerated manner. Virginia McDaniels was especially appealing as the flighty, simple wife of a reserved professor. The scrapes and amusing situations in which she innocently involves her whole family keep the play moving at a snappy pace. Henry Biedinger as the conservative and blustering Dr. Newberry and Dan Sherwood as Mr. Creepmore, Dr. Newberry's right-hand man, make a superb comedy team.

In contrast to the preceding comedies "Hotel Universe" by Philip Barry was next presented. It was perhaps the most unusual play ever presented by the University Theatre because of its metaphysical basis. It is neither a comedy nor a tragedy but it is a thought-provoking play dealing with life and death. Unique staging by Mr. Smith and artistic costuming contributed much in carrying out the atmosphere of the play. Ray Southworth and Philip Correll made extremely convincing Pat Farleys while Martha Martz and Rosario Delgado shared the honors for the female lead, Ann Field. The difficult character role was played with finesse by John Nichols and Paul Hockieger, and Richard Haskett was outstanding as Tom Ames.

Ben Levy's "Springtime for Henry" was cleverly and capably produced by a triple cast. The play was a sophisticated English farce and as is true of all farces the reaction of the audience was definitely divided. Many pronounced this play the best of the group yet there were many who criticized it unfavorably. Barbara Marshall, Henry Beidinger, Richard Haskett and Mary Beth Hunt gave creditable performances.

One of the finest characterizations given in the history of the University Theatre was Rosemary Redens' interpretation of the whining hypochondriac Zenobia in the fifth production, "Ethan Frome!" The entire cast of this well-known tragedy was excellent and theatre enthusiasts seemed to act with the actors as they cried with one and hated or loved with another.

This year Foster Harmon has started a new Studio Theatre apart from the University Theatre. Its purpose is fundamentally an outlet for original plays and it also serves as an additional laboratory for students interested in dramatics. Tryouts for the plays are open to everyone and much of the technical work is handled by students. The plays planned for this year by the Studio Theatre were a short version of Shakespeare's "Comedy of Errors", a Variety Show, and for the first premiere "Hasty Pudding" by Robert Maloy. "Strange Road", the second premiere will be published using pictures of the play as it was given here, and "New Faustus" a tragedy by Robert Maloy is to be the final production of the Studio Theatre.

GLEE CLUBS

Another successful year can be recorded for the University Women's and Men's Glee Clubs under the direction of Professors John L. Geiger and Douglas D. Nye.

The Women's Glee Club is composed of about fifty women students selected from a large number of applicants. The annual Mothers' Day concert of this group under Professor Geiger's leadership was received with enthusiasm.

In March the Men's Glee Club under the leadership of Professor Nye ended their years of training with a five day tour of Indiana cities. The concerts presented at various cities, among them Winchester, Fort Wayne, Angola, South Bend, Mishawaka, Kendallville, Hartford City, were received enthusiastically. Schuman's "Gypsy Life", Massenet's "Elegy", "Worship" by Shaw, "The Asra" by Rubenstein, negro spirituals and an Indiana medley were among the selections sung by the group of thirty-three members who made the tour.

The quartet, The Gentlemen From Indiana, and an instrumental trio as well as solo numbers by Melvin Schaefer, PG, who is also accompanist for the group, were included on the programs.

ORCHESTRA AND CHORUS

Dean B. Winfred Merrill, director of the University Symphony Orchestra for the past twenty years, is justifiably proud of the work done by the orchestra during the past year. Original composition work presented at Commencement and in concerts throughout the year showed remarkable talent.

The first concert, in March, included Weber's "Euryanthe", Brahms' Second symphony, and Johann Strauss' "Blue Danube". In later concerts many of the student compositions were presented. The year's work by the orchestra was completed by their participation in Commencement.

The University Chorus, a campus activity for the past eighteen years, is a group of about one hundred and fifty students, faculty members and towns-people.

Before an audience in Alumni Hall and an unseen radio audience, the annual presentation of Handel's "Messiah" was given in December. Excerpts from this oratorio were also given at a convocation program.

In the early spring the chorus presented Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise". The group was under the direction of Edward B. Birge, and the orchestral background was provided by the University Symphony Orchestra.

This year's Music Series brought to the Indiana University campus six outstanding concerts by three world famous artists and a distinguished symphony orchestra.

In November the first concert of the season brought to the campus Fritz Kreisler in a program that proved him worthy of the title of "the world's greatest violinist". Later in the same month Sergei Rachmaninoff, composer-pianist, presented an outstanding program to a thrilled audience.

The next concert brought an unexpected pleasure to concertgoers when Gladys Swarthout, mezzo-soprano, presented a varied program to an appreciative audience in the Men's Gymnasium on December third.

The three remaining concerts in February and March were presented by the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra, a reorganized group consisting of eighty musicians, under the baton of Fabien Sevitzy, noted Philadelphia and Boston symphonic conductor. This orchestra represents the first major symphony orchestra the State has ever had.

This year's debate program was interesting and varied in that five questions were debated during the year by the three sections of the squad: varsity men, varsity women, and freshmen men and women. Radio debates were continued as a recent feature of the program.

On November 18, John Visser and Robert Ashby won an audience decision from Northwestern at Chicago. On the same date, Charles Barnhill and William Bloom met Illinois at Bloomington in a non-decision debate.

Jeanette Strayer and Virginia Maple defeated Wisconsin at Madison on December 9, while Geneva Senefeld and Jane Dillin met Purdue at Bloomington in a non-decision debate. On February 26, Paul Meacham and Charles Rainey defeated Wisconsin at Bloomington in a non-decision debate. At the same time Harry Tomlinson and Jacob Swartz met Ohio State at Columbus in a non-decision debate.

In March Geneva Senefeld and Jeanette Strayer debated against Illinois at Bloomington and also took part in a radio debate over station WIRE. Jane Dillin and Virginia Maple met Iowa at Iowa City and debated over station WSUI. At Cincinnati Charles Rainey and John Visser debated over station WSAI. The final debate tournament was held in Chicago in April.

On February 25 and 26, the Freshman squad composed of Charles Barnhill, Bernard Cinkoske, Marvin Miller, Richard Aikman, William Pitkin, Richard Stoner, Philip Oliver and Sophia Nicholas debated the national labor relations question. The negative teams won 6, drew 1, and lost 4 of the debates while the affirmative teams won 6 and lost 4.

INTRAMURAL DEBATE

The Intramural Debaters this year debated the subject, "Resolved: the compulsory military training at Indiana University should be abolished". After all withdrawals, there were eight teams left competing. Numerous conflicts resulted in so much difficulty that the tournament was finally held on a one-day basis. All teams drew by lot for side and opponents. The winners of Round 1 were paired for Round 2. The winners of the semi-final round were then allowed to draw lots for sides in the finals.

The finals of the tournament were held a week later and saw Stoner and Pitkin, a Sigma Nu team, debating the affirmative against Aikman and Oliver, an independent team. Dr. Frank K. Edmondson of the Astronomy Department, a former I.U. varsity debater and an alumnus of the local Tau Kappa Alpha chapter, judged the debate. The decision and tournament victory went to Aikman and Oliver.

Tau Kappa Alpha sponsored the tournament with Virginia Maple acting as chairman. Medals were awarded to the winners and runners-up.

INDIANA UNIVERSITY BAND

The university band started the season last fall with a record roll call of one hundred thirty-two members. The marching unit added an extra rank for the football games and brought its total to one hundred fifteen men. The band accompanied the football team to Iowa for the game last year. This was the longest trip that the band had taken for several years.

This year marks the first spring marching practice that the band has had for some time. The "Marching Hundred" appeared at the Kentucky Derby this year and was announced as the "All-American band from Indiana University". On May twenty-seventh of this year, the band performed at the first night baseball game at Forbe's Field in Cincinnati. The opening was called Indiana Day in honor of the band.

The concert band, consisting of fifty-five selected performers from the marching band, made its annual spring concert tour during the third week of April. They played eighteen concerts before approximately thirty thousand people.

Dances are sponsored every year by members of the band in order to raise funds for new numbers and uniforms.

The Gold Star, the award presented each year to the universities which show outstanding work in military training, came back to Indiana this year for the second consecutive time. And this year, again, the R.O.T.C. definitely justified its existence: In addition to its more bellicose activities the Military department held dances and banquets, chose queens, and risked life and limb to guard the Old Oaken Bucket during its short period of exposure to the perils of the Union Lounge.

Indiana University is not a land grant college, but military training is required of all physically fit male students by the Board of Trustees. The purpose of the course, as stated by the department, is to cover the fundamentals of military training and "to create respect for authority and habits of punctuality".

RIFLE TEAMS

Indiana University is represented in inter-collegiate rifle competition by the Varsity, R.O.T.C., and girls' rifle teams.

The girls' rifle team with twenty-six scheduled matches for the season won fifty per cent of their meets. Some of the major universities they defeated were Ohio University, Washington University, University of St. Louis, and Connecticut State College.

The Varsity team organized as the I. U. Rifle club is affiliated with the National Rifle Association. The team competes for the Big Ten championship and schedules approximately fifty meets with other major universities throughout the country. Fifty per cent of the Big Ten and privately arranged meets were chalked up for the Varsity team this year. Among the schools defeated were Harvard, Yale, Wisconsin, Ohio, Michigan, and Cincinnati.

The R.O.T.C. team shoots in the fifth corps area composed of West Virginia, Kentucky, Ohio, and Indiana. The team is the possessor of the William Randolph Hearst Rifle Trophy for winning second place in the corps competition area from a field of twenty-one teams. Major T. F. Wessels, infantry adjutant, coaches the University rifle teams.

I. U. ON THE AIR

For the first time in the history of the University, radio played an important part in the lives of the students. A year ago station WIRE, of Indianapolis, offered to lay the wiring and give free time, amounting to $25,000, if in turn the University would purchase the other equipment and install a studio.

The proposition accepted, a board of seventy-five faculty members was appointed to advise on the broadcasts. President H. B. Wells was appointed chairman of the Board of Radio Control with Dr. Lee Norvelle, head of the Division of Speech, as Director of Radio Service. Other members of this board of control included Dean Payne, Dean Smith, Dean Merrill, W. A. Alexander, R. E. Cavanaugh, Dr. Ramsey, Dr. Hazel, Ward Biddle, George Heighway, Wm. Teeter, and Frank Elliot.

A class in radio broadcasting was formed with Mr. Robert Allen in charge of the script writing division and Dr. Norvelle in charge of the directors and actors. The two objectives aimed at from the beginning were first, to give the people of the state some idea of the work being done in their state university, and second, to give the students some practical experience in acting and directing radio programs.

The Monday programs were designed to give professors in the various schools a chance to discuss their fields of endeavor. On Wednesday an all-student program was composed of singing, skits, and music from the members of the class in broadcasting and other students. The Friday programs were news broadcasts. These were compiled and given by Justin Salyards and Roger Hurst. The Sunday programs consisted of debates and lectures on topics of current interest.

Announcers and directors of all these programs were students, with a faculty member in charge. The announcers included Richard Haskett, John Westfall, Robert Smith, Justin Salyards, and Robert Lee.

The student directors were George Blair, Paul McGuff, Cecelia Hendricks, and Paul Boxell.

To provide wholesome and varied dance programs for the general student body, Union-A.W.S. dances are held in Alumni Hall of the Union Building every Friday night. These dances are sponsored by the Men's Union, composed of all men students on the campus, in conjunction with the Association of Women Students, an organization of which each woman student on the campus is a member.

In addition to bands from this and other university campuses, the Union-A.W.S. committee brought three "name" bands to the campus this year. Charlie Agnew was the first of these, playing a dance in the fall. Formal season was opened to the tunes of Carlos Molina and his rhumba rhythm. Frankie Masters was brought here by the Union-A.W.S. this spring. Twenty-six Union-A.W.S. dances were held during the year, with an average attendance of 165 couples.

Dances held in Alumni Hall other than those sponsored by the Union-A.W.S. included the Miami Triad, featuring Earl "Father" Hines; the Tri Kappa Charity Ball, played by Barney Rapp; and the Junior Prom, with Henry Busse waving the baton. Couples attending dances held in the Union building during the year numbered more than 12,000.

INDIANA UPSETS

CRIMSON TRIPS CENTRE 12-0 IN OPENER

Corby Davis Rushes Line For Hoosier Markers—Visitors Threaten Goal In Last Period, But Fail to Tally.

By W. BLAINE PATTON,
Sports Editor The Star.

Bloomington, Ind., Sept. 25.—The 1937 gridiron season at Indiana University was ushered in this afternoon with a 12-to-0 victory over a fighting little band of warriors from Centre College. The plucky youngsters from Danville, Ky., alma mater of Bo McMillin, Crimson mentor, held their heavier and huskier opponents to a pair of touchdowns, one in the first period and the other at the opening of the fourth quarter.

Indiana also showed flashes of a forward pass attack which may materialize into better form as the season advances.

Thirteen passes in all were attempted. These netted 136 yards and 35 more were added on a couple of laterals. The total yards gained from scrimmage gave I. U. an advantage of 281 as against 144 made by their opponents, most of which were made by Centre in the final minutes of play when many reserves were in the lineup for McMillin's team.

A straight march down the field brought about the initial touchdown for the Crimsonites in the opening quarter in which six consecutive first downs were hung up to lead up to the six points. A beautiful punt from the 15-yard line by Vance, Centre fullback, to I. U.'s 14-yard stripe temporarily staved off the brilliant offense of the locals after which the march to "pay dirt" began.

Sparkplugs in Drive.

Corby Davis, Clasen and Filchock were the sparkplugs in the drive down the soggy gridiron on line plunging tactics and Davis then took two passes over the line to put the leather within striking distance of the goal, two yards away. A straight buck by Davis scored the touchdown and Miller missed the place kick for the extra point. The remainder of the quarter was filled with frequent exchanges of punts.

GOPHERS SHAVE INDIANA ELEVEN 6-0

By JAY VESSELS.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Minnesota's thoroughly deflated Golden Gophers squeezed out a 6-to-0 victory over Indiana today in a Big Ten game that found "Bo" McMillin's scrappy squad failing in two last period attempts to pull the game out of the fire.

The final gun barked as a Hoosier pass fell incomplete on the Minnesota goal line. Indiana in the last of two mighty thrusts passed cagily to the Minnesota nine for a first down. An end sweep lost four; there was a five-yard penalty for too much time in the huddle and then the last desperate futile pitch.

Just a few minutes earlier, a fourth down Hoosier pass from the five-yard line missed the intended receiver in the end zone by inches.

Those two spectacular drives packed all the Indiana scoring threats of the day and four of the five Hoosier first downs came in the last few minutes of play, mainly through the accurate passing of Bill Anderson and Frank Filchock to Halfback Dale Tanner and Capt. "Jick" Kenderdine, end. Ten of 28 Indiana forwards were good.

Reserves Start Game

Minnesota, presenting a make-shift lineup most of the way with a second team starting, got its winning margin in the second quarter principally through a flashy punt return by little Rudy Gmitro to the Indiana 20th. Wilbur Moore took it over from the ninth. Three other Minnesota scoring opportunities were bungled with a hard-charging Hoosier line smearing the Gopher's attack.

Minnesota's vaunted backs, especially Andy Uram, were given a harsh brand of silent treatment. Uram played only during the second quarter, when, after figuring in the touchdown drive, he hustled the kickoff back to the Indiana 43rd-yard line.

The Gopher backs handled the ball raggedly, fumbling five times. In the line, Dan Elmer, at center, and Dwight Reed, at end, played smart, rugged football. Summary:

ILLINI FALL IN HOME COMING TILT

DAVIS PACES HOOSIERS TO 13-6 VICTORY

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 16.—Coming through with a dazzling, scintillating offensive drive in the fourth quarter led by Corby Davis, the Scrappin' Hoosiers of Indiana University broke a 6-all deadlock to defeat the University of Illinois here this afternoon, to thrill and electrify a home-coming crowd of 16,000 and win by a score of 13 to 6. It was a scorching contest throughout with the final result hanging in the balance until the final whistle.

The Lowell (Ind.) fullback plunger for the Crimsonites transferred a setting which might have made him the "goat" of the intensified combat to become the real hero of the matinee. It was his costly fumble near his own goal line in the second period which paved the way for the Illinois touchdown to checkmate the one made in the initial frame on a pass to Filchock.

Aside from piloting the parade to the coveted chalk mark at the edge of the end zone in the final session to unknot the even-up count, it was the flying defensive leap of Davis which staved off a touchdown in six-point land on a counter attack of the visitors when, within the very shadows of the I. U. goal posts after the Crimsonites had made their gallant march to assume the lead. This play came when less than two minutes remained in the game and resulted in the touchback which enabled Coach McMillin's men to bring the pigskin out to the 20-yard stripe and boot it out of danger.

Hoosiers Lead Through Air.

It was a ripping tilt throughout and hard fought in every sense of the word, in which Indiana registered nine first downs against eight for the visiting collegians from Champaign. The River Jordan lads, however, had a marked advantage with the aerial weapon, completing seven of 10 overhead attacks for a gain of 87 yards, as against only three completed out of nine for the invaders, good for only 11 yards. In yards gained from scrimmage, the Crimson outdistanced the Orange and Blue 212 yards to 141 yards.

It was the first game in Big Ten competition for the Suckers and the second for the winners who surprised the football world a week ago by holding the powerful Minnesota Gophers to a touchdown victory in their own lair.

INDIANA SCORES 27 TO 0 TRIUMPH OVER CINCINNATI

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 23—(Special)—With second string players doing most of the work, Indiana swamped the University of Cincinnati football team, 27 to 0, this afternoon before 7,500 at Nippert stadium. The Hoosiers scored twice in the second period, once in the third, and again in the fourth.

An eighty yard drive led to Indiana's first touchdown. After Popov kicked over the Indiana goal for a touchback, Heistand raced around left end for nineteen yards to the Indiana 39 yard line. In two smashes, Oliver made thirteen yards.

Davis Scores Touchdown.

Fowler broke through to the Cincinnati 34 yard line, and then threw a pass to Birr for a first down on the 25 yard line. Oliver cracked the line for eight yards, and Fowler for two. Heistand, running wide, was knocked out of bounds on the 1 yard line. Oliver was held for no gain as the first quarter ended. On the first play of the second quarter, Davis scored the first touchdown. Miller added the extra point.

Pass Becomes a Score.

A blocked kick recovered by Fowler started the Hoosiers toward the goal line again in the third quarter. After the Bearcats had stopped line thrusts, Fowler passed into the end zone to Heistand for the touchdown. Fowler kicked the extra point.

The last touchdown drive started from the Hoosier 26 yard line. Heistand jogged to the 36 yard line. Tanner lateraled for six yards. Heistand smashed tackle for fifteen yards then lateraled to Davis for fifteen more. In three more smashes, Davis and Tanner made it first down on the Cincinnati 25 yard line. Tanner dashed the rest of the distance to the goal. Tanner's kick for the extra point was wide.

This Explains the Score.

Indiana registered 16 first downs, to four for Cincinnati. The Hoosiers gained 192 yards from rushing and 72 through the air, to 72 and 12 yards, respectively, for the Bearcats.

OHIO STATE 10-0

HUSKERS TALLY ON FIRST PLAY

HOOSIERS FALL
BEFORE NEBRASKA
ELEVEN, 7-0

By HENRY McLEMORE.

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 30.—(U.P.)—The game was only 17 seconds old, and the echo of the referee's starting whistle scarcely had died away, when Nebraska's Cornhuskers shook loose a halfback on a long touchdown run today to defeat Indiana 7 to 0.

Hundreds of the crowd which later swelled to 37,000—second largest in Nebraska history—still were hunting their seats when Jack Dodd broke off left tackle, and with three blockers clearing his way, blazed 65 yards for a score.

Lowell English booted the extra point to make it 7 to 0—and that was the ball game.

The victory, achieved in amazingly warm weather for this prairie section in late October, kept Nebraska riding along with the select group of major teams which have not been defeated this year, and revived the Rose Bowl talk that flared after the Cornhuskers had opened their 1937 program with a triumph over mighty Minnesota.

Husker Line Saves Game.

It was Dodd's electrifying run, on a shovel pass from Quarterback John Howell, that won the game for the Cornhuskers and it was the magnificent play of the line that saved it. Saved it, not once, but half a dozen times as Indiana roared up and down the field. But each time that the Hoosiers, appearing very sinister, indeed, in their pants and jerseys of midnight black, moved into the scoring zone, the Cornhusker line reared up and hurled them back.

The big boys from the plains made their most stirring stand late in the second period when Indiana, passing and plunging, moved to within eight yards of a score, with four tries for a touchdown the Hoosiers found the enemy line invulnerable, and lost the ball without having advanced more than a yard.

The figures show how lustily Nebraska had to defend throughout most of the afternoon. Indiana made 14 first downs against two, outgained Nebraska by a ratio of 4 to 1 rushing, and completed 11 passes against two for the Cornhuskers.

Indiana, in fact, led in everything but touchdowns and yards lost by penalties.

INDIANA JOLTS TITLE HOPES OF BUCKEYES

77 YARD MARCH
GIVES HOOSIERS A TOUCHDOWN

Columbus, O., Nov. 6.—Indiana university's Hoosiers, as brave and patient a team as the Western conference has seen in years, celebrated Thanksgiving a trifle prematurely today by whipping Ohio State's Buckeyes, 10 to 0, before 47,056 fans who were still rubbing their eyes when they filed out of Ohio stadium.

It was truly a Thanksgiving party for the Hoosiers. They had fought their seemingly futile way through two losing games against Minnesota and Nebraska, while outplaying both. Touchdowns had become such a delicacy to them that they started their triumph over Ohio State today by scoring a second period field goal which gave them a 3 to 0 advantage at the half. Center George Miller, the spark plug of the Indiana line, who was playing with a broken thumb, sustained in the Nebraska game last week, dropped back to the Ohio 21 yard line after eleven minutes of the second period and kicked the ball over.

Hoosiers Are Grateful.

The Hoosiers were mighty grateful for those three points. They began to smack the larger Buckeyes to the ground with a savageness which startled the local young men. The latter might well be surprised by this behavior, for they had not lost to Indiana since 1924. Furthermore, until today, they thought they were bound for a share of the Big Ten championship, for they had rolled over Purdue, Northwestern, and Chicago.

The game clock had ticked away more than half of the third quarter when Indiana sat down to the most enjoyable touchdown repast it has had this season. The Hoosiers themselves did not seem to realize how delicious it was going to be. They were well into their own territory when the seventy-seven yard scoring march began. Frank Filchock and Paul Graham, who played the entire game, started it with a lateral pass, Graham going to the 50 yard line. Corby Davis, another sixty minute toiler, then threw his 200 pounds against the Ohio State line with telling effect, the Hoosiers eventually finding themselves on the Buckeye 20 yard line. A pass to Capt. Jick Kenderdine was good for eight precious yards, but they weren't half so delectable as the twelve yards which Right End Frank Petrick negotiated for the touchdown on the next play on a pass from Filchock.

INDIANA BEATS IOWA, 3-0, IN LAST QUARTER

By FRENCH LANE.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 13.—Indiana's Hoosiers, each with a rabbit's foot in his pocket, came out here into the Iowa tall corn country this afternoon and snatched a 3 to 0 football victory from the University of Iowa Hawkeyes.

This triumph, scored by the magic toe of George Miller, Hoosier center, on a place kick from the 14 yard line early in the fourth quarter, made it possible for Indiana to remain in the race for the western conference championship, even though the fight it is making appears to be a futile one.

But back to this rabbit foot victory the Hoosiers scored over Iowa this afternoon. It happened while a frigid wind blew in from the northwest, a wind so cold that the players and the 15,000 spectators were chilled thoroughly soon after the game started.

How It Happened.

It happened after the Hawkeyes had made eleven first downs to Indiana's none during nearly three-quarters of the game. It happened after Iowa had been in possession of the ball nearly all afternoon and after only a break in the luck had put the Hoosiers within reach of the cherished three points which George Miller's toe gave them.

Late in the third quarter, Indiana, which hadn't seemed to do anything the right way, finally made a first down. Graham had intercepted Kinnick's pass to Lannon. Next came an Indiana pass, Filchock to Heistand, who lateraled to Graham, who carried the ball to the Iowa 28 yard line before being brought down. Heistand skipped around left end to the Iowa 19.

Corby Davis, who had carried on nobly all afternoon for Indiana, went to the Iowa 16 on a delayed line buck. He picked up two more around left end.

Cheers Are Heeded.

The few hundred Indiana rooters were screaming frantically for the Hoosiers and for Davis to keep going. Davis did not fail them. He took the ball on the next play and made it a first down on the Iowa 8 yard line. Again Davis took the ball. He picked up two more yards over his right guard. Then the third quarter ended.

ISBELL SCORES LATE; INDIANA BEATEN, 13 TO 7

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 20.—Cecil Isbell, Purdue's great back, never had sipped victory nectar from the old oaken bucket in his three years at Purdue. Tonight, though, he was entitled to drink deep draughts from the famous Purdue-Indiana football trophy, for he scored the touchdown which gave the Boilermakers an eleventh hour, 13 to 7, triumph over the Hoosiers.

In the first quarter Cecil had completed a twenty-eight yard pass to Jim Zachary and kicked the point to give Purdue a 7 to 0 lead, but in the second quarter Indiana completed a seventy-two yard march with a twenty-six yard touchdown pass, Frank Filchock to Jick Kenderdine, which, with the point kicked by George Fowler, tied the score.

From then on, Indiana had statistical advantage until the closing minutes, when Cecil Isbell, aided by Jack Brown and Lou Brock, sophomores, did his stuff for victory, Isbell's touchdown coming when there was one minute and fifty seconds of the game remaining.

How They Go.

The triumphal drive got under way after a punt to Purdue's 42 yard line. Brock took a lateral to go into Indiana territory for a first down and on third down, with seven yards to go, Brock ripped through to Indiana's 28 yard line. Cecil Isbell made four yards, then seemed to be trying to duplicate the feat. He ran forward and, as he was about to be hit by the center of the Indiana line, turned and passed eight yards laterally to Brown. Brown dashed to the 9 yard line. Then the Hoosiers twice thwarted Cecil. But on his third try of the series he plunged ten yards through the center of the line to the payoff touchdown. His attempt to add the point was blocked by Bill Anderson.

The weather was as ornery as any that ever cursed southern Indiana on a November day, but nevertheless the show played to 25,000, Bloomington's first capacity turnout in history. Though defeated and without the old oaken bucket which had adorned their trophy room since 1934, the Hoosiers can try to get solace out of the statistics, other than the touchdown tabulations.

Indiana made fourteen first downs to Purdue's twelve, and made 259 yards from scrimmage to 210 for the Boilermakers, 159 from rushing to 149.

EVERETT S. DEAN
Head Basketball Coach

Everett S. Dean, coach of the Crimson baseball and basketball forces, is winding up his fourteenth year as mentor of these two teams. He is well qualified to be coach of Indiana's teams, for he was a star performer in both baseball and basketball during his years as an undergraduate student in the University. During the past basketball season, he steered a small squad credibly through one of the toughest years of Big Ten competition that has been seen in these parts for some time. Dean's present varsity baseball team is opening the season by taking everything in sight along the lines of competition.

Indiana has been called the basketball state. If that be true, then all the fire and color of Hoosier basketball is epitomized to its utmost at Indiana University. All the speed, stamina, and drive of Indiana's ace basketekers is represented on the Cream and Crimson quintet. In spite of injuries and the work of the spritely Lady Luck, Indiana University fans saw basketball this season with its typical Hoosier characteristics—speed, color, fire, and fight. Crowds that jammed the Fieldhouse to capacity on many occasions saw what they came to see—basketball played as only Hoosier teams can play it.

THE 1937-38 SEASON WAS SO-SO

Fate stalked Indiana's basketball team from start to finish of its 1937-38 season. Sickness, ineligibility and injury riddled Coach Everett Dean's squad, as it lost many games by heart-breakingly close margins and finished in eighth place in the Big Ten standings.

DePauw fell an easy victim to the Hoosiers in the season's opener, December 6. Striking in the last period, the Crimson breezed through to a 45-25 victory. Two small but potent quintets, playing on their home floors, crushed the Hoosiers in the next two tilts. Ball State, coached by Indiana university graduate Branch McCracken, forged ahead in the second half to win, 42-38. Bradley Tech, of Peoria, Illinois, extended its winning streak to eight straight when it capitalized on Indiana's poor percentage from the free throw line to triumph, 40-29.

The Crimson's annual Christmas vacation hegira to other climes took it westward this time. En route, Nebraska was nipped, 43-42, as Andres sank a free throw with seconds to go. California's sunshine seemed to exhilarate the Hoosiers, as they took Southern California and U.C.L.A. into camp with comparative ease. The Trojans, presenting nearly an all-Indiana quintet, were topped, 42-39, while the Bruins succumbed, 49-33. Purdue, which beat the same two teams on the same two successive nights that Indiana did, stayed at the same hotel with the Hoosiers, the squads seeing Hollywood's stars and studios before climbing aboard the eastbound train.

With school's reopening after the holidays, 5,500 fans packed the Fieldhouse to see one of the most exciting games that has ever been played in Bloomington. Illinois, 1937 Conference co-champs, apparently had won when the score read 41-34 with less than five minutes to play. But Bill Johnson and Ernie Andres started a rally which knotted the score at 42-all. As the gun cracked, the score was still deadlocked, 44-44. In the overtime period, Indiana surged ahead to win, 51-46.

Iowa, Crimson cage nemesis, lived up to its role by snapping Indiana's four game winning streak at Iowa City with a 48-39 victory. Johnson's lip was injured early in the game, forcing him to leave the floor. Ben Stephens, Iowa forward, sealed the win with his 23 points. The Deanmen broke even on their two game road trip by foiling Minnesota's fast breaking offense and standing off a spirited last half rally, winning, 39-38.

Northwestern and Iowa—the latter for the second time in nine days—downed the Hoosiers in two home encounters, 32-29 and 36-32 respectively. Lanky Jake Nagode made the only successful Wildcat free throw of the game to force the fray into overtime, in which Northwestern won. Iowa's rally in the last 90 seconds, during which it scored five points, cinched its triumph.

Butler bowed listlessly, 42-23, before a crowd of 11,000, the largest ever to see a collegiate game in Indianapolis. Then Purdue's highly touted Boilermakers met the Crimson in the new West Lafayette fieldhouse. Indiana's ace center, Jim Birr, was declared ineligible just before the game. Raggedly officiated, the tilt proved a nip and tuck affair, until Purdue's Pat Malaska arched one through the net with seconds to go, the Boilermakers winning, 38-36.

Wisconsin fell, 47-44, and Louisville, 59-40, in contests at home and away as the Hoosiers returned briefly to the win column. The latter game was played in the Jeffersonville fieldhouse, where native sons Johnson and Andres proved the crowd's idols as they starred.

Four Conference teams in a row walloped Indiana near the season's close, as Captain Joe Platt took to the sidelines with the flu. Northwestern won on its home floor, 52-41. Minnesota avenged an earlier defeat by edging out the Crimson in a roundhouse battle in which 25 personal fouls were called, 37-36. Purdue came to Bloomington and drubbed its rivals, 50-36. Wisconsin evened up a previous licking, 34-32, as guard Ernie Davis shot the winning goal from a sitting position.

As always, Indiana ended its season victorious, swamping Illinois under a deluge of baskets, 45-35. Ernie Andres, hampered by an injured leg and approaching illness, rung up a new Conference scoring mark for one game in this contest by registering 30 markers, bettering the five-year-old record by a point.

BASEBALL - 1938

Eight returning lettermen bolstered Coach Everett S. Dean's hopes of regaining the Big Ten title Indiana lost in 1937 by a 4-3 defeat by Ohio State in the last Big Ten encounter. The Crimson's sole weakness this spring is its battery. Louis Grieger is the only pitcher back from last year. Lefty Cox, Dale Gentil, Bill Smith and Waldo Herrman are other hurlers who show considerable promise. Bill Heldt and Bozidar Stoshitch are catching standouts, and sophomore Johnny Nill plugs the shortstop gap caused by Ellis Abernathy's illness. The other positions are filled by Captain Jim Clark at first base. Ernie Andres at second, Frank Filchock at third, and Tom Gwin, Henry Becker, John Hobson and Hal Cromer in the outfield.

DePauw was tied, 1-1, in the opening game, a seven inning affair. Three wins and one loss were chalked up during spring vacation, on a Southern jaunt. Maryville, Tenn., Teachers lost one and won one from the Deanmen; East Kentucky Teachers succumbed twice. Indiana State and Wabash were quelled in the first home tilts. Ohio State opened Indiana's conference season at Columbus, beating the Hoosiers, 5-4, in the first game, but losing the second when the Crimson put on a four-run rally in the last inning, getting a 7-5 verdict. Other teams on the Indiana diamond schedule are Wabash, Northwestern (two games), Michigan State, Michigan, Butler, Purdue (two games), Illinois (Conference champions), Wisconsin (two games), DePauw, Purdue (two return games), and Butler.

1937 SEASON REVIEW

Indiana's 1937 baseball season will be remembered as one of the most successful in the school's history. The Crimson nine won nineteen games and lost seven, finishing second to Illinois for the Big Ten title. Carleton and DePauw were beaten, 8-0 and 7-0, in the opening games. Then Miami was downed in two games, 10-0 and 7-0. Cincinnati not only had the honor of being first team to score on the Hoosiers, but whipped the Deanmen, 7-4. Indiana bounced back to smother Louisville, 14-3, and Butler, 9-1. DePauw, seeking atonement for an earlier defeat, deadlocked the Hoosiers, 4-4, finally losing to Coach Dean's nine in the eleventh inning, when Indiana put across the winning run. Purdue, arch athletic rival of the Cream and Crimson, was subdued, 3-0 and 8-3, at West Lafayette as Indiana opened its Conference schedule auspiciously. Michigan was edged out, 6-5, but Michigan State reversed this score to top the Deanmen, 6-5. A barrage of hits won Indiana a 10-3 triumph over Michigan in their second meeting. Wabash nosed out the Hoosiers, 3-2, in an upset. Chicago, after dropping a 4-3 contest to the Deanmen, went on a slugging spree to overwhelm Indiana for its first Conference loss, 14-6. Once again Purdue was beaten twice, 4-1 and 6-1. Butler was beaten, 5-1. Then came the Ohio State series that spelled Indiana's doom. The Buckeyes matched the Hoosiers run for run in the first encounter, Indiana winning a 13-12 triumph. But the following day Ohio State smashed the Crimson's title hopes with a 4-3 victory. Ball State, catching the Deanmen in a slump caused by the narrow loss of the title, nipped Indiana, 7-6. Rutgers was downed, 9-6, in New Brunswick, N. J.; Brown was blanked, 4-0, in Providence, R. I.; and Harvard lost a 5-3 encounter to the traveling Crimson troupe. Yale topped the Hoosiers in the season's finale, 7-5.

TRACK AND CROSS-COUNTRY

Track and cross-country again proved one of Indiana University's most successful sports during the 1937-38 season. The cross-country team presaged a banner indoor and outdoor track season last fall, when it ended its third consecutive season undefeated in dual competition. Wins over Purdue, Michigan State, Ohio State and Miami—all by top-heavy scores—extended the consecutive victory string to 12 straight. The Crimson retained its Central Intercollegiate cross-country championship with ease. Colds to two members of the team spelt defeat for Indiana as it defended its National A.A.U. title in Newark, N. J., late in November. The Millrose A.A. of New York relegated the Hoosiers to second, but they still maintained the honor of being America's No. 1 harriers.

Ohio State was beaten, 45-40, to open the indoor season in February. After Notre Dame swamped the Hayesmen, 55 1-2—29 1-2, the Hoosiers rebounded to down Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, 55 2-3—38 1-3. After dominating the distance relays in the Illinois carnival, Indiana fell to fourth in the Conference indoor championships, a succession of colds materially weakening the team. But the Butler relays found Indiana's crack quartets winning two relays, placing third in two others. Opening the outdoor season, Indiana played host to Michigan, Notre Dame and Ohio State in the first annual Indiana relays. Despite the fact that Crimson teams won four of the five relay events, Michigan and Norte Dame won by virtue of field event superiority.

Indiana's ambitious spring schedule includes the Penn Relays, Ohio State dual meet, Cotton Carnival meet at Memphis, Big Ten championships, State Intercollegiate meet, Central Intercollegiate championships, Big Ten vs. Pacific Coast meet, National Collegiate A.A. championships and the National A.A.U. title meet.

Coach E. C. (Billy) Hayes had to rely on a few individual stars rather than a big, well-balanced squad this season. With only the pole vault showing Indiana to have competitors of point-winning caliber, Hayes was forced to win most of the Crimson points with a handful of foot-racers. Jimmy Smith and Tommy Deckard formed one of the best two-mile duos in the country, and doubled in the mile and half-mile in many meets. Mel Trutt proved his caliber at distances from a half-mile to a mile. Sam Miller and Malcolm Hicks were top-flight middle distance men, while little Earl Applegate aided Indiana's four-mile relay team to remain undefeated for the second consecutive season. Merle Shoemaker gained a position as one of the Midwest's best pole vaulters. Although graduation will take nearly every one of these stars from the team, Wilmer Rinehart, freshman coach, this year groomed "the best freshman team in the history of Indiana University" to fill the spiked shoes of Smith, Deckard, Miller, Applegate, Hicks and Shoemaker for the next three years. So continuance of Indiana's foot-racing prowess seems assured.

THE SEASON

Winning all seven dual meets, Indiana's wrestling team bounced back from last year's slump and proved it was still one of the best in the country. Strengthened by the return to school after a year's absence of Olympic team members Charlie McDaniel, and Willard Duffy, Coach W. H. Thom's matmen completed a highly successful season.

Starting off impressively, the grapplers won the first annual Midwest tournament at Chicago, three individual titles going to Hoosiers. The first dual meet was with Michigan—the team that snapped Indiana's Big Ten win streak at 22 straight in 1937. The Thommen gained revenge with a 19-13 victory over the Wolverines. Then Cincinnati Y.M.C.A. was swamped, 36-0. Cornell of Iowa met defeat, 22-6, as the Crimson extended their record to eight years without a defeat on their home mat. Going east, the Hoosiers blanked the New York A.C., 26-0, submerged Navy, 22-6, and topped V.M.I., 26-0. Ending the dual meet season, Illinois' Conference titleholders were crushed, 20-6. Injury-riddled, Indiana finished second in the Big Ten championships, only three points behind Michigan, Duffy and McDaniel winning titles. In the National Collegiate, at Penn State, Indiana took third, entering only three men, McDaniel winning the heavyweight crown to go undefeated during his college career.

AND THE SEASON

Hugh E. Willis' golf team this spring opened an eight-meet schedule with prospects of a good year on the links. During 1937, three wins and two losses, fifth in the Big Ten and second in the State made up the season. Detroit fell, 15½-11½, in the 1938 opener April 16, with Capt. Wally Cisco, Jim Seward, Jack Mueller, Pete Grant, Ed Eaton, and Howard Beaver composing the Hoosier sextet. Teams scheduled are Ohio State, Michigan, Purdue, Illinois and Iowa, with the Big Ten and State tournaments completing the season.

Indiana's tennis team began the toughest, longest schedule in its history this spring. DePauw beat the Crimson netters, 8-1, in the 1938 opener, but Coach Ralph Graham's proteges bounded back to conquer Indiana State Teachers, 5-1. Included on the schedule are dual matches with Michigan, Kentucky, Wayne, Michigan State, Notre Dame, Western State and Kenyon. A quadrangler meet with Ohio State, Illinois and Purdue, and the State tourney at Richmond cap off the 1938 season.

THROUGH A DIFFICULT SCHEDULE

Indiana's swimming team entered the 1937-38 season with but three lettermen and one sophomore numeral winner. Yet, when the end of the season rolled around, the team had won half its meets and could look forward to the 1938-39 season as potentially the best in its history. DePauw was beaten in the opening meet, 58-26. Then Michigan's all-conquering 1937 Conference and National champions came to Bloomington to submerge the Hoosiers, 68-16, before a capacity crowd of 700. Northwestern aquatic forces next dunked Indiana's splashers, 52-32, diver Ted Feigel and the 150-yard medley relay team scoring Indiana's only firsts. Captain Herdrich and Marsh paced the Royermen to a 59-26 victory over Illinois College. The University of Kentucky mermen then bowed to Indiana, 54-21. The season's climax came at West Lafayette, where Purdue was encountered in its new pool. Purdue nipped Indiana, 43-41, to spell finis to another Hoosier tank season.

I N T R A M U R A L S

The University Field House is the scene of year around activity on the part of members of the intramural teams. No matter what the sport, each organization can readily find some lads with the athletic prowess and the willingness to "do or die" in the particular line at which they are adept.

Such willingness to sacrifice a little time for the good of the organization on the part of its members made possible the victory of Phi Kappa Psi in last year's intramural program, and has facilitated Delta Tau Delta's top-rank berth thus far in this year's activities.

G. E. Schlafer
Intramural Director

Last year, the Phi Kappa Psi earned first place by winning in four championship divisions, by being runners-up in four events, by four league championships, and by winning four seconds in their leagues. Championships in fall tennis doubles, spring golf, spring tennis doubles, and a tie in horseshoe singles gave this team the winning score.

Second to the Phi Psis, who had 697-1-5 points, was the Beta Theta Pi team, which garnered 688 1-2 points. Sigma Alpha Mu and Sigma Chi secured 669. 1-4 points and 627 points, respectively, to finish third and fourth.

This year, Delta Tau Delta stands first with 642 points to its credit. Having won first place in tennis and second in ping-pong singles and doubles, relay, and aerial darts singles, they show definite championship possibilities and represent a challenge to the other teams in the leagues. Closely trailing them are the defending champions, the Phi Kappa Psis, with 637 points.

Third place so far this year goes to the South Hall Giants, while Sigma Chi, Beta Theta Pi, and Phi Beta Delta rank fourth, fifth, and sixth, in the order named.

Right: Intramural games excite great interest and enthusiasm—some teams have organized rooting sections and even bands.

Physical education for women seems to be quite some fun. Besides posing for these pictures, which, incidentally, are sent out by the publicity department in an effort to secure a greater enrollment, the girls make merry on Dunn Meadow, in the Student Building, on the tennis courts and even in the pool in the Men's Gym. Many a masculine heart has been snatched from eternal bachelordom by the sight of these ungainly lasses stumbling about the softball diamond, or perhaps throwing the rubber ring over the volleyball net. It is at the women's intramural games, supervised by the P. E. department that those awkward amazons which the sororities hide on ordinary occasions come into the open and justify, in a physical manner, their existence. Here's to Indiana University and stronger race of women.

FOR WOMEN ONLY

Miss Edna Munro
Head of the Department of Physical Education for Women

The Department of Physical Education for women offers its program on a seasonal basis with a fall, spring, and two winter seasons. Swimming, modern dancing, soccer, hockey, volleyball, archery, tennis, golf, quoits, tap dancing, baseball, deck tennis, croquet, prescribed individual gymnastics with emphasis on posture work, and restricted programs are offered.

Students whose activity grades restrict the type of athletics in which they may participate have classes in ping-pong, quoits, croquet, and individually prescribed courses. Rest periods are provided for those students unable to take part in the active program.

A new course, the Camp Counsellors' Course, has been added this year. Girls enrolled in this class who have had enough other experience and who qualify otherwise can qualify as camp counsellors' in summer camps.

Miss Edna Munro is head of the department. Serving with her are the Misses Clara Fedler, Helen Yeakel, Jane Fox, Jean Bell, Helen Grant, and Helen Locus.

Acacia fraternity was founded in 1904 by sixteen students at the University of Michigan. The fraternity is an outgrowth of a Masonic club which had been incorporated in 1895. For thirty years the organization was Masonic in character, and when this stipulation was finally removed, there still remained a restriction of members to Masons, sons of Masons, and persons recommended by Masons.

The Indiana chapter of Acacia was founded in 1920 when a charter was granted to the Masonic club which was established in 1916. This year the long-promised new Acacia house is finally under way on the site of the old one. Each year the Indiana chapter holds a thanksgiving pledge dinner and a Christmas dinner at which Bloomington's underprivileged children are entertained. A formal dance is held each spring.

Members of Indiana University faculty who wear the Acacia triangle include Geoffry Carmichael, Harold Lusk, Dr. Logan Esarey, William Thornbury, and Robert Royer. Prominent on campus are Elmer Koch, associate editor of the Red Book, and George Childress, telegraph editor of The Indiana Daily Student.

ALPHA TAU OMEGA

Three cadets at V. M. I. founded Alpha Tau Omega at the close of the Civil War. It seems that there was a tendency on the part of many of the Norths and Souths still to frown on each other, in spite of the fact that the war was over. The purpose was to improve the existing feelings between the two factions at V. M. I. The new Greek war-baby did well, despite the post-war depression and the waves of anti-fraternity sentiment that swept over all the colleges of the South. After placing chapters in most of the important Southern colleges, Alpha Tau established a chapter at the University of Pennsylvania. ATO was incorporated as a national organization under the laws of Maryland in 1879, thus becoming the first Greek letter fraternity to be listed as incorporated.

The Maltese crossers are well represented in the ranks of the I-men. Louis Greiger is on the pitching staff of the baseball team, Bill Johnson holds a starting berth on this season's five, and Claire Richardson is a member of the university mile relay crew. Turning to other fields, ATO lists Greiger as a member of Sphinx Club and the Union Board, and Kopp, Taylor, and Harrison as members of Phi Eta Sigma. John Purcell plays an important part in dramatics and debating. Alumni of prominence include Dan Caldemeyer and Charles Hornbostle, former Crimson track stars.

First fraternity to originate west of the Alleghenies, Beta Theta Pi was started by eight students at Miami University in 1839. The Pi chapter, established in 1845, was Indiana University's first fraternity. Traditional gridiron encounters are played by the organization's freshmen with the Phi Delta Theta and Sigma Chi rhinies. Most important social event on the Beta calendar is the annual Miami Triad, formal dinner-dance held with the Sigs and Phi Delt.

Among the prominent alumni of the Pi chapter are High Commissioner Paul V. McNutt; Wendell Wilkie, president of Commonwealth and Southern Utility; and Charles Halleck, a member of the House of

The organization is well represented in campus activities, counting in its number members of the Board of Aeons, Union Board, Dragon's Head, Blue Key, Sphinx Club, and Phi Eta Sigma. Also listed in the fraternity's ranks are varsity lettermen in tennis, baseball, track, and golf. Silas Kivett is senior swimming manager, president of Blue Key, and president of the senior class.

DELTA CHI

A group of Cornell students fired with the zeal to improve founded Delta Chi in 1890. Their high aims included better education for members, the advancement of justice, and the founding of an organization of distinctive homogeneity. The original organization was exclusively for law students, but its status was changed to that of a regular college fraternity in 1923. Delta Chi now lists thirty-six active chapters on its national chapter roll and has initiated over eleven thousand members since the founding. All the chapters observe May first as memorial day for deceased members, and commemorate Founder's Day on October thirteenth of each year.

Corby Davis, George Miller, and Jack Ury are football I-men, and Davis played in the East-West charity game in San Francisco on New Year's Day. Other Delta Chis are prominent because of membership in Sphinx Club, Union Board, Phi Eta Sigma, and the University baseball, track, and tennis teams.

Bethany College, West Virginia, was the birthplace of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity, founded there by eight students in 1858. The organization's prosperous growth was extended by uniting with the Rainbow Society in 1886, thus adding several Southern chapters to its list. Established at the University of Mississippi in 1848,* the Rainbow Society was the first distinctive Southern fraternity.

Beta Alpha chapter at Indiana University was granted its charter in 1871. When the Delt house burned down in 1935, plans were immediately formulated for a new one. Last fall the organization moved into the new "Delta Shelter".

The Delts are well represented both on the faculty and in campus activities. They claim Dean C. E. Edmondson, Professor Stith Thompson, Coach E. C. Hayes, Professor J. A. Wright, Marion Lohman, and George Steiner of the faculty. Among their prominent activity men are Ray Fox, president of Board of Aeons, and a member of Union Board, Dragon's Head, Blue Key, and Sphinx Club, Al Cole, a member of the Board of Aeons and Editor-in-Chief of the Arbutus, and Buck Mauck, of the Union Board, Arbutus, and Phi Eta Sigma. Delts are also prominent in football and other major sports.

DELTA UPSILON

The founders of Delta Upsilon were urged by a different motive than were most of the fraternal founders of that time. It seems that the existing Greeks had taken over most of the college life at Williams by the time 1834 rolled around. Several anti-secret organizations had been fighting against them with little or no success. It all ended by the opposition banding into an organization to end organizations. They carried on under the name of Anti-secret until the year of 1864, at which time they came into the fold and took on the Greek name of Delta Upsilon. The original aims of the Anti group gradually changed, with the result that D. U. today resembles other college fraternities in purposes, aims, et al.

The Indiana chapter of Delta Upsilon was formed from the Wrangler's Club in 1915. Along the lines of traditions, Delta Upsilon lists Moot Court, an institution to deal out justice according to the ideas that the upperclassmen hold on the subject. The Freshmen retaliate with Freshman Day, upon which the Freshmen try to square a semester's accounts.

In addition to living with Blue Key, Dragon's Head, Arbutus Business Manager Earle Roose, Delta Upsilon has several men prominent in various lines of activity. Lowell Henderson wears a Phi Beta Key; John Hirschman is Senior Football Manager and Sphinx Clubber; Al Higdon manages baseball, Arbutus business, and is on the Union Board; and Bill Kurtz and Bob Culp are Senior and Junior Track Managers, respectively. Six students of Middlebury College founded Kappa Delta Rho in 1905. Their purpose, in accordance with all founders' purposes, was to institute something just a little better than was already there. K. D. R. remained a local organization for the first few years of its life. The first expansion came when the mother chapter installed a chapter at Cornell University in 1913. The growth of Kappa Delta Rho has been rapid since that time and there are now nineteen active chapters listed. The publication of the fraternity is known as the "Quill and Scroll of Kappa Delta Rho".

The Indiana chapter of K. D. R. appeared in 1926 when a charter was granted to Sigma Eta Chi, a local organization which had been on the campus since 1905. The traditions of the fraternity include an annual venison dinner on the anniversary of its founding, a Thanksgiving dinner for alumni who are members of the faculty, and an annual Mother's Day banquet. Kappa Delta Rho has been outstanding during the last few years for the scholastic average which they have been able to maintain. The last scholarship cup awarded went to them for having an average slightly above "B" and well above their closest competitor. An intricate mechanical man wielding a sledge hammer brought the coveted Homecoming decorations award to Kappa Delta Rho on the day of the Illinois game.

Joe Jewett and Fredrick Eberle represent their house in Phi Eta Sigma, men's scholastic honorary. Bannister and Booher are members of Skull and Crescent, Sophomore social honorary for organized men.

KAPPA SIGMA

A group of men at the University of Virginia fell before the founding epidemic that swept American colleges in the days after the Civil War. After formulating some assorted purposes and ideals, they came out of the huddle with a lodge known to the world as Kappa Sigma. When an expansion program had been carried out in the South, the fraternity established a chapter at Lake Forest College. This was the first attempt of a Southern fraternity to locate in the North. Anti-Greek prejudice and sectional feeling killed the chapter two years after it had been installed. Kappa Sigma was one of the leaders in the fight to kill the anti-frat rules which prevailed in colleges in the post-war period. The national office of the organization sponsors an active scholarship drive among the various chapters.

The Beta Theta chapter of Kappa Sig was established on the Indiana campus in 1887. The practically-in-Brown County house is well represented in activities on the campus. Fred Hanna and Ted Fleming are members of the Union Board. Sphinx Clubbers are Hanna and Bill Heldt. Thomas Dittmer, Ted Fleming, and Gene Eckerty are Phi Eta Sigma men. Dick Pell is president of Skull and Crescent, worthy Sophomore men's organization. Ted Fleming is on the Board of Aeons and is a member of Blue Key and, in addition, served as chairman of the Junior Prom and is a Junior staffite of Arbutus. Richard Greenawalt is a columnist on the Daily Student staff. Bill Heldt is a varsity baseballer for the dear old Cream and Crimson.

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA

The laws at Boston University formed a group known as the Cosmopolitan Law Club in the gay nineties. This all-shyster aggregation kept in running order until 1909, at which time the disciples of Blackstone decided it was time to vary the diet. The Law club was discontinued and the Alpha chapter of Lambda Chi Alpha was formed from the ex-members of the C. L. C. The fraternity has experienced rapid growth since its founding twenty-nine years ago. The national chapter roll now bears the names of ninety active chapters.

The present Third Street branch of Lambda Chi was established in 1917. Members of the Independent Literary Society went Greek at that time, thus becoming the charter members of Alpha Omicron of Lambda Chi. The newly founded fraternity moved into its present home in 1925.

Along the lines of house legends, et cetera, one finds Joe, the house dog, at the pole position. Joe is seventeen years old and has seen more students come and go than most of the profs can remember. A yearly event of Lambda Chi is the Christmas party, at which the Freshmen provide the entertainment.

Among the extra-curricular lads, the chapter lists Willard Duffey, varsity wrestling and Sphinx; Arthur Schappell, Morris Wilson, and William Gillick in Phi Eta Sigma; Robert Ryan, president of Gamma Eta Gamma; Ralph Huff, varsity football; and Robert J. Franks, telegraph editor of the Daily Student and member of Sigma Delta Chi.

PHI BETA DELTA

Phi Beta Delta was founded in 1912 by eight students of Columbia University who had an urge to "develop the highest ideals of conduct and to promote a close fraternal bond through means of carefully selected associates." The national office has adopted the policy of granting a plaque to the chapter that makes the best scholastic average each year, thus encouraging studying.

The Alpha Theta chapter was founded here in 1928, originating from Gamma Tau, a prominent Jewish men's local on the campus. Annual events of Phi Beta Delta include an annual dinner, held in celebration of the foundation of the fraternity, a yearly smoker for all Jewish men on the campus, and an open house held once a year for the Jewish women in the university. Phi Beta Delta is the only fraternity on the campus which has had four editors of the Daily Student.

Fybeedee is well represented in campus activities. Ed Rose, a member of Phi Eta Sigma, was editor-in-chief of the Daily Student during the first semester of this year. Harry Einsteadig is treasurer of the Indiana Jewish Student's Union. Milton Finfer is on the university swimming team and is in the Dolphin Club, gent's honorary splash fraternity for splash artists. Harry Einsteadig is Junior Manager for the wrestling team. Murray Dolberger plays tennis on the varsity squad. Phi Beta Delta won the University Sing last year.

Phi Delt's authors "felt the need for—" in 1848, thus placing themselves at the front end of the long line of fraternal founders. From this quiet beginning, the shield and sword club has expanded to include over one hundred active chapters in all parts of the country. March* fifteenth is observed as Founder's Day by all of the chapters. Phi Delta Theta is a member of the Miami Triad, three nationals founded at that school. Rivalry with the pink and blue lads up the street is traditional to Phi Delt.

The Indiana Alpha chapter was founded in 1849, while the parent organization was still operating outside the pale. This chapter was the second one to be founded in the country and has had a longer continuous existence than any other in the fraternity. The local chapter of Phi Delt leads other houses on the campus by a comfortable margin in the number of men initiated. Eight hundred thirty-four have taken the vows, grips, et alii, from Indiana Alpha.

Phi Delt's men-on-the-campus list includes Robert Kenderdine, captain of the football team for the 1937 season and member of Union Board, Dragon's Head, and Sphinx Club; Robert Weir, Phi Eta Sigma and basketball; and Vic Kingdon, captain of the varsity tennis team.

PHI GAMMA DELTA

Phi Gamma Delta owes its origin to a group of seven students at Jefferson College who in 1848 organized a fraternity intended for the Southern colleges only. However, it extended into the North in 1856, with the provision for the establishment of foreign chapters.

Zeta chapter, founded in 1871, held its first meetings above a down-town store. In 1912 the present chapter house was built. Fiji, the well-known police dog, is almost a campus tradition as well as a Phi Gam tradition. Annually the fraternity holds a Representation in campus activities is strong, with Richard Shannen on the Board of Aeons, Blue Key, and Beta Gamma Sigma; Jim Bob Herdrich on the Union Board, Dragon's Head, Blue Key, Sphinx Club, and the swimming team, of which he is captain; Bill Benzel as senior track manager; Ernest Andres active in basketball and baseball; and Charles Baillie as president of Phi Eta Sigma, of which Shannen, Mason, and Shull are also members. Representing the Fiji house on the University staff are the Professors W. T. Hale, E. S. Conklin, Benns, W. J. Moenkhaus, Ross Lockridge, and Woodburn.

PHI KAPPA PSI

Robert Boyd President
John Westfall Vice President
Donald Stephens Secretary
William LeFevre Treasurer

Dame History lets down her hair and tells us that there was an epidemic of typhoid in Jefferson College in the early eighteen fifties. This in itself sounds rather uninteresting, but the after effect is still going on under the name of Phi Psi. The friendship which sprang up among the students who went through this experience together led to the founding of the fraternity in 1852. The Jefferson chapter fared well until 1863, at which time the Civil War ventured along and took all but one of the chapter for service. Phi Psi suspended all activity in southern colleges during the time of the war, and started again immediately afterward. The national chapter roll now totals fifty-two. The "Shield" is the official publication of the fraternity.

If one can navigate the halls of the Phi Psi house without becoming hopelessly lost, he will bump into activities men no end. Energy and astute politicking have combined forces to give Phi Psi a Senior cheer leader, a Senior basketball manager, and a chamber of commerce man—these in the persons of William Curry, Sam Mitchell, and Robert Boughman. Philip Rothrock is a member of Blue Key from the fish house and this year's crop of Sphinxers includes William Wissman, James Romey, and William LeFevre. The athletic situation is well under control with Davis and Buck on the tennis team; Robert Boyd, Ray King, and Robert Merrill among those who wear little and run fast, and Jay McCreary listed among Dean's promising Sophomore netters. Intellect rears its head in the Phi Psi shack in the form of a small group of Phi Eta Sigma men consisting of Rothrock, Westfall, Mitchell, and Harris.

SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON

In 1856 Sigma Alpha Epsilon originated at the University of Alabama. The extension to other universities soon after its founding was cut short by the Civil War, when most of the Southern chapters were forced to disband. At the outbreak of the War, members of the parent chapter who enlisted in the Confederate Army left their secret papers with Miss Lucy Battie. After the War Miss Battie was made a member.

The Indiana Gamma chapter was formed in 1907. It was started by the members of the Dywyki Club, a local organization started in 1902. Among prominent alumni of the local chapter are Ernie Pyle, vagabond reporter for the Scripps-Howard newspapers; Paul Feltus, University trustee; Mickey McCarty, managing editor of the Indianapolis News; and Jesse Given, vice-president of the American Red Cross. Traditions of the chapter are the annual spring Gypsy Dance, freshman hay-ride, and Christmas party for poor children.

Positions on the Union Board, Blue Key, Sphinx Club, Beta Gamma Sigma and Phi Eta Sigma are held by fraternity members. The chapter has presidents of Beta Gamma Sigma, Alpha Chi Sigma, Interfraternity Council, Taps, and Dolphin Club. The Board Walk editor and Arbutus members are in its ranks, as are varsity men in tennis, track, swimming, football, and golf. Faculty representatives are Fowler Harper, Wayne Stackhouse, Chauncey Sanders, C. W. Barker, Robert Waldon, and Lewis Larmore.

SIGMA ALPHA MU

Sidney L. Schecter President
Louis Finkle Secretary
Allan J. Linker Treasurer

Eight students of the College of the City of New York founded Sigma Alpha Mu in 1909, with the purpose of forming a close social and fraternal union of Jewish students of the various universities and reaping the benefits therefrom. In 1911 large scale expansion began. Thirty-six active chapters are now embodied by the fraternity. The local Sigma Zeta chapter was established in 1922 with its house on the corner of Kirkwood and Dunn streets. Removal to the present location took place in 1926.

Leading tradition of the local chapter is the annual exchange of a replica of the "Old Oaken Bucket" in football competition with the chapter at Purdue. Another is Pledge Night when the pledges and actives reverse positions. Prominent alumni of the Indiana University chapter are Hubert Vigran, actor; Harry Brownstein, lawyer; and Abe Streicher and James Abramson, track stars.

On campus the Sigma Alpha Mus are represented by Herbert Backer and Allan Linker in Blue Key, Allan Linker and Manual Rothberg in Phi Eta Sigma, and Louis Finkle and David Straus as lettermen in track and swimming.

SIGMA CHI

Sigma Chi was established at Miami University in 1856, but only after a stormy beginning. It seems that the founders of Sig were originally Dekes. Came the time for a campus election and one of the brother Dekes was running against a gent whom the founders considered more worthy of the position; hence, brother Deke went without their support. The pros and cons were equally divided, so the cons finally withdrew of their own volition and established a fraternity known as Sigma Phi. The Dekes and others were not in favor of the new frat that the cons had formed. The opposition waited until the Sig Phis were all in bed one night and then proceeded to steal all of the records and the ritual of the new lodge. The cons were rather nonplussed at this turn of events, but they immediately formed still another fraternity, this one being known as Sigma Chi. The new organization has existed successfully since 1856 and all signs indicate that they will continue to do so.

Anyone entering the big stone house at the corner of Indiana and Seventh will hear the jingling of keys over the general hubbub. Frank Anderson is a member of Aeons, Union Board, and Blue Key and was Senior Football Manager during the season of 1937. The Sigs Anderson: Frank, Jim Bob, and Bill, are members of Sphinx Club. Ed Hixon is president of the business school C. of C. and is Senior Baseball Manager. Jim Adams is one of the Senior Football Managers for the coming season and Jim Bob Anderson is a junior baseball manager. Evan Stiers and Jim Adams are members of Phi Eta Sigma from Sigma Chi. Athletes include Bill Anderson, Swede Clasen, and Dale Tanner, football; Charles Rickey, basketball; and Charles Odom, Swimming.

SIGMA NU

Dick De Tar President
 Mark McShirley Vice President
 Ed Glover Secretary
 Milt Ferguson Treasurer

The five-armed star of Sigma Nu appeared at Virginia Military Institute in 1869. As to the matter of origin, one can hear widely differing stories. It seems that three members of an organization founded a few years before broke away and set up shop on a plan of their own. The new group went under the name of the Legion of Honor for a short time and then changed to Sigma Nu. The two fraternities are now approximately the same size and live on the same campi without violence. Sigma Nu's first expansion was made in the South. After about twenty chapters had been established there, it moved north with a chapter at Kansas in 1884. The Sunday before Armistice Day is observed nationally by Sigma Nu as a tribute to its three founders.

The Beta Eta chapter of Sigma Nu was established at Indiana in 1892 and had the first fraternity house ever built on this campus.

Sig Nu is well represented in campus activities by several of its members. Varsity athletes include John Olmstead and Russell Sloss, football; and Tom Gwinn, baseball. Milton Ferguson is president of the Advertising Club. Charles Hedge is in Phi Eta Sigma and Robert Ashby is a member of Phi Beta Kappa. Bud Ham and Robert Ashby are among those in Blue Key. Ham is on the Board of Aeons, is president of the Union Board, is in the Sphinx Club, and, in addition, is a member of Dragon's Head, honorary for outstanding campus men. Ed Glover is junior manager of the university wrestling team.

SIGMA PI

Sigma Pi, with the exception of the members of the Miami Triad, is the oldest fraternity originating west of the Alleghenies. The founders did their founding at Vincennes University in 1897. The original chapter granted a charter to Kappa Chi, a local on the Indiana campus, in 1924. The local chapter is Beta of the fraternity.

The annual events roster of Sigma Pi is well filled. The Seniors of each year are feted with a banquet given by the underclassmen. Each spring finds the pledges dipping into the folded green to present the uppers with decorated paddles. A third annual affair of the square cross lads is the banquet for underprivileged children at Christmas.

Sigma Pi includes in the list of the well-known several men, prominent in different fields. Robert Haak plays first string football and wrestles on the varsity team as its heavyweight representative. In addition to athletic prowess, Haak has membership in Sphinx Club. Malcolm Hicks shows his spikes to the opposition as a member of Hayes' track team; John Keeler is among the grunt and grapple artists; Lloyd Kloefler performs on the track and golf teams. Representatives in other fields include Loy Baxter, Editor of the humor rag and Robert Parrish, President of Pi Sigma Alpha. Alumni of prominence include Kenneth Gunning, Dragon's Head, and William Hosler, Blue Key.

THETA CHI

Dave Wilson President
 Ralph Fawcett Vice President
 Don McCammon Secretary
 George Waters Treasurer

Theta Chi was founded at Norwich College in 1856 by two cadets at the school. The fraternity limited its chapters to the East until a short time before the war, believing that a conservative expansion program would best carry out its aims. Theta Chi has the honor of being the first fraternity to observe a Mother's Day, a fraternity holiday distinct from that sponsored by the great race of American florists. The members took their heritage of military things seriously, for over two-thirds of the initiated men in the country served on the allied forces during the war.

The Alpha Iota chapter appeared at Indiana in 1921. Members were taken from Delitheat, a men's local, and from the male half of a literary organization prominent on the campus. This chapter has the distinction of having the first house on the Quad.

Membership in the I. K. L. X. R. P. C. G. F. B. is aided materially by Theta Chi. Robert Lawrence is a member of the Union Board and of Sphinx Club. Herndon Fletcher is a member of Phi Eta Sigma and is one of the managers for Coach Royer's water babies. The Daily Student staff includes Jack Hemstock and James Lampl, both wearers of the snake and X of Theta Chi. George Waters is president of the Accounting Club. Jim Ellenwood and Fred Nye are members of the football squad. Seward Wilshire and Bob Marsh are active in baseball and swimming, respectively. Alpha Chi Sigma men in Theta Chi are George Schmidt and Ralph Fawcett. Kemp Martin and Maury Snyder are officers in the Camera Club.

The first unit of a proposed men's Dormitory Quadrangle, South Hall was opened in the fall of 1924. Housing 94 students, the Hall gives this limited number of I. U. men a taste of college dormitory life. Governed by a representative cabinet, consisting of officers elected semi-annually by the Association, a group selected by the president, and the proctor, South Hall this year continued to hold its place among campus organizations. Last September, Ray Fox was appointed Hall proctor, with Mrs. Frances Broadie remaining as house-mother. Social activities featured two house dances, played by Cocky Robbins and Jack Walts; three radio dances; freshmen exchange dinner with Memorial; annual formal dinner, and the Brown County picnics. The South Hall Corridor, dormitory weekly founded by Robert J. Neff and David B. Richardson, was published by resident journalism students. In intramural athletics, South Hall placed near the top, winning league titles in football and relays. Allison Strauss took the 180-pound wrestling crown. Names added to the Scholarship Plaque included: Phi Eta Sigma, Ermal Geiss, Grant Johnson, George Newlin, Richard Newton, Jack Fairchild; Beta Gamma Sigma, Robert Pearce; All A's, Lawrence Froberg, Stephen G. Savage; Central scholarship, Savage; Sigma Delta Chi scholarship, Richardson. Outstanding activities men were: Savage, Junior Prom committee and Daily Student columnist; Richardson, Sophomore Arbutus assistant, Daily Student track writer, Athletic Review; Jack Lynch, Newman club president; Jack Clark, gold medal winner for best drilled R.O.T.C. cadet; Benjamin Pass, sophomore track manager; Charles McCartney, sophomore basketball manager; John Roberts, Bored Walk; Eugene Burrell, Camera club officer; Allison Strauss, Alpha Chi Sigma; Harold Wesselman, Camera club officer, Alpha Chi Sigma, Alpha Phi Omega.

Alpha Chi Omega was founded at De Pauw in 1885. The founders consisted of five co-eds and Doctor James Campbell, a Beta. The interest of the five women centered chiefly around music; hence, the lyre-shaped pin of Alpha Chi. The purpose, as they stated it, was the "developement of intellectual, social, and moral culture and the promotion of the appreciation of fine art." The national office of the lyre clan sponsored the adoption of one hundred fifty-seven French war orphans in 1916. Alpha Chi was one of the ten founders of the national Panhellenic Council in 1904. A Founders' Day banquet is held on the fifteenth of October every year in honor of the five who started the sorority in 1885.

Along the line of the extra-curricular are several Alpha Chis who stand out in the mad rush. Lois June Myer is a member of Mortar Board. Phi Beta Kappa, the number one brain trust, lists Frances Worrell as one of its members. Betty Lou Fraling and Jeanette Hoover are in the ranks of Pleiades, those girls who wear the airline hostess hats. Bette Ann Tillman, Betty Peckinpaugh, Rosamond Schlaegel, Betty Lou Fraling, Lois June Myer, and Jane Dillin are members of Alpha Lambda Delta. June Townsley is president of the Euclidean Circle. Betty Lou Fraling is a member of Theta Sigma Phi. Jane Dillin is a member of Theta Alpha Phi and is active on the Bored Walk, campus humor rag.

ALPHA DELTA PI

"We Live for One Another" was the motto adopted by the Adelphean Secret Society, founded by twelve women of Wesleyan Female College. The Adelphean Society, established in 1851, is the oldest secret society for women. It was not until 1913 that the society acquired the Greek-letter name Alpha Delta Pi. The organization grants two fellowships in the field of nursery school management and research; the Abigail Davis Student Loan Fund, named in honor of a Southern member, is supported by the sorority.

Beta Alpha, the local chapter of Alpha Delta Pi, was established in 1926. The Indiana chapter holds an annual senior dinner, celebrates the birthday of Abigail Davis and Founder's Day.

Wearers of the A D Pi badge who are wives of faculty members are Mrs. Oscar Winther, Mrs. V. Brown Scott, Mrs. H. T. Smith, Mrs. Arnett, and Mrs. Robert Burke. Prominent in campus activities are Marie Edwards, Phi Beta Kappa and president of Eta Sigma Phi; Mary Hatala, Alpha Lambda Delta; Jane Fix and Mary Bess Owen, Alpha Kappa Delta; and Jennie Posillico, member of the Bored Walk staff, The Daily Student staff, and Theta Sigma Phi.

Ruth Burlingame Treasurer

Alpha Omicron Pi was established in 1897 at Barnard College of Columbia University by four women: Jessie Wallace Hughan, Helen St. Clair Mullen, Stella G. S. Perry, and Elizabeth Heywood Wyman. One of the services rendered by the sorority is for social opportunities in the Kentucky mountains. The sorority has established frontier nursing quarters and sends gifts of clothing and toys at the Thanksgiving and Christmas holiday seasons. Other centers have been established in large cities throughout the United States, where clinics have been equipped and maintained, hospital wards and beds furnished, fresh-air cottages built, or needy families cared for.

Beta Phi chapter was founded on December 8, 1916, in the tower room of the present chapter house. The founding is celebrated today with a formal dinner. Among the traditions of the chapter is the presentation upon initiation of a ruby scholarship pin to the freshman with the highest average. Another tradition is the ducking in the patio pool of girls who accept fraternity pins.

The A O Pi's are represented by their alumnae on campus in the ranks of the faculty in the persons of Mrs. Donald Bowen, Mrs. Robert Royer, Mrs. Ray Borland, Mrs. G. Steiner, and Mrs. M. Lohman, all wives of faculty members. Representing the actives on campus are Margaret Kerling in A.W.S. and Alpha Lambda Delta; Delores Drabing and Harriet Scott in Pleiades; Hazel Parsons in Alpha Lambda Delta; and Louise Rich as president of W.A.A.

CHI OMEGA

Arkansas, home of the immortal Burns, is also the home of a famous Greek lady, known in college circles as Chi Omega. History books tell of four co-eds at the University of Arkansas who had a yen to originate something. Not being quite sure of what or how, they enlisted the aid of Doctor Charles Richardson, a Kappa Sig who was a dentist in the thriving little town of Fayetteville, the university's home address. The five authors, scorning anything small, started Chi Omega with the intention of its becoming a national sorority. Chi Omega has grown from its origin in 1895 to a national organization of ninety-two chapters.

The Indiana chapter of Chi Omega took root out on the quad with several other Greek hopefuls in 1922 and is there to stay, termites notwithstanding. The Theta Beta chapter has several who are prominent in the activities line on the campus. The stars and wings of Pleiades are worn by Marian Sharp and Mary Aldred. Mary Aldred, Dorothy Staley, Eloise Stinchcomb, Evelyn Jontz, and Marian Combs are members of Alpha Lambda Delta. Mary Aldred is the afternoon editor of The Daily Student and Virginia Coverdale serves as columnist for the same. Helen Jane Miles is President of the Freshman Council of A.W.S. The University Sing is under the direction of Jeanette Strayer. The Women's Athletic Association, local number seven-twenty-eight, lists Mary Aldred as one of its board members. Virginia Coverdale and Mary Aldred are members of Theta Sigma Phi.

Thanksgiving eve in 1888 Sarah Ida Shaw and Eleanor Dorcas Pond, together with two classmates, founded Delta Delta Delta at Boston University. It was the seventh society founded with similar aims, and the first organized in New England. Since its founding, the sorority has expanded on a national basis until there are 88 active chapters. During the World War, Tri Delt supported a Foyer in Tours, and after the armistice the group aided a reconstruction school at Guny.

Delta Omicron chapter was founded in Bloomington March 3, 1917, and, as is evident from its long list of girls represented on campus, has prospered ever since. Mortar Board member Delores Emly heads the list of active Tri Delts. Pleiades claims three of the crescent and three star girls; Alpha Lambda Delta, six; and the Junior Chamber of Commerce, one. Three Tri Delts are presidents of campus honoraries: Helen Holmes leads Oceanides, Betty Sigler heads Alpha Lambda Delta, and Katherine Daubenspeck, Chi Gamma.

A Tri Delt tradition familiar to all students is the annual serenade of campus fraternities on the eve of Christmas vacation. The Tri Delts encourage high scholarship by annual awards to the two girls with highest averages of a cup and a plaque.

DELTA GAMMA

It was during that period of changed ideas concerning the education of women, following the Civil War, that Delta Gamma was founded. There were still few universities open to women; however select schools for girls were numerous, and it was in one of these, The Oxford Female Institute, known as the Lewis School at Oxford, Mississippi, that Delta Gamma was founded in January of 1874. By 1883 charters had been granted to eight chapters, all in the South. The first Northern chapter was Phi at Franklin College, Indiana. In 1913 Delta Gamma became international in scope, with its Alpha Gamma chapter at the University of Toronto.

Theta of Delta Gamma appeared on the Indiana University campus two years before the turn of the century, and has been in the foreground in campus activity ever since. This year a wearer of the golden anchor has the distinction of being vice-president of the senior class. Betty Whitlock is also a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Mortar Board, Alpha Kappa Delta, Alpha Lambda Delta; she is vice-president of A.W.S., president of Pleiades, a member of the Y.W.C.A. Cabinet, and a past Junior Editor of the Arbutus staff. Other Alpha Lambda Deltas are Mary Elma Curl, Peg Johnston, Doris Allison, and Virginia Heller and Mary Beth Hunt who are also sophomore Arbutusites, and Helen Hobbs, a Junior Editor of that publication, and an Associate editor of the Folio. Other honoraries which claim DG members are Pi Lambda Theta, the Y.W.C.A. council, and Theta Alpha Phi.

Delta Zeta was founded in Oxford, Ohio, by six Miami University co-eds. Dr. Guy Benton, the University's president and a member of Phi Delta Theta, was made a patron of the sorority because of his aid and interest. In 1922 the early plan of local social service was changed to one of national scope. First object of the organization's support was a school in Knott County, Kentucky. The establishment of an individual school and health clinic for children was made in 1924 at Vest, Kentucky. Delta Zeta ranks among the first national sororities to form an undergraduate loan fund.

In 1909 the Epsilon chapter at Indiana University was granted a charter. Its traditions are a scholarship ring awarded to the freshman with the highest scholastic rating, and a formal senior dinner. Prominent alumni of the local chapter are Mary Dranga Campbell, member of the Commission to Serbia, who received the decoration of St. Lava from the Serbian government; Portia Cooper Groffe, dancer; Miriam Swain, author of children's stories; and Florence Kulin, Congressional Secretary of the National League of Women Voters.

Fern Messmer is the organization's Alpha Lambda Delta representative. Helen Harris is president of the Classical Club, a Y.W.C.A. council member, and an Eta Sigma Phi member. Eleanor Kidwell is a Y.W.C.A. council representative. Mildred Hanson is on the W.A.A. board and in the Eta Sigma Phi.

KAPPA ALPHA THETA

Kappa Alpha Theta was founded at De Pauw in 1870, when bustles were in full swing and De Pauw's notorious regulations were really strict. The four founders, urged by that mysterious desire to create, went into a huddle and emerged with a brain-child bearing a Greek name, thus becoming the authors of the first Greek letter sorority in an American college. After looking over the field, the Alpha chapter of Theta decided that Indiana was the best place to plant the Beta chapter. Hence, the ritual was read to an Indiana group and the Beta chapter started on its career.

Politics seems to be second nature to the Kite house, for votes and appointments roll in one after another in orderly succession. Tangible evidence is seen in the long list of women-that-people-know which Theta has. Mary Janet Hamilton is a member of Mortar Board and is one the staff of the Folio. Ruth Smith and Rosemary Treanor are members of A.W.S. Pleiades lists Ty Walters, Mary Ann Kunkle, and Betty Schrader. The Sluss-streeters have as Alpha Lambda Deltas Rosemary Treanor, Betty Brown, Jean Cookson, and Joan Lybrook. Helen Weatherwax is a member of the editorial staff of the Daily Student and Martha Smith is a member of Pi Lambda Theta. Theta Alpha Phi is aided in things dramatic by Dorthea Vanatta, Martha Smith, and Betty Schrader. Ty Walters has acted as dance director for several of the musical shows which have been presented on the campus. Ruth Smith is a member of the Y.W.C.A. cabinet and the Junior Prom Committee.

The Farmville State College for Women, Farmville, Virginia, is the scene of the founding of Kappa Delta, incorporated under the laws of Virginia in 1902. Four of the students, aided by the governor of the state, originated the sorority. A ward at the Children's Hospital in Richmond has been supported by the sorority as a national project since 1921. The organization boasts a total of sixty-eight active chapters.

1923 marks the founding date of Sigma Upsilon, the Indiana chapter of Kappa Delta. It seems that there were two locals on the campus that had national aspirations. After a little discussion pro and con, a charter was granted to one of the locals. All of the members of that group and some of the members from the other made up the new chapter of Kappa Delta.

Traditions, essential to Greek well-being, are observed by the chapter. Every year there is a trail on a Brown County estate dedicated to the chapter. Founder's Day is observed in common with the rest of the chapters in the organization. An annual state day is held by the chapters in Indiana.

Kappa Deltas in activities include Loretta Dolan, member of Theta Alpha Phi; Darlene Buskirk, student director of Indiana's co-ed band; Ruth Waite and Helen Voigt, sharpshooters on the girl's rifle team (hangover of the Annie Oakley influence in colleges to-day); and Helen Lybrook, member of Delta Omicron.

When four women students at Monmouth College, Monmouth, Illinois, decided to form a Greek letter fraternity "like the men's", Kappa Kappa Gamma was founded. Delta chapter at Indiana university, founded in 1873, is the oldest living chapter of the sorority and represents the second national sorority to be established on the Indiana campus. PHI MU

Betty Hull President
 Mildred Shidler Vice President
 Claire Boden Secretary
 Mona Jane Wilson Treasurer

Three young ladies of Wesleyan, impelled by whatever force impels founders, originated Phi Mu in 1852, thus making it the second oldest sorority in these United States. The original group scorned any simple Greek name that might have been devised and chose instead the impressive title of Philomathean Society. The Society navigated successfully for some fifty-four years under its original name. In 1904 the organization became a national and dropped its poetical cognomen in favor of the Greek Phi Mu.

The national organization has for its project a travelling health clinic which cruises over the state of Georgia, giving medical attention to those in remote places, who would otherwise go unattended.

Alpha Epsilon, the Indiana University chapter, was founded in 1920. The crying need for traditions is well met by the Phi Mu house. Every fall a Dixie Dinner is given, thus bringing out the southern hospitality idea. This is further accentuated by the Southern Ball, a traditional dance that the house gives every spring. The purpose behind all of the southern motif is to bring out the hospitality and friendship in which Phi Mu was conceived by the three Wesleyan girls who formed the original group.

The active chapter goes in for the gray matter in no small way, for it lists Mona Jane Wilson, Janet Dwyer, Harriet Thompson, Alice Kettner, and Louise Hurst in Alpha Lambda Delta.

PHI OMEGA PI

Phi Omega Pi was originated at the University of Nebraska in 1910. Membership was limited at first to members of Eastern Star, but that restriction was dropped in 1927. The Masonic connection of the sorority was retained until 1929, at which time all of the strings were cut. The national organization combined with Sigma Phi Beta in 1933.

Xi, the Indiana chapter of Phi Omega Pi, was founded in 1922. The traditions which the organization observes are legion, to put it mildly. A Rose Dinner is held sometime during the first semester every year. A Pentagon Prom, honoring the five-sided pin, is held every year.

Elta Roll President
Jane Stout Vice President
Doris Katterjohn Secretary
Alice Delp Treasurer

Along the line of activities, Xi is represented by several of its members. Jane Stout is a Mortar Board member. Elizabeth Clark and Josephine Infalt are Phi Beta Kappas and Eunice Runner and Alice Delp are Alpha Lambda Deltas. Marjory Taylor is on the Y.W.C.A. Council. Phi Omega Pi's representatives in W.A.A. are Jane Bottorff, Elta Roll, Caroline Martin, and Alice Delp. Marjory Taylor is a member of the French Club. Elta Roll is in Oceanides, the ladies' splash society, and is in the Dauber's Club. The Home Economics Club lists Jane Stout, Marjory Taylor, Elta Roll, and Bonnie May Bryant from Phi Omega Pi. Jane Stout is the President of the Y.W.C.A.

Pi Phi made its first appearance at Monmouth College in 1867. Eleven co-eds organized the I. C. Sorosis, which grew steadily from its date of origin. After sixteen years under its original name, the group adopted the sub-title of Pi Beta Phi. The Greek name proved popular and was adopted permanently in 1888. The following year the sorority was incorporated under the laws of Illinois, thus becoming the first national collegiate sorority.

Beta of Indiana appeared on the I. U. campus in 1893 and has been in continuous existence ever since that date. The national organization established the Gatlinburg Settlement School of Tennessee in 1919 as a memorial to the founders of the old I. C. Sorosis. Pi Beta Phi furthers education by contributing from time to time to worthy educational groups.

A flair for politics and activities puts Pi Phi well toward the front in the extra-curricular field. There are those who say that votes and points are more dear to the Arrow house than life itself. Elizabeth May is in the lead as vice-president of Mortar Board. Pleiades claims the interest of two Pi Phi's and Alpha Lambda Delta eight. Peggy Leininger represents the house on the Arbutus Junior staff; three sophomores are on the assistant staff of the yearbook. Caroline Imel is the assistant editor of the Freshman Handbook.

SIGMA KAPPA

Colby College became coeducational to the extent of five co-eds in 1874. Legend has it that the first five got together as soon as they had unpacked and decided that it was high time for them to found something. After due consideration, the quintet popped up with Sigma Kappa, the first sorority to be founded in New England.

The present national organization maintains two social workers at the Maine Seacoast Mission as a tribute to the five founders. The two workers thus supported provide educational opportunities for more than sixty scattered communities along the New England seacoast. This was adopted as the official philanthropy of the sorority in 1918, although it had been maintained several years previous to this date.

The Tau chapter was established at Indiana in 1918. This Greek war-baby has, among other things, an excellent set of traditions. The chapter sends gifts to children every Christmas through the Maine Seacoast Mission. Locally, the annual events include a Mother's and Daughter's banquet held at Thanksgiving and Christmas every year and a Parent's banquet every Mother's Day.

Sigma Kappa is represented in Alpha Lambda Delta by Lois Greenwood and Jean Robinson. Marietta Conklin is a member of the cabinet of Y.W.C.A. Lois Greenwood is the secretary of the W.A.A. board.

Annual traditions are an open house for all Jewish students on campus and a tea for all local Jewish co-eds. The chapter is represented in Alpha Lambda Delta by Mary Efroymsen. A very recent step in the development of the young sorority was its acquisition this year of a chapter house.

Sigma Phi Upsilon is the youngest of campus social groups as well as being the only organization for Jewish women. It is local in scope, but is looking forward to the time in the not-too-distant future when it may be successful in obtaining affiliation with a national group.

Ten co-eds who saw the need for a Jewish sorority at Indiana University founded Sigma Phi Upsilon in 1934. They were aided greatly by Dean Agnes E. Wells in their establishment of the seventeenth local sorority. Their constitution was drafted with the aid of the Panhellenic constitution.

ZETA TAU ALPHA

Zeta Tau Alpha was founded at Virginia State Teacher's College in 1898. The originators decided to go other founders one better—rather than giving their brain child a Greek name which someone might possibly understand, they named it "???". The uninitiate, quite properly mystified, called it the "Three Question Marks" for several years. The organization, desiring something more tangible, later changed the name to Zeta Tau Alpha. The sorority, one of the first to appear in the south, stayed in that territory exclusively for several years, not embracing the Yankees for sometime. ZTA's love of the old south is seen in the health center that they maintain in Currin Valley, Virginia. The purpose of this center is to minister to the mountaineers that it can get in its clutches.

The Indiana chapter, Alpha Xi, was established in 1922. It is an annual custom of the sorority to present Zeta rings to the outgoing Seniors each spring.

Prominent alumni of this chapter include Mrs. Bernard Gavit, Mrs. Ford P. Hall, and Miss Elizabeth Lynch.

Among the ladies-in-the-swim ZTA includes Jane Fenn, member of Mortar Board, Dorine Caviness and Elfreda Grande, members of Pleiades, and Eleanor Nichols and Marian Failing, members of Alpha Lambda Delta.

One of the most impressive buildings on the university campus is Memorial Hall, dormitory for women. It was planned as a replica of an old medieval castle and, situated as it is on a small wooded knob, it presents an unusual contrast to the modern structures which surround it. Memorial is divided into an East and a West Wing, each wing housing one-hundred girls. Miss Florence Bond is head social director of Memorial and Forest Halls. Miss Marguerite Keller is social director of one wing and, during Miss Bond's absence, Miss Mary Crawford serves in a similar capacity in the other wing.

Two dances, a winter and spring formal, are sponsored each year. Each wing is a separate organization, the East Wing giving an annual May Day celebration and electing a May Day Queen, and the West Wing sponsoring an Easter egg roll and annual Breakfast Party. Various members of the faculty are entertained throughout the year. Both wings join forces in the fall of each year to give a formal dinner celebrating the building of the dormitory. Miss Agnes E. Wells, dean of women, and the graduating seniors of Memorial are guests of honor, and each senior is given a ring by Memorial undergraduates.

One-hundred and forty girls are housed in Forest Hall, the new dormitory for women. Although built in 1936 and used for the past two years, the building was not considered complete until this year, when the university landscaped the surrounding grounds and made it accessible without the use of hip boots. Its system of operation is co-operative in character. Among its activities are winter and spring formal dances, tea dances, an annual hayride and a circus party. Miss Maud Jones is the social director.

BOARD OF AEONS

Ray Fox President

Earl Hoff Secretary

About once each year, usually immediately preceding the Junior Prom Queen election, there is a long, important article in the Daily Student that starts out in the following manner: "At a meeting of the Board of Aeons, highest student tribunal, it was decided that the election rules are to be" The highest student tribunal has spoken! Ever since the founding of this organization, its members have been able to assist by suggestion in the administration directed toward student affairs. When one hears that a friend of his has been chosen as a member of the Board of Aeons, one knows immediately that said friend has shown exceptional leadership on campus or exceptional scholarship. The Board submits nominations for membership to the president of the University, who in turn appoints the members.

The Board of Aeons assists in the formulation of plans and policies fair and beneficial to both the administration and the student body, thus fulfilling its purpose, which is to serve as a connecting link between the two. In order to maintain constant mediation, meetings are held each Monday. One of the activities of the group this year was the changing of the rules for election of the Junior Prom Queen. They now provide that she be chosen by Junior men only, and that their vote is final. That leaves for the Prom Committee only the planning for the dance. In other words, the name of "highest student tribunal" is not merely an empty title. It is backed by an effective organization.

MORTAR BOARD

Elizabeth May		Vice President

Helen Van Dacter		Treasurer
Dorothy Smith		Historian
Lois June Myer		Alumni Secretary
Betty Whitlock		Sergeant-at-Arms

The climax of extra-curricular activities for women is Mortar Board. Capped at the Junior-Senior Luncheon for Women on Foundation Day, the candidates are chosen by members of the previous year's organization with the approval of the faculty adviser, on a basis of scholarship, leadership, and service. The Indiana chapter of this national organization was founded in 1921 under the guidance of Dean Agnes E. Wells, who helped to frame the national constitution of Mortar Board when it was founded in 1918.

The purpose of the group is to provide for the co-operation between senior honorary societies for women; to promote college loyalty; to advance the spirit of service and fellowship among university women; to maintain a high standard of scholarship; to recognize and encourage leadership; and to stimulate and develop a finer type of college woman.

Throughout the year the organization sponsors the Dames Ball, the awarding of three tuition scholarships, and the sale of Phillips Brooks calendars. Other projects traditional with Mortar Board are the Freshman Recognition List, the tutoring list, and the old-clothes drive for needy women. Members serve as student counsellors during orientation week.

UNION BOARD

Edwin Ham President
Robert Masters Vice President
Frank Anderson Secretary
J. E. Patrick Treasurer

"To promote the interests of Indiana University and its students" is the purpose John M. Whittenberger was trying to fulfill by founding the Indiana Union in 1909. His organization was the result of a need for a group designed for the discussion and solution of student problems. Little did John Whittenberger know that in 1932 his Union was to have grown to such an extent as to warrant the construction of the Memorial Union Building. Since its erection, the Union has been able to fulfill even more efficiently the purpose for which it was founded.

Every man student is automatically a member of the Indiana Union, but the Union Board is the group that does most toward carrying out the program of the Union. This Board is composed of thirteen members from the student body, two faculty members, one alumnus, and one trustee. All male students are eligible for election to Union Board. Six members are chosen on the merit system; three are elected from the student body; three are "holdovers" from the preceding year's Board. The Union publishes a pamphlet which is devoted almost entirely to them. The more outstanding activities are the Union-A.W.S. dances, bi-monthly open forums, the direction and operation of the Union Building, the Pow Wow, the Grid-Graph, pep sessions, national billiard tournaments, musical programs, card-cheering sections, and the appointment of yell leaders.

ASSOCIATION OF WOMEN STUDENTS

Christine Carlson President
Betty Whitlock Vice President
Margaret Thompson Secretary
Elizabeth Rice Treasurer

Older than its corresponding male organization, if not in name, at least in spirit, is the Association of Women Students. In 1895, the Women's League was founded, soon to be replaced by the Women's Self-Government Association. In 1920, A.W.S. evolved from the two former organizations. Like the Indiana Union for men, A.W.S. includes on its roster every woman student in the university. However, most of the activity is governed by the smaller group, A.W.S. Council. This Council is composed of five officers and eight members, representing organized and unorganized sophomore, junior, and senior women. Any woman may apply for a position on Council, provided she has enough activity points. A selection committee then draws up a slate for the election of all the members of the board with the single exception of the social chairman, who is appointed by the committee.

A.W.S. keeps very active in fulfilling its purpose of regulating all matters pertaining to the student life of its members, which matters do not fall under the jurisdiction of the faculty; and promoting and maintaining the highest standards of University life. Like those of Union Board, the activities of A.W.S. are far too numerous to be listed, but some of the outstanding ones can be given here. They include Union-A.W.S. dances, a Halloween party for all university women, a Christmas party for Bloomington's under-privileged children, two fifty dollars scholarships for outstanding junior women, and the maintenance of a $1,000 loan fund.

DRAGON'S HEAD

J. Earle Roose President
Bud Ham Vice President
Silas Kivett Secretary
Jick Kenderdine Treasurer

One of the activity-less activities is Dragon's Head. Perhaps it is just as well that it is an inactive organization, because to become a member, a man has to be in so many other honoraries that he just hasn't time to be active in anything else. Dragon's Head is purely honorary. It appeared on the Indiana campus in 1933. The membership is limited to senior men only, and only those senior men who have excelled in extracurricular activities. Dragon's Head is one honorary which will not take a man just because he has a very good friend who was a rod before him. Of course that helps put one in such a position as will make him eligible for this honorary, but to be a member, a senior man must have attained a certain rank or office in certain extracurricular activities. To be more specific he must be a captain of a major athletic team, editor or other executive officer of a major publication, or president of one of several organizations.

Membership is limited to eight men a year, and every member is an officer. After all, all the members are such Big Men on Campus that not one of them could be slighted by not having an office. There are only two possible remedies for this: one would be not to have any officers; the other would be to have just as many members as there should be offices, and let each member fill one. This latter is the plan carried out by Dragon's Head. Four men are inducted at the induction banquet each spring and four more each fall. The four officers are chosen from the ranks of the new members. Thus everyone is satisfied.

BLUE KEY

Silas Kivet President
Jimmy Cathcart Vice President
Jim Bob Herdrich Secretary-Treasurer

At the University of Florida in 1924, Major Bert C. Riley founded Blue Key, national honor fraternity, which was to become an emblem of true distinction. It was a result of a local effort to organize the students of that university to give members of the state legislature a rousing welcome to the Florida campus. It became national in 1925. The local chapter was founded in 1929. Blue Key aims to recognize outstanding qualities in character, scholarship, student activities, leadership, and service to justify its existence. It is committed to co-operate with the faculty; to study campus problems, and to promote the interests of the institutions where it has chapters. Members are selected from juniors or seniors having obtained one hundred points by participation in extra-curricular activities, a scholarship credit point average not less than 1.3, and the endorsement of the President of the University. Pledges are announced at Homecoming and on Foundation Day. Blue Key is prominent in campus activities, sponsoring the sale of athletic yearbooks each fall and providing for the burial of "ole Jawn Purdue" in the annual pep-session the evening previous to the Indiana-Purdue football game. The Blue Key Victory Ball is sponsored each year by the fraternity. The Blue Key Freshmen Recognition Lists honors outstanding freshmen each year. Several other distinctive activities are to be credited to the organization. This year Blue Key assisted with the state high school wrestling tournament. Luncheon meetings are held every other Thursday.

SPHINX CLUB

Fred Hanna President

Jim Bob Herdrich Secretary-Treasurer

Sphinx Club can well be called a "social honorary", whatever sort of honorary that may be. It justifies its existence by being useful to the University on occasion. For example, each year the organization offers a hundred dollar scholarship with the proceeds of an annual informal dance. It increases the attendance of the first conference football and basketball games by announcing new pledges on those occasions. Then it puts to good use the Well House by holding the pledge ceremony there. It encourages freshman activity by awarding trophies to the fraternity and sorority with the best decorations for Homecoming. The freshmen do the decorating. Another service is the joining of the wearers of the white hats of Sphinx Club with the wearers of the blue hats of Pleiades in ushering at the annual Pow Wow.

Other than being a junior in school, all one has to do to be elected to Sphinx Club is to be a "good fellow". This is supposed to fit in with the "social honorary" idea. The purpose which the good fellows are striving to fulfill is to carry on and promote good fellowship among students of the University and render any assistance it can to the administration of the school. The services have already been enumerated; for the promotion of good fellowship, the club sponsors a formal banquet for initiates, a closed spring informal dance, and the well-known Table Waiters' Ball.

PLEIADES

Betty Whitlock President
Peggy Failing Vice President
Hortense Zaring Secretary
Betty Lou Fraling Treasurer

Pleiades is for women what Sphinx Club is for men. They both are those strange things among organizations known as "social honoraries". They both offer scholarships and usher at the Pow Wow. However, they do differ in detail. Whereas a man must be a "good fellow" to belong to the Sphinx Club, a woman must be "socially prominent" to belong to Pleiades. She must also be an upperclassman active in campus affairs. Of the twenty-five possible members each year, at least half are the winners of last year's beauty contest and the candidates for next year's Prom Queen. The Prom idea is further carried out by the announcement of next year's members at the Prom each spring. The fall pledges are announced at the above-mentioned Pow Wow.

Each month the group looks over prospects for next year by dining at a different sorority house. In addition to this, the girls have monthly luncheons and business meetings. This year among those activities planned at all the meetings were the Premier, the Blue Hat Hop, and the private dance for members and guests at the Pi Beta Phi house. The Hollywood Premier at the Princess Theatre was an excellent display of University talent. All screen personalities were represented from the three Marx brothers to Deanna Durbin (with the single omission of Mickey Mouse and his side-kick Snow White). The Old Maestro Jimmy (Swing-It) Cathcart presided. These social honoraries seem to be pretty active and useful creations after all.

The fraternities got together in 1909 and decided to co-operate; thus the Interfraternity Conference began. On the I. U. campus, representatives of each fraternity form the Interfraternity Council. The representative is supposedly the president of the house, but if he is too busy, he can appoint another member as representative. Activity of the national organization is confined to the furtherance of co-operation, and does not include the legislative control of fraternities. However, just to be different, the group on this campus makes rules for rush to be obeyed by all members of the fraternities represented.

According to the constitution, the purpose is: "Discussion of questions of mutual interest and the presenting to the fraternities represented, of such recommendations as the Conference shall deem wise, it being understood that the functions of such Conference shall be purely advisory". The lads at I. U. do more than fulfill their purpose; they further interfraternity co-operation by their regular Tuesday night exchange dinners. Four men from each house sup at a house other than their own. In this way the boys get acquainted, and everyone knows it is easier to co-operate with people one knows than with people one does not.

PANHELLENIC COUNCIL

Elizabeth May President

Mary Beth Hunt Secretary-Treasurer

The Panhellenic Council is an organization of organizations for the purpose of perpetuating organizations. Sororities, in order to hold membership, must list at least five chapters nationally. One member from each house attends meetings and adds her little bit for the good and advancement of dear old Zeta Zeta Phi. The purpose of it all, as formally stated, is "To maintain fraternity life and inter-fraternity relationship; co-operate with college authorities; to be a forum for discussion of questions of interest to the college and fraternity world". This group has for a national organization the National Panhellenic Congress. Along the lines of purposes and intentions, Panhell lists the all-important matter of sorority rushing rules. It seems that all of the friendly rivals get together each spring and map out a plan of fair play whereby each is to run the fall rush. The results of all this are of doubtful virtue, to say the least, but one must give the Panhellers credit for an excellent set of intentions. Another stated purpose which the organization backs is that of creating better spirit among the sororities of the campus. One must not pay too much attention to this spirit at certain times, such as Prom elections and other political contests, but to all intents and purposes, the Panhellenic Council makes the Greek ladies more friendly toward each other. The organization sponsors a banquet honoring individuals and houses that have kept well up the line in the matter of scholarship.

ALPHA LAMBDA DELTA

Elizabeth Sigler President
 Jean Glenn Vice President
 Rosemary Treanor Secretary
 Rosamond Schlaegel Treasurer

The freshman honorary for women that corresponds to Phi Eta Sigma for men is Alpha Lambda Delta. Dean Maria Leonard and Assistant Dean Gladys Pennington of the University of Illinois were worried about the lack of interest in scholarship, characteristic particularly of freshmen, and conceived the idea of an honorary organization for the purpose of stimulating interest. In 1924 then, they founded Alpha Lambda Delta to interest freshman women in intellectual living, and to inspire them to study for the love of studying. In 1926, other colleges that were members of the Association of American Universities were invited to form chapters of Alpha Lambda Delta, and thus the group became national. Indiana founded a chapter in 1931.

Common to all chapters of Alpha Lam is the purpose: Stimulus for study and high scholarship, and reward for real interest in things intellectual. The national requirements for admission are rather general, requiring a high scholastic average of any freshman woman with the normal schedule of hours. The Indiana chapter requires an average of B-plus of freshman women carrying fifteen hours or more. A woman is eligible at the end of her first semester if she has attained the required average or at the end of her second semester if she has raised her average for the entire year to a B-plus. Last year the Indiana chapter started an annual banquet with Phi Eta Sigma following spring initiation.

Those freshmen who have attained a scholastic average of B plus or higher are eligible for membership in Phi Eta Sigma, national freshman scholastic society. The chapter at Indiana University was chartered in 1930 to promote a higher standard of learning and to encourage high scholastic attainment among freshman men.

The "Counsellor's Corps", formed last year by the organization, has continued with its success. Its purpose is to aid those freshmen who desire its assistance. Upperclassmen who have proved successful in scholastic attainment have made a study of study habits and methods of application. Its efforts have shown great possibilities in the past and increasing success is predicated for it in succeeding years. Among those upperclassmen who have been most active in this work are Robert Sturgeon, Al Higdon, Bill Mayse, Elmer Koch, Bob Waters, Wilbur Harrison, and Forrest La Follette.

Once each fall the organization sponsors a freshmen smoker for new men in the university who come from high school with A averages. The purpose of this meeting is to encourage the continuance of their high scholarship and to provide an incentive for its attainment. Informal discussions help to prepare the new student for orientating himself to college work. A joint banquet with Alpha Lambda Delta is held each spring for incoming members of both organizations.

Sigma Delta Chi, the Greek honorary for those poor, deluded souls who work on the daily rags, had its origin at DePauw University in 1909. Mr. Baird tells us that there was a society known as the University Press Club which felt the desire to go Greek in a big way. After long and serious consideration, the lads picked on three letters. Sigma Delta Chi as a name for their worthy group.

Members are chosen from seniors and juniors and from last semester sophomores. The hurdle which members have to clear consists of the following: "Prospects must give evidence of intellectual ability in the field of journalism and must have a definite intention of following journalism as a profession". There are those who doubt seriously if there is such a thing as intellectual ability mixed in with journalism of the every day sort, but that point is not one to settle here. The fact remains that such is one of the requirements as laid down by Sigma Delta Chi.

The annual Blanket Hop is sponsored by SDX every year for the purpose of buying "I" blankets for the graduating seniors who played on the football team. A two-hundred dollar scholarship is given annually to the sophomore who shows the greatest promise as a journalist. The Scribble Society sponsors a Gridiron Banquet every year that is modeled after the Washington Press Club dinner. Another project that this organization backs is the Annual State High School Newspaper Contest. Encouragement to struggling journalists is provided by the gift of books each month to the writers on the Daily Student Staff who have shown special merit in their fields. Weekly meetings are held by SDX for the purpose of discussing things journalistic.

There is one organization on campus which, no matter how honorary it may be, is still feared secretly deep down in the heart of each co-ed. This organization is the journalistic honorary for women, Theta Sigma Phi. Founded at the University of Washington, April 8, 1909, Delta chapter at Indiana first began to sizzle in the phrying pan in 1913. Ever since then it has been doing its best to recognize ability among women students specializing in journalism. Besides being outstanding in journalism, to become a member of the honorable cooking school, a woman must intend to make journalism her profession.

Besides the cooking school project this year, this organization attended to matters of a more serious nature. For example, the girls published an edition of the Indiana Daily Student. Besides, they sponsored their annual Matrix Table, this year in honor of Dorothy Canfield Fisher. Outstanding women students are issued invitations to Matrix Table. In fact, with a few exceptions of special guests at the session of the cooking school, the guest list for both these affairs strictly for women is identical. But to return to the original subject: every co-ed secretly fears the annual Razz Banquet given by Theta Sigma Phi. Most of them go through morbid curiosity, although everyone knows that they can't possibly have something "on" every guest. This year an uninvited guest, in the person of Hugh Dillin, had to be forcibly removed. And still, in spite of every precaution, the banquet had a writeup in the Student the next day. After the food had been all dished up, Doris Seward returned the Razz, and was presented with a ring for being the outstanding senior woman. Those Theta Sigma Phi's certainly were noble to honor her after the way she had cooked them!

An organization which offers great variety of interest, and activity is the Young Women's Christian Association. In 1887 it all began. Men and women banded together in that year under the name Joint Christian Association. Just four years later, however, the organization underwent a very natural transition. The result was the existence of two organizations where formerly only one had been: the Y.M.C.A. and the Y.W.C.A. had been formed on the Indiana campus. The women's branch of this venerable organization was declared open to all University co-eds who subscribe to the principles of the association. Most of the I. U. co-eds evidently do, since the Y.W. has a large membership, probably larger than any other group on campus.

The Y.W. has as its purpose the ideal to make possible a laboratory where group life and personal relationships may, in method, content, and in significance, be religious in the highest sense of the word. In keeping with this purpose, Y.W. is highly organized into interest and service groups. There are two social service groups, the one for service to the campus and the other for service to the community. As part of the function of the latter, members interested organize clubs in the grade schools out in town where the principles of the parent association are practiced. An example of interest group promoted by Y.W. is the Riding Group. At the helm is the Y.W.C.A. cabinet which directs all "Y" activities. These activities include a Freshman picnic and frolic; Rose and Holly days; regular vesper services; and in conjunction with the group's male counterpart, an All-University sing each May.

COSMOPOLITAN CLUB

To prove that America, the United States in particular, is the melting pot of the world, Indiana has a chapter of the national organization known as the Association of Cosmopolitan Clubs. Indiana first was introduced to the Cosmopolitan Club in 1916 when an associate chapter was formed. In 1918, then, it became an active chapter of the national organization. This club does much toward bringing together the foreign-born students on campus into one group for their social benefit and fellowship. All foreign-born students are invited to membership, as are foreign-born faculty members. Other students in the university who are interested may be elected to membership, as may interested faculty members. In order that the purpose of the organization may not be defeated, care is taken to prevent the number of American-born students from being larger than that of the foreign-born.

This polygenetic group has for its purpose the furtherance of international fellowship, the promotion of social life for foreign-born students, and the promotion of the spirit of cosmopolitanism. In keeping with this purpose the group often has guest speakers at the meetings who talk on the political, economical, or social trends in other countries in the world. Music, vocal and instrumental, provides entertainment as well as games. Discussion among members is encouraged by the meetings. This year the club presided at the Court of Honor for Boy Scout promotion. In these ways, members are given an opportunity to broaden their knowledge and interests in foreign countries.

ALPHA PHI OMEGA

Boy Scouts who come to college are given an opportunity to continue their "good deed every day" through the means of the scouting honorary, Alpha Phi Omega. The organization has the sanction of the national council of the Boy Scouts of America; in fact, its purpose is to prolong the scouting activity through college days. Frank Horton and thirteen other undergraduates at Lafayette College one fine day in 1929 decided that they needed to continue the youth movement, and so began Alpha Phi Omega. Since they were former members of the Boy Scouts, they restricted their membership to boys previously affiliated with that group, either as scouts or scout leaders.

Activities of Alpha Phi Omega in Bloomington start in September with a Boy Scout dance, and wound up this year in May with the group's entertaining two hundred Eagle Scouts from all over the state. During the year the members keep busy by rounding up enough money for the two scholarships offered each year to two Eagle Scouts, and by finding good deeds enough for all the members of the troop of advanced scouts from Bloomington, a group sponsored by the Scouting Honorary.

Company F, second regiment of Scabbard and Blade, national honorary military fraternity, was founded at Indiana University in 1920. The organization is open to all men enrolled in Advanced R.O.T.C. and who are interested in military training, whose academic and military grades are of high quality, and who are likely to make the best officers. The national fraternity was founded at the University of Wisconsin in 1904 by senior officers in the cadet corps.

Company F at Indiana University conducts an election annually to choose five Co-ed Sponsors for the year. The election is undoubtedly the most inauspicious on the campus, unaccompanied by the usual election ballyhoo and absolutely devoid of promiscuous promising. Still, all in all, it manages to be a spirited election. Scabbard and Blade, aside from its electioneering activities, aims to preserve and develop the essential qualities of good and efficient officers, to unite more closely the military departments of various universities, and to spread intelligent information concerning the military requirements of our country.

In the selection of men for membership in the organization, the recommendation of military faculty members are considered, as well as the academic, military, and campus activities of aspirants. Among the more prominent activities of Scabbard and Blade are the Corps Smoker, open to juniors and seniors enrolled in military, assisting the band in sponsoring the Band Benefit Ball, giving the Military Ball, cadet officers' dinner party and dance, and taking part in several other functions for men in R.O.T.C.

Theta Alpha Phi, honorary emoting society for the Hamlets and the Romeos, was founded at Indiana University on St. Valentine's Day of 1922. Ten Indiana University students who were interested in dramatics and grease paint established Alpha chapter for the purpose of increasing dramatic interest, stimulating creativeness, and fostering artistic achievement in all of the allied arts and crafts of the theatre.

For membership in the society, a student's scholastic standing must be above average, he must have completed one year of university work, and must have gained fifty points in various types of Theatre activities, including acting, technical assistance, business management, and publicity. Theta Alpha Phi projects include sponsorship of Taps, junior dramatic organization which furnishes material for University Theatre productions. It selects each year the outstanding actor or actress on the campus for special recognition. Members attempt to discover other campus talent for University Theatre productions. The organization also assists in sponsoring the State Drama Conference, held annually on the campus.

In the spring of each school year, Theta Alpha Phi also presents the annual Cabaret Show and Dance, one of the outstanding social functions of the year. In the fall, the group promotes the season ticket sales of the University Theatre. Theta Alpha Phi assisted this year in the revival of the Jordan River Revue, well known campus musical production. Regular meetings are held bi-monthly on Sunday evenings. To one of these meetings, members of Taps are invited.

The Student Building was the scene of great activity in 1913 when the athletic department decided to form the Indiana chapter of the Women's Athletic Association. Miss Roddy, a member of the Department of Physical Education for Women, was the first sponsor of this group. The girls were fired with the ambition to promote physical efficiency, scholarship, and good fellowship by promoting interest in physical activities among the young women of the University. They made it open to all undergraduate women who succeed in making one class team or passing tests in two different activities.

At the present time, the Women's Athletic Association is very active in following the start given it by its ambitious founders. The group awards numerals and I. U. monograms to outstanding members. Then each year a Senior Banquet marks the award to one of these outstanding members of the Darwin Maxwell medal. The winner must be an undergraduate bearer of a monogram who has proved her ability along other lines. Two meetings a year are devoted to the activities of the men. At one, the year's football rules are explained to the girls, and at the other, the basketball rules are presented. Another activity of the club is the annual house party in Brown County in honor of the old and new officers and board members, and the faculty advisers. Thus it is seen that the activity in the Student Building in 1913 has not been interrupted.

The Home Economics Club, open to all majoring or minoring in home economics, was founded on the Indiana campus to promote a closer fellowship between persons interested in the general subject of home economics and in all its allied fields and to discuss subjects of mutual interest in regular meetings. The club has shown marked success in its years of existence on the campus, and the purposes set out upon its organization have materialized in deserving fashion. The group maintains a loan fund for deserving students in the department of home economics. Other activities of the group include monthly meetings for the informal discussion of problems arising from textbooks and practical studies, a bridge party and style show in the spring of each year, rummage sales, and an annual Christmas party.

Oklahoma State College heard some musical activity in 1919 when a group of band members banded together to form the now national organization Kappa Kappa Psi. It was not until 1923 that national expansion began. Scott P. Squyres, national prexy at the time, was filled with the dream of a large musical organization that would have chapters in schools of music the country over. Encouraged by Oscar J. Lehrer, he began his expansion campaign, and soon there were groups of Kappa Kappa Psi here, there, and everywhere. They were all, and still are, striving to encourage good fellowship, leadership, scholarship, and musical ability among college band members.

Requirements for membership in the Indiana chapter are too complicated for one not musically inclined to understand, but the general idea is that college band members are eligible after they have shown an inclination toward high scholarship, musical ability, marching ability, and a good attitude. Those men who have already passed all the requirements on this campus form an active group. First of all, they are a service fraternity at the command of the military department. Then each year they stage a band Smoker, a band Picnic, an inter-band football game, and this year they even added an annual band Alumni Banquet to be held following the Purdue football game. Just to keep from becoming idle, the group plans receptions for visiting bands. They still have time to practice and stay in school, too!

In the year 1891, two organizations grew out of one. The Joint Christian Association had been formed in 1887, more than fifty years ago. The two offsprings of that association are still enjoying health and prosperity, and promise to enjoy a much longer life than they already have. These two are the Y.W.C.A. and the Y.M.C.A. Both of these groups were founded with almost identical purposes and restrictions of membership. The Y.M. exists to render service to students, to Bloomington, and to the surrounding territory. It is open to all men on campus who show an interest in its program and purposes and a willingness to serve.

The Y.M. is one up on the Y.W. in that it has men for members. Ordinarily this would hardly be an advantage, but it gives the Y.M. the privilege of publishing the Indiana University Red Book and the Freshman Guide. The "Y" office in the Union Building serves many purposes. It maintains an employment service and room information bureau there. Like the "Y" for women, the "Y" for men fetes the freshmen each year with a Mixer. It co-operates with the former organization in sponsoring the All-University Sing every May, as well as the All-University Parties. These parties are open to all students, and certainly afford a variety of entertainment. Following a program of campus talent (never complete without a few accordion selections) the guests push aside their chairs and dance with everyone there. Or if they prefer not to dance, they may play Monopoly or Pick-Up-Sticks in the East Parlors of the Student Building. In a more serious vein, the Y.M.C.A. offers vesper services regularly.

Over in Business Administration there are honoraries for members of that school only, and the one for sophomore men is Alpha Kappa Psi. In 1904, a group known as the "Brooklyn Four" originated a fraternity which was the first professional fraternity in commerce. All this took place at the School of Commerce, Accounts, and Finance at New York University. Six other men helped them with their original plan, and are recognized as founders. In 1905, these ten men succeeded in having the club incorporated under the state laws of New York. Their avowed purpose was "to further the individual welfare of members, foster scientific research in the commercial field, to educate the public to appreciate and demand higher ideals therein, and to promote courses leading to degrees in Business Administration in collegiate rank institutions".

The Indiana chapter of this commercial honorary was founded in 1927. To become a member, a sophomore man must first of all have a 1.5 scholastic average. Then if he can pass through the organization by unanimous consent, he's in. On the I. U. campus, this group of 1.5 boys is very active. Each year they encourage professional speakers to visit the campus. In addition to this, they sponsor an annual industrial tour, and promote a research project in their School of Business Administration.

OMICRON DELTA

Kathryn Daubenspeck President
Wanda Sventanoff Vice President
Martha Jean Castor Secretary
Ruth Harmeier Treasurer

That youth holds the record for great activity cannot be doubted. It is further indicated by the newest honorary on the Indiana campus. Delta Omicron was founded in the fall of the current school year by Kathryn Daubenspeck, a senior in the School of Business Administration. She and a group of junior and senior women in that school organized a Greek letter sorority for the purpose of developing better business and professional women. Sponsored by Mrs. Bray and Miss Westenhaver of the business school and Miss Kirby, the group has been leading a very active existence since its founding. They have gone a long way toward achieving their purpose, to promote social and professional association among business women.

Entertaining the faculty of the business school was the only social activity undertaken this year. However, the group plans to entertain the freshman and sophomore women in their school and to sponsor outside speakers to give them information on the conditions for women in business at the present time. The big activity of the year has been the contest for the best-groomed women in business school. Elizabeth Davies, senior, was announced winner of first place Tuesday, April 19. Winner of second place was Dorothea Appelgate, and those tied for third were Kathryn Daubenspeck, Margaret Louise Benbow, Wanda Sventanoff, and Georgia Ryan. That contest will undoubtedly finish activity for the year 1937-38 for the young honorary Delta Omicron, because after that school of Business Administration starts giving finals, the girls will be kept busy.

SKELETON CLUB

Phil Rothrock President
 Mais Ferrell Vice President
 James Davis Secretary
 Bill Beaty Treasurer

Before the new med school was added to the Indiana campus, the freshmen meds used to vie with the laws, vocally. They had some obscene yells, slightly outworn, which acclaimed their superiority to said laws. It is not for the Arbutus to decide which group is the better, but the med greenies were one up on the laws in that they looked important. They looked important because they all wore white coats. Those white coats showed that they were freshmen in med school and were therefore members of the Skeleton club.

All freshman medical students attain membership in this eerie-sounding organization automatically. The organization knows that its members will be rivals soon enough, so it tries to promote friendship among medical students. The merit system, rather recently inaugurated, is used in selecting officers for the Skeleton club. In order to give the boys something to think about in their spare time, the club presents nationally known medical authorities from time to time.

PERSHING RIFLES

Joseph D'Enbeau Captain
Lowell Green 1st Lieutenant
James Newkirk 2nd Lieutenant
Ralph Murray 2nd Lieutenant
Leslie Barlett 1st Sergeant

For those men enrolled in basic military training who find their interest exceeding the limits of regular military classes and four o'clock reviews, the department provides Pershing Rifles, national military fraternity. The now famous World War general, John J. Pershing, then a second lieutenant in the United States Army and newly assigned instructor in military science and tactics at the University of Nebraska, fostered the beginning of the organization. It assembled first in 1892, being then known as Varsity Rifles. In 1894, the name was changed to Pershing Rifles as a tribute to the organizer. It is the oldest American military fraternity, being the only one whose founding dates back into the 19th Century.

Second battalion, company F, at Indiana University, was established in 1929. The objective of the fraternity is the maximum of drill efficiency and acquaintance with the personnel and management of the R.O.T.C. at Indiana University. It strives toward perfect precision in military movements and drill. Prospective candidates are required to be enrolled in R.O.T.C. work and must indicate a sincere desire for membership. Pershing Rifles holds practice sessions once each week to practice drilling and the manual of arms.

Once each year, the local Pershing Rifle chapter enters a drill meet with military students of other colleges and universities. Blue braid worn on the left shoulder designates a Pershing Rifleman, and because of his special training in military education, he is usually to be found in a responsible position in regimental formations. Among the organization's other activities are its annual Bean Dinner, Razz Banquet, and the annual Pershing Rifle Dance.

WESLEY FOUNDATION

Miriam Meloy President
 F. Jay Nimtz Vice President
 Helen Weatherwax Secretary
 Wilbur Harrison Treasurer

The Wesley Foundation was founded on this campus for the purpose of providing a Christian program of activity for the several Methodist students of the University. All Methodist students and those of that preference are members of the Wesley Foundation.

Two auxiliary groups, Sigma Epsilon Theta and Kappa Phi, were added in 1937. These two are for those who show an extra interest in the program of the Foundation. The program includes intramural athletics, a dramatic club and a weekly recreation club. The Foundation sponsors a weekly program of entertainment for its members and sponsors worship services every Sunday morning and evening. These three groups minister to the spiritual and social needs of the Methodist students on the campus.

The activity of these groups is centered at the Foundation house and the Bloomington High School and the Masonic Temple during the construction of the Methodist Church. Mrs. Esther Niles is hostess at the Foundation house and Doctor C. Howard Taylor, pastor of the church, is the director of the student work.

SKULL AND CRESCENT

Dick Pell President
Jim Fauch Vice President
Charles Odom Secretary
Richard Mueller Treasurer

Skull and Crescent, social honorary for sophomore men, occupies a unique position on the campus. There is no great amount of purpose to it, though ambitious members will swear that this is far from the case. Upperclassmen smile at the mention of it, but the Freshmen quickly run over their precious list of fledgling activities and wonder whether or not they can beat Joe Zilch for one of the coveted places. Two Freshmen are chosen from each fraternity to represent it in Skull and Crescent. These two are the ones that have shown the most promise in things extra-curricular and seem to have possibilities as men-about-the-campus at a later date.

Members may be identified by green and gold hats or by great green-eyed skulls that peer out unexpectedly from the general region of the key chain. Two dances are sponsored each year; one an open dance held during the first semester and the other a closed dance held for members and alumni of the organization. The annual Freshman cap-burning was once a function of Skull and Crescent, but the prevalence of broken limbs and other gory wounds put a stop to this.

The local chapter of Skull and Crescent went on a great tradition-building spree during the past school year. One project consisted of picking out an "upper-classmen's walk", which place was to be no man's land to the Freshmen. The latter promptly painted insulting signs on it with green paint. There were some at this time who were unkind enough to mention the fact that one of the uptown flick shops ran a collegiate picture involving a senior walk, but no one paid much attention to the hecklers. Along this tradition angle, the S. and C. lads also tried to limit the use of corsages at dances. The idea was met with varying degrees of welcome and it looks from here as if the anti-flower move will never reach tradition proportions. In the way of things more serious, Skull and Crescent gives a scholarship each year to an outstanding Sophomore.

EUCLIDEAN CIRCLE

June Townsley President
 Eunice Hodges Vice President
 Arleth Carvin Secretary

The Euclidean Circle takes its name from the godfather of the square root artists; namely, one Euclid, a Greek lad who liked to find out the whys and wherefores of triangles, circles, and so forth. The requirement for membership consists of having successfully hurdled ten hours of mathematics without going completely off the rocker. The Circle dates from 1907, at which time a group of mathematic professors, including Prof. Hennel of this university, founded this honorary for math students.

The local chapter includes several things on its roster of annual activities, among which are the following: Regular meetings held on the first Monday of each month for the purpose of hearing lectures and conducting discussions. The mental strain is relieved after every meeting by entertainment of some form that is provided by the members. Christmas is celebrated by the two plus two club with a party held at the home of Dean Wells. Scoffers say that they try to explain the number of reindeer by calculus at this party, but the report was branded as a bit of ill-chosen wit by the members of Euclidean Circle. Also in the lighter vein: The Circle sponsors a picnic for all members sometime during the second semester of every year.

PHI DELTA PHI

Charles D. Leist.....President
Charles Sparrenberger.....Vice President

George Van Dyke.....Historian

The international legal fraternity, Phi Delta Phi, was founded at the University of Michigan in 1869. Credit for the establishment of the law fraternity has been given to John Howard, a student of Blackstone in 1871 at Monmouth College. The charter members agreed upon their founding that the name would be temporary, allowing time to petition southern groups for membership. It was decided later, however, that the name should remain Phi Delta Phi, so that its history as the pioneering fraternity in the profession of law would be uninterrupted from 1869.

The Foster chapter at Indiana University was founded in 1900. Phi Delta Phi purposes to promote a higher standard of professional ethics and culture in this and other law schools, and in the profession at large. To be eligible for membership in the organization a student must have completed one year or more in the University Law School with a scholastic average of C plus or above. Its activities include bi-weekly luncheons, discussion and consideration of practical problems of law at meetings in the Phi Delta Phi room of the Union Building, and recognition of law freshmen for scholastic attainment. The organization's room in the Union Building, if cleared of smoke, is an admirable place for studying the teachings of Blackstone and past political policies of various prom queen coalitions. At some time during the year the members sponsor a Pre-Law banquet for students who intend to make law their life profession.

PRO-MUSIC CLUB

The Pro-Music Club was founded on this campus during June of 1936. Membership is open to all music majors and minors, provided that they can get by the selection committee and obtain the approval of the Music School faculty. Granting for the moment that all these hurdles have been conquered, one must put himself squarely behind the purpose, which consists of the following: "To bind the members and the faculty of the School of Music more closely together and to promote music on the campus and throughout the state and to instill more firmly into music students 'the social graces of music' both as performers and as intelligent listeners".

The Pro-Music Club has sponsored a Gilbert and Sullivan light opera each spring during the past several years. Various other activities of the organization consist of supporting the sales of the Music Series tickets; assisting in the orientation of the Freshmen music students; and entertaining the finalists in the state music contest.

After a two-year developmental stage the Collegiate Chamber of Commerce held its first actual meeting last fall, coming as a realization of one of President Herman B. Wells' hopes for the School of Business Administration to serve best the needs of the students. It was founded as a representative organization in which students have an opportunity to present ideas to the faculty. A 1.2 scholastic average in the business school is required for membership.

Under the presidential guidance of Ed Hixon, members of the C.C.C. camp sponsored a dance in October, held a student-faculty smoker, brought various speakers to the campus and initiated a suggestion box whereby Business Administration students might express opinions regarding their school. Members of the group also were influential assistants in organizing the Advertising Club in the School of Business Administration.

PHYSICS CLUB

Lewis Larmore President
 Richard Millen Vice President

The purpose of the Physics Club is to create a keener interest in the science of physics, both pure and applied. Anyone interested in physics is eligible to membership in the club. However, the club does not limit its activities to the study of physics alone. The programs include speakers from various other departments, such as Astronomy, Chemistry and Mathematics. Meetings are held of the first and third Wednesdays of each month. At the end of the program, refreshments are served in the physics library, and a discussion of the program continued at that time. Late in May the Physics Club has its annual outing in the form of a picnic. The picnic is held usually at some state park within easy driving distance of Bloomington.

With the promotion of interest and the stimulation of personal accomplishment in the field of chemistry as its foremost aim, Iota Sigma Pi, professional chemistry organization for women was founded at the University of California in 1900. The local chapter under the name of Indium was established in 1930.

To attain membership a student must be either majoring or minoring in chemistry and must have twenty hours of "B" work in the Chemistry department. Iota Sigma Pi sponsors an annual tea for all women taking chemistry courses and holds open meetings at which women who have achieved recognition in chemical fields are speakers.

PHI BETA KAPPA

Prof. F. Lee Benms President
 Prof. Alfred C. Kinsey Vice President
 Mrs. Cecelia Hendricks, Secretary-Treasurer

The brainiest of all brain trusts is also the oldest of Greek letter organizations. Phi Beta Kappa was preceded by a society called F. H. C., organized at William and Mary College in 1750. Five men made up this social and literary society, Phi Beta Kappa, in 1776. Further evidence of the historical significance of this parent of modern fraternities is that the meeting place of those five men was none other than Patrick Henry's spot, the Apollo Room of the Raleigh Tavern where he made his famous speech. The principles established with this organization were: Fraternity, Morality, and Literature.

In 1875 the University of Vermont set a new precedent by admitting women to the organization which had been composed entirely of men previously. Women have been admitted since that date. From the beginning Phi Beta Kappa had been honorary; after the founding of social Greek letter organizations, this honorary basis became more clearly evident. Only schools which give an A.B. degree may have a chapter of this honorary of all honoraries. Requirements for membership vary slightly of necessity in different chapters. At Indiana an average for four years of 93 per cent or above is a basic requirement. Indiana's Gamma chapter, founded in 1911, has no activity throughout the year other than the initiation banquet. Every freshman dreams of this banquet and a Phi Beta Kappa key.

Beta Gamma Sigma, honorary for commerce students, was founded in 1913. The purpose of the whole thing was "To encourage scholarships in colleges of commerce and finance and to foster high ideals in business". In 1933, the fraternity decided to give the women a break by letting them become members if they could meet the scholastic requirements of B. G. S. In order to facilitate matters along this line, the frat merged with Gamma Epsilon Pi of Illinois, an organization for the smarter-than-average co-eds around the place.

Members are elected from the upper bracket of business students and the women students must meet exactly the same standards as the men.

The Indiana Alpha chapter of Beta Gamma Sigma was founded on the campus in 1923. The local chapter honors outstanding pre-commerce students every year by placing the name of the scholastic leader of the group on a plaque in the Commerce office. Membership includes both faculty members and members of the student body.

Over in Kirkwood Hall there is a great deal of commotion when all the language majors get together. Then when they all go to the meeting of the French circle, or the German circle, or the Spanish club there is really a commotion. All the frequenters of Kirkwood belong to all the language clubs, attend regularly, and speak the language required. Meetings of Le Cercle Francais are conducted exclusively in French. Once a month when one hears a roomful of people jabbering in some strange jargon, one knows that it is just the French club discussing the social and cultural trends in France's native tongue. Every fall the members get together for a "soiree de Gala" (pronounced See-moan See-moan). The last meeting in the spring is a "pique-nique", at which all the smart-in-school French students get together for their last chance to polish their way through the French proficiency.

PI LAMBDA THETA

Pauline Wildman Keeper of Records

Pi Lambda Theta traces its origin to the first chapter at the University of Missouri, founded in 1910. Later, seven chapters united in 1917, adopting 1910 as the date of their founding. The founders took the name of the first chapter, Pi Lambda Theta, as the name of the national organization. Iota chapter at Indiana University was granted a charter in 1920, being the ninth to be admitted. The aim of the organization is the development of high professional ideals and the encouragement of advanced study in education among women.

Pi Lambda Theta holds regular meetings, winter and summer, in an attempt to study many educational programs. A tea is given every semester and once during the summer in honor of outstanding students in the profession of teaching. The Education Club, which has existed as a campus club for several years, was the product of the efforts of Pi Lambda Theta with Phi Delta Kappa. The society annually finances some high school girl, usually a senior, in food, clothing, and school expenses. It also makes an annual award of $50 to a graduate woman student in education who has been outstanding in her field.

PHI DELTA KAPPA

Clem C. Bucher President

L. E. Dyer Vice President

Burley V. Bechdolt Secretary-Treasurer

Thirty-odd years ago I. U. witnessed the birth of one Pi Kappa Mu. In 1910 delegates from this organization and two others with similar purpose, Phi Delta Kappa and Nu Rho Beta, to see what could be done in the way of combining the three. Phi Delta Kappa was the result, its Alpha chapter being at Indiana. Phi Delta Kappa turned out to be a professional educational fraternity devoted to research service and leadership in education. Membership is limited to men of the white race, usually graduate students, but in this chapter they may be juniors or above who have completed or are taking at the time of their election eight semester hours of Education courses and who are definitely preparing for a life career in educational service.

DOLPHIN CLUB

Dolphin Club, the splash and splatter society, came to the Indiana campus some eight years ago. The idea for the whole thing seems to be that there should be some honorary for the lads who give their collective all in the pool over at the gym. Membership is open to varsity swimmers who are able to pass a certain number of tests in the manly art of swimming.

Rumor has it that one of the tests is the catching of Herbert, the pet goldfish and mascot of the swimmers. The Ins, however, say that this bit of ill-chosen humor is merely chatter and such on the part of the Outs who are more or less irate because they can't make the grade. Dolphin Club must be complimented on its choice of a purpose, for it is less involved than the purpose of most of the wear-a-key tribes. It, the purpose, consists simply of this: "To maintain an active interest in swimming throughout the university and to back the varsity swimming team". Another fact in favor of the Dolphin lads lies in the fact that no other organization has its meetings and initiations at the side of a swimming pool. The Club has several projects, among which are: The holding of a benefit dance for the swimming team each year; the purchasing of several items of equipment for the team and pool; the sending of representatives to the National A. A. U. swimming meet; and the purchase of numerals and "I" sweaters for the members of the swimming team.

Der Deutsche Verein, honorary organization for the discussion of the German language, literature, and music, was founded at Indiana University in November, 1911. The requirement for membership is ten hours of German with high scholastic standings. Instructors of the German department elect members once each semester. Included among the activities of Der Deutsche Verein are the annual Christmas services, the Sing Festival, and the presentation of German plays. Informal discussions are held at regular monthly meetings.

Juniors and seniors who have maintained high scholarship in German courses and who are members of Der Deutsche Verein are eligible for membership in Delta Phi Alpha, national honorary for students of German.

The Beta Alpha chapter was established on the Indiana campus in 1933. The attention of the members is directed toward matters pertaining to the German literature, history, and government.

In 1908 a group of undergraduate students of Butler, Wabash, Indiana, DePauw, Notre Dame, and other Indiana colleges met in Indianapolis to form a Forensic honorary. There resulted Tau Kappa Alpha. In 1914 the reorganization of the group on the basis of independent college chapters brought about rapid expansion. The following year, the growth extended to I. U. when the I. U. chapter was founded. Membership is limited to "students who have completed two years of college and have for two years participated creditably in the forensic program at that institution".

Confining its activities to the field of speech and debate, Tau Kappa Alpha is nevertheless an active organization. Its members sponsor the Indiana Intramural Debate Tourney, and each spring honors outstanding debaters with a Speech Banquet. Since the organization is so very specialized, its membership is comparatively small. Therefore, membership is considered quite an honor, one of the greatest honors the forensic department has to offer. The personal contact of the organization is more intimate than in a group where membership is not so closely restricted.

Phi Lambda Upsilon, national chemistry honorary, was founded on the University of Illinois campus in 1899 in order to promote high scholarship and original investigation and research in all branches of pure and applied chemistry. Omega chapter at Indiana University was established in 1925. Only juniors, seniors and post graduates are eligible for membership. Juniors must have a scholastic average of 92 or higher, and seniors and post graduates must have an average of 90. Special emphasis is attached to grades in chemistry courses. Omega chapter purposes to encourage, through recognition, the work of outstanding chemistry students. A plaque is awarded each year to the member who was graduated the year previous with the highest scholastic rating. The organization holds no regularly scheduled meetings or social functions, but is active in securing outstanding men in the field of chemistry to speak at informal discussion groups.

THE JORDAN

The Jordan River Revue returned to the campus this spring after six years on the shelf. The all-student cast gave a two night performance on the nights of May twelfth and thirteenth in Alumni Hall of the Union Building.

Written, directed and enacted entirely by students, the comedy combined clever bits of dialogue pertinent to campus life with ten original musical compositions, written and sung by university students. The show was produced by Lee Norvelle and directed by George Blair, who was assisted by Robert Lee and Dorthea Vanatta.

Richard Shores, the musical director of the show, made up the choral arrangements that were presented by the choir. Numbers used were written by Shores, Eddie Skinta, Richard Haskett, and others.

The whole performance moved smoothly through its two night stand with professional ease. There was impressive unity in the entire production and the chorus performed with ability that would have done credit to any Broadway group.

The sets, arranged by Vergil Smith, were unusually attractive. The lighting effects and the make-up were taken care of by

We see no reason for the picture of "Trigger" Alpert, top center, to be here, except that he was not in the Revue. Excuse it.

RIVER REVUE

Foster Harmon. The stage, under his supervision, was appropriately lit during the whole performance.

The dancing chorus was under the direction of Ty Walters, assisted by Betty Klammer and Peggy Smith. The dances were originated and rehearsed by this group of directors, who deserve a great amount of credit for supplying one of the best features of the revue.

The original songs that were featured in this all-student revue deserve special mention. Vera Mae Massey contributed "Dreaming I Really Love You" and "It's Just That Thing Called Love". Both of these numbers were presented by Miss Massey with ease and ability. Skinta and Haskett composed "Indiana Lullaby" and "Together" especially for the 1938 version of the Jordan River Revue. Shores and Boxell contributed a piano novelty, "Mud", for the show.

The renewed version of the Jordan River Revue was outstanding in originality and cleverness. It was a production that was worthy in every respect of following the famous series of revues that the university students presented in past years.

DR. HENRY F. BECKMAN

DEDICATION

We find ourselves more than proud to dedicate the medical section to Dr. H. F. Beckman, a man who stands eminently high among his associates and who has been loyal to this school and friendly to all of its thousands of students.

Dr. Beckman became connected with Indiana University School of Medicine at the time of its organization in 1906 as Assistant Professor of Obstetrics. He has been continuously associated with the Department of Obstetrics since that time, and he has instituted many features which have contributed to the present high standard of this Department.

He was assistant chairman of the Department of Obstetrics under Dr. Louis Burckhardt from 1914 to 1937, and has been chairman since 1934.

SCHOOL OF MEDICINE AT INDIANAPOLIS

Willis Dew Gatch, Dean of the Indiana University School of Medicine at Indianapolis, has a large and voluminous responsibility. As head of a great medical center, Dean Gatch's work involves the integration of many tasks, both large and small, not only in didactic lectures, but also in the practice of medicine taught in the clinics of several University and Associated Hospitals under nearly three hundred professors, lecturers, assistants and associate physicians. His task is indeed an all-consuming one.

Dr. Gatch received his medical education at Johns Hopkins, where he later served as a resident physician, but beginning in 1911, when he came to the University to teach surgery, his career has been intimately associated with the phenomenal growth of Indiana's Medical School.

Since 1931, when he first became Dean of the Indianapolis division, his personal influence and reputation in surgery have constantly been of inestimable service in advancing the prestige of I. U.'s Medical School.

Since its foundation, the object of the Indianapolis division of the Indiana University School of Medicine has been progress and growth, both in its personnel and in its facilities. Evidences of the latter type of progress are the Robert W. Long, William H. Coleman, and James Whitcomb Riley Hospitals. To these must be added the Rotarian Convalescent Home for Children and the Ball Nurses' Residence.

During this year, another great forward step was made with the completion of the new $500,000 clinic and central surgery building. This L-shaped structure is attached to the north side of the Robert W. Long Hospital. Each arm of the building is 115 feet long and 50 feet wide and stretches six stories in height. Several departments which formerly were situated in other campus buildings now occupy more space in this new building. The X-ray department and admitting room are now situated on the first floor as well as the record room for all University hospitals.* Other floors house the clinical laboratory, a central sterilizing room, seventy-five beds for surgery patients, modern surgical amphitheatres, and lodging for the internes and resident staff.

In addition to the preceding state hospitals, the medical students have clinical access to the Indianapolis City Hospital and its new tuberculosis unit, Flower Mission Hospital, and the Central State Hospital for the Insane.

The nurses' training school, housed in the beautiful Ball residence, is one of the few nursing schools in existence which is an integral part of a university. Indiana University requirements for admission and graduation are strictly held, and have made the degree of G.N. (graduate nurse) from this school, the equivalent of a college education. Under the direction of Cordelia Hoeftlin and her teaching staff, the student nurses receive an extensive practical education in the wards of the state's hospitals, as well as in the theory and science of the art from lectures and classes, a method which has resulted in the graduates of this school setting a high standard for excellence in the profession.

Lute M. Trout is head of the Department of Dietetics, and not only handles the tremendous task of feeding all the patients and employees of the Center, but through its unlimited facilities, is able to provide an excellent post-graduate training for students qualified and interested in hospital and institutional dietetics. Student dietitians reside at the Rotarian Convalescent Home, another of the University's group of buildings on the Indianapolis campus.

Mark P. Helm has been associated with the medical center since 1924. He was appointed registrar in 1936. Mr. Helm is an "I" man, class of '94, and is well known in educational circles. He is ably assisted in his duties by Miss Blankenship and by Miss O'Connor, who is also secretary to Dean Gatch.

The Indianapolis division of Indiana University has indeed continued to forge rapidly ahead by enlarging, and yet centralizing and integrating its many educational facilities, and has moved higher among the foremost medical centers in America.

The Senior year in medicine is by far the most interesting in the career of the medical student. It is concerned largely with the clinical application of knowledge and principles acquired during the previous years of study. Supplementing these numerous clinics are didactic courses in such subjects as orthopedics, dermatology, roentgenology and otolaryngology.

This year's Senior class is the first to enjoy the facilities of the new Clinic Building recently erected on the campus. The modern hospital will be furnished with the newest type of medical equipment and will be a big step in furthering the growing prestige of the School of Medicine.

It is with mingled joy and sorrow that we face the termination of our happy years of association with the University. Our professors, who have given their lives to the study of the various aspects of medicine, will be remembered throughout our lives. Their untiring efforts in the field of science will remain forever in our memory and will serve as inspiration to guide us in our work in the years to come.

SENIOR OFFICERS

The Junior breathes with a little more comfort than he has in the preceding two years. Although no one is certain at just what point in the medical curriculum the proverbial "hump" is situated, it is thought that the Junior has started down the other side after many strenuous efforts to reach and pass the "hump".

Feeling he has accomplished something worth while in attaining his promotion to his present status, the Junior assumes more of a care-free air. Is it any wonder his reputation is that of initiating various movements for the unusual in school activities?

The year is spent in building on to the foundation that has been laid in the pre-clinical years. The morning clinics at the Indianapolis City Hospital present personal contact for the student with problems which have been presented in the realm of theory heretofore. He has the opportunity of applying his knowledge, which is mostly theoretical, to actual practice under the careful supervision of experienced clinicians.

The Junior does shudder, however, to think of the seventeen finals he has each semester. But who wouldn't give such an occasion a little thought? When he pauses to meditate upon the future, he is encouraged with the thought that next year he will receive his final academic work, and following this—his professional career begins to assume reality, and his benefit to mankind has started!

With the savoir-fairé customary to second year medical students, bacteriology, pharmacology, and psychopathology, a course so new and different that even the senior members of the class doubted that the fittest would survive, were assimilated and consigned to the past. The freshman class will go down in the medical school history as having instigated the Law-Medic dance, the highlight of the class social life. During the year the sophomore lays aside his freshman delusions and realizes that he is an integral part of the University and as such rapidly becomes accustomed to the intricacies of his chosen profession. His time from then on will be dedicated to scientific investigation, intellectual improvement, social development, an important phase in the life of any medic. The results of his completed labor will be well worth the effort he has expanded for he may devote himself to enjoying life after becoming a junior, or at least that is what the sophomore believes. Juniors have a slightly different idea about the matter.

This year's freshmen medical class was the first to leave historic old Owen Hall and attend classes in the beautiful new Medical Building on Third Street. Owen Hall, where medical students began their training for many years past, has been turned over to the geology and geography departments of the university. The new building is one of the most modernly equipped in the nation.

Despite the fact that the new building and facilities are making better doctors of them all, they "took it on the chin" from the followers of Blackstone, the Maxwellian lawyers, in the annual Law-Medic football slaughter on the morning of Homecoming.

The Meds took new courage, however, and defeated the Laws in basketball later in the year.

The white-garbed medical aspirants learned plenty about histology, anatomy, and physiology, showing that all that ripples is not muscle. Victims were two-fold: (1) cadavers, furnished by various state institutions, and (2) dogs, not taken from the campus collection, as is sometimes believed. The scalpels worked feverishly on these subjects in their new surrounding.

Officers of the Skeleton Club, organization for freshmen medical students, also act as officers of the class.

ALPHA OMEGA ALPHA

Alpha Omega Alpha, a national medical scholastic fraternity, corresponds to Phi Beta Kappa of the College of Arts and Sciences. The fraternity was founded at the University of Illinois in 1902, and the Indiana University chapter was established in 1916. Each spring those students who have led their class in the four years of the medical course receive membership in Alpha Omega Alpha. Although a few of those elected each year are juniors, the majority of the members are chosen during their senior year.

Nu Sigma Nu was founded at the University of Michigan in 1882. Beta Eta chapter established in 1908 is completing its thirtieth year on the Indiana University campus. During the past year, the Beta Eta chapter has continued to take an active part in furthering the fraternity's objective—to promote the general advancement of the medical profession and fellowship among its members. This objective is accomplished by having frequent meetings during the year at which prominent alumni speak on the various practical phases of medicine.

The annual initiation was held at the Lincoln Hotel in March. Following the induction ceremonies, the banquet was held. This turn was followed by a formal dance. The chapter made closer the connection between the Bloomington and Indianapolis groups this year by holding several meetings together.

Membership in this fraternity is limited to those holding or seeking an M.D. degree, who are proficient in their work, and who are of good moral character.

The Omicron Alpha Zeta chapter of Phi Beta Pi was established at Bloomington in 1905, fourteen years after the founding of the Fraternity at the West Pennsylvania Medical College in 1891. Thirty nine chapters in prominent medical schools all over the country make it a strong national organization. The flower is the white chrysanthemum; and colors are green and white.

The local chapter maintains one of the largest enrollments of active members among medical Fraternities and boasts of a very active alumni association.

The active chapter at Indianapolis and the pledge chapter at Bloomington combine to keep up high scholastic standards and promote fellowship among medical students. Social activities include the Christmas formal dinner dance, the spring initiation dance, stag parties, smokers, etc. shared by both chapters. To these are added movies, lectures, etc. of more educational nature. The year's activities make up a well rounded program of social and educational nature thoroughly enjoyed by all.

PHI CHI

The Phi Chi medical fraternity today represents a consolidation of two fraternities of the same name, a northern and a southern division. The northern division was organized at the University of Vermont on March 31, 1889, while the southern was founded in the Louisville Medical College on October 26, 1894. Mu Chapter of Indiana University was one of fifteen established chapters belonging to the southern division. The two divisions were consolidated in 1905, making compromises concerning details, the chief of which established the grand chapter of the southern group of chapters as the governing body.

It was at the Indiana Medical College, now a part of the Indiana University School of Medicine, that Mu Chapter of Phi Chi was chartered in 1903. It was the first medical fraternity in the state. In its thirty-five years of existence Phi Chi has achieved a remarkable record. It numbers among its members many of the country's finest clinicians and teachers. Its total membership exceeds six hundred men. The active chapter of Mu Chapter of Phi Chi is a leader in scholarship and social affairs, and is a true exemplification of the sentiment expressed in the fraternity quarterly. Phi Chi men serve best by striving to make themselves a source of strength and pride to their Alma Mater from which the fraternity derives its reason for existence.

Phi Rho Sigma, national fraternity for the professional affiliation of medical students, was founded in 1890 at Northwestern university for the purpose of promoting good fellowship among congenial men of medical schools throughout the United States and encouraging a high standard of professional work.

The success of the new organization was instantaneous and in the following years many new chapters were established in the outstanding medical schools of the nation. Thirteen years after the date of founding at Northwestern the Pi Chapter of Phi Rho Sigma was founded at Indiana University (1903). There are at the present time thirty national chapters.

Pi Chapter places greatest emphasis upon social contact, feeling that this is the best method of accomplishing the continued maintenance of the high standard of medical work. Evidence of the result of their efforts lies in their large and powerful alumni group, which has proved invaluable to the active members in giving practical advice and inspiration. The monthly meetings are held at the homes of the Indianapolis physicians, where the discussions are informal. An alumni banquet, a formal initiation, an open dance each year, and the annual rushing activities in Bloomington each fall complete the social calendar.

Theta Kappa Psi is the oldest medical fraternity in existence. It was founded at the Medical College of Virginia in 1879, for the purpose of promoting friendship, character, and scholarship among the medical students. In 1924 Gamma Upsilon chapter of Theta Kappa Psi made its first appearance on the campus of Indiana university. At the present time there are fifty-three chapters. The fraternity colors are gold and green and its flower is the red rose.

The activities of the fraternity are numerous, and each year its social calander is topped by the initiation, banquet and dance. In addition to the chapter activities it pays tribute to its departing seniors in the way of an informal farewell party. To the most valuable senior is awarded a honorary key for his activity in the fraternity affairs.

Mu Sigma Phi, medical fraternity for women, was organized for the purpose of enabling women to become more closely associated in scientific investigation, intellectual improvement and social development. The national organization was founded in 1898 at the College of Physicians and Surgeons at the University of Illinois. The flower is a rose, and the colors are green and white. Gamma, one of ten chapters, was founded at Indiana university in 1909. Meetings are held with the Indianapolis alumnae each month. One of the features of this year's program was a joint dinner meeting with the women attorneys of the city.

Prior to 1930, Gamma Phi Zeta existed as the Dame's Club. At this time, the advantages of a Greek letter organization were recognized and Alpha chapter of Gamma Phi Zeta was organized. The membership is composed of the wives of medical students and the purpose is entirely social in character. The chapter flower is the sweetheart rose, and light green, pink and rose are the sorority colors. Meetings are bi-monthly, either in the homes or at a downtown hotel. The annual dinner given for the husbands is the social highlight of the year. The success of the organization in bringing women of mutual interest together is adequately manifested by the vast increase in membership since its inception.

NURSES

As we go to press and glance hastily once again over the prepared dummmy, there is called to our attention a slight discrepancy in copy. It seems that an error was made and this page was left entirely blank, and no page in the Arbutus should be left entirely Blank.

We, therefore, dedicate this page to the nurses, who serve patiently and without material reward to make possible the work of skilled surgeons and physicians. We shall, therefore, run hurriedly through the high points in the training of a nurse.

Of all the perplexities and mysteries of nurses' training at Indianapolis, there is nothing which has caused us greater concern than why there is a Third Cottage and a Fourth Cottage, but no First Cottage. To the visitor this is quite confusing, especially when one moves into Long Hospital by mistake. Suppose now that a gentleman from the salt mines of Siberia were looking for a girl who had enrolled in nurse's training at Indianapolis. He knew that she lived in the Third Cottage, and according to all the teachings commonly accepted as true in Siberia, the Third Cottage should follow immediately upon and after the Second Cottage. This would be very amusing to the students at Indianapolis, but a matter of great concern with the gentleman from the salt mines of Siberia.

This gentleman would look long and questioningly at the road between Long Hospital and the Third Cottage, upturning stones and looking under bushes for the Second Cottage. He would think that Americans have peculiar customs, and promptly go back to the salt mines of Siberia, where two follows one and nothing is left out for no good reason. The nurse would probably be very disappointed, because she might want to see the gentleman from the salt mines of Siberia, and her heart might be broken.

Suppose that the nurse's heart is broken, and that she cared mightily for the gentleman from the salt mines of Siberia. She will then be inefficient in her work, and won't be able to make beds properly. She might even dump the patient out of the window or forget to repair the sheets where his toe-nails had torn through. Then, too, if she went on surgery to scrub for an important operation, she might hand one of the instruments to the patient instead of the doctor and the doctor might lose his appendix or even worse.

All this because there is no Second Cottage.

Actually, of course, there is no Third Cottage, because there cannot be a Third Cottage without a Second Cottage. This might lead one to believe that Third Cottage is non-existent, but this is not true. It is actually there, of course, but should be known as the First Cottage. The Fourth Cottage should then be designated as the Second Cottage. This would be confusing to the nurses, however, because if Fourth Cottage were eliminated, some of their mail might go to Coleman Hospital for Women. Some of their males might go there, too. Anyway, Coleman Hospital is certainly not a cottage.

If such a change were negotiated, however, the gentleman from the salt mines of Siberia, (there's that man again), if he wished to see a nurse in Third Cottage, would inadvertently enter Coleman Hospital for Women. We cannot, therefore, alter the names of the cottages because of the gentleman from the salt mines of Siberia, who would not enjoy being in the Coleman Hospital for Women.

The nurses who make their homes in Fourth Cottage would then become quite bitter toward the Third Cottage because the gentleman from the salt mines of Siberia might have been bringing them gifts, such as a package of salt. Their work would then also become slack, and they would check the wrong columns on their daily reports. A general let-down would result, to the girls of both Third and Fourth Cottage, because of the inevitable friction and argument over who would get the package of salt. This would work hardships on the entire school.

It is entirely conceivable that such a change could so demoralize the entire body of student nurses that mortality rates would increase considerably and insurance premiums would show a substantial rise. Few would become successful in their field, and more than half would come to the Bloomington campus to enroll in Business Administration or Geology, preparatory to extracting their own salt and becoming independent of the gentleman from the salt mines of Siberia.

We cannot, therefore, alter the names of the cottages.

Up to this point, we have shown the crying need for a renovation of cottage names. We have shown the unfortunate results of the present condition (no First Cottage). We have also pointed out that a change of the name of Third Cottage to First, and Fourth to Second would have dire consequences on nursing efforts. There must of course be some solution.

The path lies clearly before us. We are given a choice of two: (1) either they must raze both and construct an apartment for nurses, or (2) they must tell the gentleman from the salt mines of Siberia to stay in the salt mines, and buy their own salt retail. The choice is theirs. Only time and the condition of the salt market will tell.

We were to sketch the high points in the training of a nurse in this article. We seem to have digressed a trifle, but the Bloomington office is not intimately acquainted with the intricacies of nurses' training. Anyway, the page is filled.

ENTAL

DEAN F. R. HENSHAW

DEDICATION

The dental school section of the 1938 edition of the Arbutus is respectively dedicated to Dean Frederick Rich Henshaw, in appreciation of his untiring efforts in managing this institution in such a manner that the students receive the maximum of scientific training which assures them a high professional status among their fellow associates.

Dr. Henshaw maintains a close fellowship with the students and possesses the good will of the student body because of his winning personality and assistance when needed. Men of Dean Henshaw's ability are seldom found and we feel we are exceptionally fortunate in having his services for the past quarter of a century. He is a true gentleman and a scholar and his friendly smile and generous and wise counsel have always been depended upon by students, alumni, and faculty alike.

Dean Frederick Rich Henshaw possesses the degree of Doctor of Dental Surgery, is a Fellow of the American College of Dentists, and recently had conferred on him the honorary degree of Doctor of Science by Wabash College. He also holds the rank of Colonel in the Dental Reserve Corps of the United States Army.

The new dental building is a living memorial to the untiring efforts of Dean Frederick Rich Henshaw and will forever be perpetuated in the minds of the laity and alumni alike.

ACTING DEAN G. D. TIMMONS

SCHOOL OF DENTISTRY

Indiana University School of Dentistry, located at the Indianapolis Medical Center has of late years shown the effect of powerful and careful guidance. Since its founding, it has risen to take its place among the foremost dental schools of the world.

The progress of the dental school was culminated in 1933 by a new and fully equipped school building for the purpose of instruction and research. A special clinic was established in 1936, by the United States Public Health Service providing for the care of child patients. The students also have access to the dental facilities of the James Whitcomb Riley Hospital for children as well as the Robert Long Hospital.

By act of the Board of Trustees at the meeting of January 15, 1938, Dr. Gerald D. Timmons was appointed to the position of assistant to the dean and executive head of the Dental Department of Indiana University. Dr. Timmons is now serving his fifth year as Secretary of the American Association of Dental Schools. He is also on the executive committee of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Dr. Timmons is a Fellow in the American College of Dentists and also holds the degree of Phar.G. from Valparaiso University.

THE SENIOR CLASS

As the end of their college days approach, the students of the senior class look forward to a bright future, inasmuch as they are completing a quite comprehensive course in their chosen profession. Upon the final completion of their school work they are given the degree of Doctor of Dental Surgery. Through the past four years this class has built up a very united and co-operative spirit which has evidenced itself not only in the high quality of their work but also in the close friendships and alliances shared by every member of this large group. Credit for their success is due to their spirited diligence and the helpful guidance of the faculty.

The Indiana University branch of the Junior American Dental Association was founded at Indiana University on December 12, 1934. The purpose of this organization is to familiarize the student with organized dentistry, thus making him better equipped for his chosen profession. This year the eligible members have given excellent co-operation and in turn they have gained boundless knowledge from the lectures and clinics presented to them by dentists of high repute. Membership in this society is limited to members of the sophomore, junior, and senior classes who are in good standing. The Indiana University division of this association is one of the largest and most active in the United States.

OMICRON KAPPA UPSILON

Omicron Kappa Upsilon, national honorary dental fraternity, was organized at Northwestern University in 1914. The Theta Theta Chapter was established at Indiana University in 1934. Membership in the organization is one of the highest honors to be attained in Dental School since eligibility depends upon outstanding scholarship and excellent character. Applicants for membership must be in the upper third of their class, and only ten per cent of the graduating class are eligible for consideration. These applicants are voted on by the faculty and passed upon by Dean Frederick R. Henshaw.

DELTA SIGMA DELTA

Delta Sigma Delta was founded in 1883 at the University of Michigan and has the distinction of being the first fraternity to be established strictly for members and students of the dental profession. This fraternity is known for the fraternal spirit existing between faculty members and students and the members of the fraternity are very grateful to the faculty members for their untiring efforts and constructive criticism. The local chapter of Delta Sigma Delta is known as the Xi chapter. This year the Xi chapter entertained the representatives from other larger chapters throughout the United States at their fraternity house and the members exchanged many ideas which will assist them in their chosen profession. Dr. Wade La Rue, deputy of the subordinate Xi Chapter, resides at the fraternity house which is located at 1424 Central Avenue.

PSI OMEGA

Psi Omega was founded in 1892 at the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery. The Omega chapter of Psi Omega was established in 1903 at the Indiana Dental College which later became the Indiana University School of Dentistry. Since that time the members of this fraternity have established an exceptionally friendly and inspired organization. In the past few years they have taken into their group several boys who have shown their gratitude by working with and for the fraternity. Omega has several older brothers on the faculty of the school. These men are of fine and rare character and share the responsibility for the success of the local chapter.

XI PSI PHI

Theta Chapter of Xi Psi Phi was organized in 1893 in what was then known as the Indiana Dental College. The local chapter is one of twenty-seven active chapters, the first of which was founded at the University of Michigan in 1889. Doctors Rogers, Mottier, and Healy, instructors at the dental school, are members of Theta and are very generous in devoting time and effort to help their younger fraternity brothers. This interest and fellowship is greatly appreciated and enjoyed by the members of the Theta chapter. The fraternity maintains a chapter house at 2029 North Meridian street.

Just Old-Fashioned!

Not the greatest... not the largest... but an organization devoted to a principle of excellence. For more than three decades hundreds of yearbook editors and business managers have placed their faith in our ability to help them design, publish, and finance unusual yearbooks... Just old-fashioned in principle, but with a very definite flare for the best in modern publication trends!

You've just got time to catch one more snack and get in one more boress with the boys at the Gables before you check out into the cold world. We'll miss you a lot, but feel sure to see you again when you revisit the scene of your crime in years to come. You'll miss those good meals and afternoon "jo-sessions". You were a pretty cagey rhine, for you soon found that the GABLES was the place to go.

AN INDIANA UNIVERSITY TRADITION

There are two events which stand out as supreme triumphs in the wide field of collegiate hoaxes for the past school year. There is no better place in the world to cook up and hash over practical jokes.

Early in the fall, after you were settled down to studying only in mild extremes, you sat down one October morning and read an article in the W.G.C.D. about royalty on the campus of old I.U. The facts ran about like this:

His Excellency, Grand Baron Frederik Ferdinand Spencer Randolph von Kauffman, exile from the throne of Wurttemberg, a former kingdom of Prussia, is a student at Indiana under a commoner name, and is quite fond of democracy.

A Daily Student reporter, fluffing her ruffles with pride at having uncovered a "scoop" in the newspaper world, spread adjectives now and occasionally then in open admiration for the royal blood who preferred to remain incognito. During the World War, the female Edwin C. Hill went on to relate, the Baron von Kauffman, then a mere man of four, was given the alternative of the firing squad or exile. Sagaciously for one so young, if we do say so ourselves, he chose exile.

"I must admit," the Baron said, "that I have a secret yen (that's German for desire, I guess) for the return of monarchies so that I might assume my privileges, but I do like things here." He was "unassuming",—"his royalty lending fascination to his personality". Eight medals for bravery adorned his manly chest,—also the Iron Cross, which his father had won in the "Gurreat War".

Baron von Kauffman promised to wear his Lieutenant Colonel's uniform to the Prom this year.

It was a beautiful story, until two days later, when the Student carried a small paragraph which revealed it was all a hoax planned by some practical joker, Baron von Kauffman was Tim O'Hara or some such Spanish name.

The second hoax concerned Hugh Dillin, ex-editor of the Bored Walk and now a representative in the State Legislature. Dillin scrubbed the nicotine from his fingers, shellacked his nails, and dolled up like Shirley Temple. He succeeded in obtaining admission to the Razz Banquet of Theta Sigma Phi, held exclusively for co-eds. He had finished only the first course when ladies at his table became suspicious of his silence and had him tossed out in a very masculine way. Dillin took the second course in the lobby.

The girls have been feeling pretty smug about uncovering his disguise and tossing him out on his ear. Certainly, they said, no man could hear what went on at their Razz Banquet.

We agree with them. No men heard what went on—except the four gents in the rafters on the stage.

The climax of the year came late in May when a GOP-packed Jackson Club meeting elected Tom Elrod, one of the staunchest Republicans on the campus, to the position of Sergeant-at-Arms. The Lincoln club is considering the candidacy of Jim Farley for corresponding secretary.

INDIANA UNIVERSITY ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

There are numerous things which could be done away with without any tears from the multitude. Heading this stupendous list is the serenade. For some reason or other this practice has hung around and caused people to lose more sleep than have final exams. And for what, we ask?

To begin, no one truthfully can say that he gets a bang out of being bounced from his slab in the dorm where he has spent the last hour hoping that some kind soul would hit him on the noggin so that he could get a dash of shuteye, to hear forty persons who are just as bored as he, standing ankle-deep in wet grass to warble the same songs that they have murdered for years. Once out of the husks, he finds that his mouth is as dry as a class in fossils and that his snappers are chattering like castanets. If he can emit anything but a croak, the brothers make him song leader. All this seems very silly, and there are plenty who think so but are too much like mice to say so.

But hold on—there is a remedy for this evil. First the organization in question has a recording made of every fraternity or sorority song on the campus. Then it installs an amplifying system somewhere in the region of the dorm windows. When the serenaders are tramping down the street a freshman runs to the phonograph. After the first song is sung, he spins the applause recording which was made at the democratic national convention. Next he blares out with the sorority song and follows it with one of the local songs and ends up with a stirring round of applause.

Meanwhile the actives are pounding their ears up in the refrigerator room and are never disturbed. Cagey, eh what? The beauty of the plan is that the singing will sound better than ordinary, and no one comes out with a nasty case of pneumonia. Which all makes for happier people except the rhine who has to sit up to change the records.

Corbett (Corby) Davis, Indiana's plunging full-back, is the first Crimson football player ever to be named All-American by unanimous vote.

The All-American Board, headed by Christy Walsh and conceded to be the official selector, presented handsome, genial Corby with an All-American sweater and blanket. Kate Smith gave Davis a gold watch for making her All-American team. The New York Sun, Liberty magazine and numerous other selectors also awarded the husky fullback the coveted All-American rating.

In the East-West game, Corby was named the outstanding player of the day. The Chicago Tribune named Davis the "most valuable player to his team in the Big Ten." Indiana thus became the only Conference team to gain this cup three times, Chuck Bennett winning it in 1926, Vernon Huffman in 1937. Indiana university's Balfour award was his most recent honor.

Davis was a consistent, sportsmanlike, alert football player with a penchant for ground gaining. He made a specialty of gaining three to four yards every time he took the ball. On defense he proved strong in backing up the line and batting down passes. He, more than any other player, helped to make Indiana's 1937 grid season one of the most successful in Crimson history.

THE BOOK-NOOK

Most outstanding student's place on campus.

Registration and enrollment are traditionally chaotic. People standing in lines, people sneaking up from behind, people walking, walking and occasionally walking some more. Enrollment was a process combining the Drake Relays and waiting to see the Dean of Women, with the evils of blackmail and bribery thrown in for good measure.

It was the common thing to stand in line for two hours before being told that the class was filled, or that it was not the class you wanted at all. The people you called friends sneaked in ahead of you, with absolutely no consideration for you, no honesty, or no sense of fair play. Occasionally, you sneaked in ahead of your friends, too. You always had a good excuse, however, such as a date, a headache, or a bad foot. For the most part, you salved your inconsistency with a brilliant smile, wilting your constituents' antagonism with congenial warmth. That's what you thought.

At any rate, the entire process of enrollment took much time away from sleep and recreation, not to mention dates. It would be much nicer, you thought, to snuggle in the arms of Morpheus or any other co-ed, than to waste precious minutes hunting autographs.

The School of Commerce, in view of these considerations, this year inaugurated a new system of painless enrollment, so that Juniors and Seniors would have more time to develop their personalities. All you had to do was drop in the office at your leisure and fill out the card. No waiting lines, no frayed nerves and tired feet. All the cards were shuffled, and at the beginning of the semester you were in the classes you wanted. While others wilted and frazzled on enrollment day, you sit in a coke booth, or sleep at home, or read a good book. They come home exhausted and you leave for a fourteen-mile pleasure hike. You laugh at them now and then to seal your fate.

It was a progressive step. There is no doubt that other schools will eventually adopt a similar plan of enrollment. It saves the time of both faculty and students, and is more simple and accurate in operation. The students will save shoe-leather, and the faculty will have more time to play golf, fish, read, and hunt more funny little bugs.

It's a sure cinch for posterity.

There are two kinds of men in college, those who come in search of an education and key-men. A key-man is sometimes humorously termed an activities man. "It ain't the education in college that counts, its the contacts you make". Most of the contacts involve an initiation fee which usually results in padre wearing his blue serge suit for another year or so, and the using of the egg money which was kept in the coffee can in the pantry.

It is the ambition of every rod to become stoop shouldered from carting around a dozen baubles of various and sundry metals with which he can dazzle the boys back home at the local pool emporium. In the event that the activities are slow in recognizing the budding genius, the little rodling baits them along with a fraternity key, a university key and his uncle Homer's elk tooth charm.

If eventually the day does arrive when the pillars of the campus are running low on funds and the kitty is bare as paddy's pig, the yearning one may be inducted into the mysteries of Beta Phu. When the rodling has put most of the upperclassmen through school he too wants to get his hooks in the easy dough. Then and only then is he a "shot".

Sometimes the shot may want to get in on the ground floor. In this case he starts an honorary of his own. All that it takes is three Greek letters and a key. If the rod is an ethical rod (rather paradoxical) he may even justify the existence of the organization by donating a pound of grass seed to Dunn Meadow every year. Ho-hum.

In past years, university students, emulating their absent-minded professorial friends, had been in the habit of misplacing text books, cribs, date book, fingernail files, raincoats, and toothbrushes. The volume of lost articles became so great that a Lost & Found Department was opened to eliminate the unfair competition of Those People who shouted "Finders, Keepers" and made off with fraternity houses, laboratories, and what-not. Many whatnots were lost this year.

The Lost-and-Founders was very successful, collecting a goodly assortment of this and occasionally that. The manager of the Lost and Found department became lost in the increasing supply and found that in order to make room for new articles which were found, some articles would have to be lost.

A choice between a Fire Sale and an Auction seemed the only way out, and the decision was in favor of an Auction. The place designated was the Commons, where everyone who might be gullible as to auctions gathered during Convo and after 3:00 P. M. daily. Charles Sparrenberger, auctioneer, began the sucker chant. Bidding began immediately, thanks to Sparrenberger's law school stooges, who were placed strategically behind posts, under chairs, and on chandeliers.

Several auctions were held throughout the second semester. No one bought back, it is strange to say, the same article he lost. It was quite successful.

Not least among the most important influences on campus life this year was the column "To The Editor" in the Indiana Daily Student. The vox of the populi was adamant, demanding, flattering, hypercritical, radical and conservative. Letters signed "Bewildered", "A Student", "Irate" and otherwise sank their reforming fangs into compulsory military, athletics, publications, honoraries, religion, music, merit system, queens and the hoi-polloi of this and adjacent counties with white-hot verbosity.

The compulsory military argument aroused the usual interest, became sharp and deadly serious, then panned away to oblivion under the leadership of "Bewildered". There was the usual flurry concerning queens, quantity, and quality. Yes, it has been a very ordinary year.

"Oscar, '41" and "Worried, '40" kept the campus in a complete dither for three or four minutes by eloquent accusations against honorary organizations who were failing "to justify their existence" from day to day. "Worried, '40" was initiated into Skull & Crescent the following week, so he dropped out of the discussion. The Dean's Office caught up with "Oscar, '41" and gave him only memories of old I.U.

"Old Fashioned" criticized wild, impetuous youth at I.U.—loose morals, lipstick, and cigarettes. A conservative youth, he wanted femininity, status quo. It was all remindful of the kid who tugged at his father's coat, pleading with tear-filled eyes, "Pa, oh Pa, spank me every day, send me to bed without supper, cut my allowance, but oh pa, don't send me to college".

Among those publications heckled by anonymous pencil-pushers were the Arbutus, Daily Student, Bored Walk, Red Book, and Folio. The Freshman Guide was not mentioned. Merely an oversight.

It came to be, in fact, an interesting game. It was excellent practice for English composition. All you had to do was "point with pride" or "view with alarm".

Toward the end of the school year, the triteness and ambiguity grew too much, and letters began pouring in on subjects of hidden sarcasm. "Perturbed, '38" wanted to eradicate all the squirrels on the campus, to make it safe for the nuts. "The Gashouse Gang" wanted to hold the musical show in the basement of the Well House. "Progress" wanted to tear down the Well House, an "unsightly blotch on our beautiful campus". "Hesitant" advocated taking final exams during registration week.

It is with particular pleasure that we look forward to the next school year, when this identical cycle will again run the gauntlet of the reformers. But now, at the end of this cycle, we are very happy. Time certainly flies.

Or as the Latins say, "My, how tempus does fugit."

The bourgeoisie of Franjipana was happier than a bed bug in a dormitory this year when the Board of Aeons decided to dismiss all the red tape of Prom Queen selection and turn the election over to the political bosses. It turned out to be a very nice cut-throat affair and all the Junior men felt pretty good because they had been promised things which none of them expected to get. The old-time caucuses were revived and everybody promised that all promises were null and void on and after the hour when the queen was announced. Clever campaign managers were particularly adept at concealing the knives in their hands when they patted the Juniors on the back.

The various coalitions between sororities saw terrific action here and occasionally there during the melee. In the heat and strife of battle, various co-eds solicited the votes of four WPA workers, a janitor, and a pedestrian. Nothing was too good for the Junior men. They were greeted, feted, and baited. Dates were aplenty, but nothing in the way of romance could be accomplished, save for a price.

On the whole, the Prom Queen election was like all the other Queen elections, in that a queen was elected. Otherwise they were not comparable.

"IS THIS PRODUCT COUNCIL ACCEPTED" ?

This is the first question many physicians ask the detail man, when a new product is presented.

If the detail man answers, "No", the doctor saves time by saying, "Come around again when the Council accepts your product."

If the detail man answers, "Yes," the doctor knows that the composition of the product has been carefully verified, and that members of the Council have scrutinized the label, weighed the evidence, checked the claims, and agreed that the product merits the confidence of the physician. The doctor can ask his own questions, and make his own decision about using the product, but not only has he saved himself a vast amount of time but he has derived the benefit of a fearless, expert, fact-finding body whose sole purpose is to protect him and his patient.

No one physician, even if he were qualified, could afford to devote so much time and study to every new product. His Council renders this service for him, freely. Nowhere else in the world is there a group that performs the functions so ably served by the Council on Pharmacy and Chemistry and the Council on Foods. Mead Johnson & Company cooperates with both Councils, not because we have to but because we want to. Our detail men can always answer: "Yes, this Mead Product is Council-Accepted."

Dextri-Maltose, Pablum, Oleum Percomorphum and all other Mead Products are Council-Accepted.

Pinnings, incidentally, increased considerably in that week's market, with stock jokes up one point and puns down two.

There was only one sad feature. A suave, well-dressed Junior gent was standing in front of the Union building about fifteen minutes after the election ballots had been counted. His coat collar was turned up and he was holding it together close to his throat. Another Junior man walked up to him and began boressing him in a jovial, good-natured manner.

"Well," he said, "how do you feel now, old boy?"

The sad-looking Junior with the turned-up collar looked at him unsmilingly.

"What would you do," he asked in a melancholy voice, "if you had just taken your pin back from the girl who was elected Prom Queen?"

The jovial Junior laughingly replied, "Why, I'd cut my throat."

The sad one pulled open his collar. "Look!" he said.

Small consolation it is to a disappointed subscriber to know what a yearbook he might have had, but the staff feels that the readers should know what sort of a book was planned when the subscriptions were being garnered in and about the field-house.

Original plans called for an oriental theme. The art color work was to have been in a brilliant Chinese Red. The cover would have been of the same garish hue, its design depicting the wild revels of a Saturday night's orgy in Wu Fang's opium den. The division pages would have pictured important events in the life of Confucius, sagest seer of the Orient.

Perhaps the most striking feature of this dream book was the arrangement of its contents. Following the plan of all Chinese publications, the last should be first, and the first should be last. In other words, the index would constitute the opening section of the book. It would be followed by the ads, then the medical section, then the organizations, then the seniors, and finally the dedication and the title page.

Truly a wonderful yearbook. The copy, of course, was to have been printed backwards and upside down. But our plans were blasted, and you suckers who paid your 4now5afterJan15 must be content with this puny tome. Perhaps the 1939 staff will base its book on this idea. We hope not.

COMMENCEMENT DAY will be one of the proudest moments in your life. For on this day you will stand on the threshold of a new career and dedicate your life's work to a noble and humanitarian cause . . . the practice of dentistry. Another proud moment will be when you open your first office and welcome your first patients.

With 87% of "first impressions" being lasting ones, it is important therefore that you give careful consideration to your office surroundings, especially your operating room equipment. Patients expect and demand modern dentistry in clean, modern surroundings today and most of them will seek out dentists who can measure up to these requirements. So, don't run the risk of condemning your practice to mediocrity or failure when it is so easy to "set the stage" for a SUCCESSFUL career with the equipment that has helped so many young dentists off to a successful start.

WEBER Equipment is modernly designed and built to give lifetime service and satisfaction, yet priced so as to be within the limits of even the most modest equipment budget. There is a Weber Equipment assembly to meet every Purse and Purpose. Sold, guaranteed and serviced by selected, "first-line" dealers everywhere. If you are not acquainted with the WEBER Dealer in your locality, write us and we will gladly send you his name. Our office Planning and Location Analysis Service is yours for the asking.

CANTON, OHIO

When students returned from Christmas vacation, wobbling from gluttonous consumption of Yuletide Cheer and resolving not to walk, but ride to and occasionally fro, they were completely miffed when cab drivers couldn't drive because they were striking. It seemed the cabbies had had a slight tiff as to whether they should charge the sox off the boys or merely be content with taking their last ten dollar bill.

It was great fun while it lasted. Riding in a speed buggy, one was never sure if he would have his arm cut off by a flying tomahawk or would be shaken a bit by another cab, which could very easily drive into the midship. When you alighted from a cab, if you alighted, your watch said tock-tick, tock-tick, instead of the customary things.

The city buses, which arrive at the square by way of Indianapolis, had an immense increase in passengers during the strike, combining safe transportation with a good 5c fare. The cabbies meanwhile had agreed to take 15c from every man, woman, and child.

Then came the rainy season.

Speaking of transportation, another 1937-38 problem has related to traffic. Third Street Speedway and Kirkwood Loop provided racing space, and students learned to jump with no little dexterity. Only a scattered few jumped too late,—only a a scattered few. Two cars hit head-on in February when both started after the same pedestrian.

A young traffic director was placed on the road behind Kirkwood Hall, he proved the best jumper.

Still, it was probably better to take a chance with automotive commuting than to walk across the campus. It has proved difficult to cram for exams with both pedal extremities sunk in oozy mud up to the knee. Only mud can be seen for miles with the nude, or naked, eye.

Campus paths have, in the past year, been improved notably, but those who stray off the beaten paths to the Quadrangle, once they leave the city, are caught in the muck every day it rains—which is every day. It would hardly do, however, to suggest laying new concrete walks, because the maze of paths across the campus is now so complicated that even town boys spend the first year hunting the way home.

Please note that the discussion has centered upon transportation, whether normal or abnormal. Of the two types of transportation, automotive and pedestrian, the automotive is the safer. It is the opinion of some that pedestrians oftentimes step in front of speeding automobiles in a deliberate attempt to wreck them. Something should be done for the pedestrian.

A first aid station on every corner would help.

THANK YOU

In addition to the members of the staff whose Herculean efforts finally enabled this book to come out, there are a few other helpers whose assistance has been invaluable in the preparation of this volume. They are far too numerous to name, but a few have been outstanding.

We wish to thank Bill Gragg, Normabelle Helmen and Ruth Allison for the drawings which have been used throughout the book. Photographs came from many sources, many of them already forgotten, but those taken by Stan Valinet, John Fox, Jay Young, Bob Harrold, and Arvin Henderson were especially useful.

Thanks also to those who offered suggestions, whether used or not, and finally a large hearty portion of thanks to each and every subscriber.

A good clean topic of conversation in a mixed group on almost any occasion is rush. The tendency in the past has been to attempt toning it down to mayhem instead of murder. A young man or miss was taking his life in his own hands when he set out to make a choice of fraternities, unless he was adequately equipped with blackjacks, machine guns, or tear gas.

The fun of making rules is breaking them, so the lads who break them most met together to make more rules. Those who obey the rules get no rushees, and those who get no rushees make more rules. It's all a vicious circle, in which the rushee gets bitten in the end.

With Hitler, Stalin, and Mussolini showing what can be done with a few rules and a firing squad, there was no apparent reason why the Interfraternity Council this year should not pick up a few bridge-braces and start making boundaries for rush.

Of course, they had made rules before but they were about as effective as an authority as Einstein in Deutschland.

Nevertheless, the lads who were supposed to be "in the know" were fluffed off when they discovered that some of the frosh were getting themselves pledged at one fraternity long enough to eat their way around the menu cycle and then turn in the button in favor of a fraternity which laid out a better food basket, or until they discovered the beds were too hard. In this way, button-boys were moving from house to house, meeting all the boys and checking each house by elimination, as to (1) food, (2) beds (3) distance from campus, (4) rating with sororities, and (5) size of the house-bill.

The Council therefore slipped into long swastika underwear, made in Austria, and goose-stepped its way into a dictatorship. No pledge, it commanded, can be pledged to one fraternity after having broken a pledge with another, except with the Council's Okey-Doke. The group, in true Der Fuehrer style, fixed the penalty of violation as the entire loss of social privileges for the house pledging the perpetual button-boy.

It was an important step. As brought out above, the fun of rules lies in the breaking of them, or so it has appeared,—and the boys had lots of fun. No one's social privileges were taken away, and everyone got a secret kind of fiendish glee pretending they were breaking the law.

In spite of the Council's efforts to put rush week on an honest basis, it is still lots of fun.

There was a time in the dingy, dirty past when the local institution had more traditions than there were names on the check list. However in the last half a decade, the tish-tish boys have succeeded in cutting out everything but registration fees. Just to give the lads who are new in this business an idea of just what they are missing in life, here is a brief resume of cagey customs which have been sandbagged out of existence.

Way back in '27 there was a prolific pastime laughingly termed "Rhinies Over". The game was pulled off thusly: during one of the local pigskin-pushing festivals, the greenies would hie themselves to the home side of the concrete horseshoe and sit. At a signal "Rhinies Over", the lads would hop out across the turf and clamber into the other side where they would settle back and watch the afternoon's slaughter. However, in 1927, one callow cad carelessly kicked the head off a clover bloom and the brutal practice was finally brought to its just end.

Another behavior pattern (psych101) which has been jerked from the weary body is that of cap burning. The thing amounted to a footrace down Jordan ditch (the race was as crooked as the stream) which terminated in the yearlings flipping their green stetsons in the blaze after which time they would masticate any second year man who didn't have a ride out of town. But things did not go well, the spirit of youth surged high, and before the lads knew what had happened, the doors were off the local flick shops, all fruit stands cleaned slicker than a cooks' apron and lacerations and black eyes were as common as professional rushees. Hence another tradition sounded the death rattle.

There is one practice which will have to be given the royal slough off and that is the Phi Gam smoke-fest, held annually for all rhinies. For further details, see the nearest senior.

Not to be passed off with a good sized sneer was the Freshman Riot of some years ago. It went off like this: the Friday before the Homecoming game, the rhines (poor suckers) gathered at the Wellhouse after their lunch. As soon as the crowd became large enough, some bright soul with the mouth of a lion and the heart of a kippered herring would pay lip service with much small talk to incite homicide and mayhem into the minds of the not-overly-intelligent rhines. Having been instructed by upperclassmen who were just as lazy, the mob would storm into the various buildings and classrooms making sundry noises and demanding that the professors give up the bodies of their comrades. Most profs were only too glad to get an afternoon off. However, one day the worm did a front flip when one of the test tube and bunsen burner boys laid down a quantity of something or other which had the essence of a dead rat in a radiator. This incident called things to a halt and the greenies' spinal cords wilted like lettuce. Another tradition throttled in its cradle.

ARMY BRIEFS

Reasons for deserting the ranks of Indiana's R. O. T. C. for the French Foreign Legion:

In the first place, the commanders of the Legion aren't allowed to carry riding crops. There aren't any known cases of horse-whipping in I. U.'s battle ranks, but that dern whip always does make the privates nervous. And another thing: The Arabs like to shoot at soldiers, but they don't make dirty cracks at them every time they march by on Thursday afternoon.

Legion soldiers get to ride on camels and the cadets in R. O. T. C. don't have that privilege. (Military department take note: Give camel rides instead of medals; you'd be surprised . . .)

The French government doesn't care what color of socks the soldiers wear. In fact, the Frogs don't give a hang whether their soldiers wear any socks. It's a freer life!!

Ten select reasons for taking advanced military:

Long Shots

10-1 that the officers aren't such bad boys after all.

10000-1 that the band, some day, for some reason, will play more than one march for the review.

400-1 that half of the Pershing Rifles boys really do like the sport and don't do it just for Blue Key points.

1-10, that the bugler in the regular army plays more numbers than the I. U. band does on Thursday parades.

3-2 that the new colonel won't carry a riding crop, or if he does, that he will ride a horse.

WHY OUR ASYLUMS ARE FILLED WITH YEARBOOK EDITORS

The life of an Arbutus Editor is, beyond any doubt, the hardest life that the university has to offer. It combines all of the evils of the Daily Student, football, ping-pong, and W. A. A. hikes. There are always certain changes that this or that campus figure must have made in his picture; there are always the minor honoraries that want a Hearst write-up; and there are always a few dozen assorted details to attend to. Home towns that no one ever heard of crop up to be located and degrees must be written exactly as given, or the recipients will have tantrums. All of this adds up to make the life a merry one, on top of which, one needs must get letters like the following:

12/27/37

Mr. _____

Arbutus Editor,
Bloomington, Indiana

Dear Sir:-

I just received a letter from Mr. Roose, your Business Manager, stating that "every senior should have some record of his last year in school.

I saw the Arbutus of last year and the only criticism I had was that it did not give a record of the Seniors. So long as it is considered a Senior record, I think it should contain a short biography of every Senior and should mention the following:—

1. Date, place of birth, and parents with the school record of the parents.
2. Student's own school record with:
 - a. grades
 - b. high school marks
 - c. colleges attended
3. Their university record, including:
 - a. when entered in the university
 - b. whether or not they took a continuous course and whether or not they dropped out and returned to school later
 - c. what they did while in school
 - (1) scholastic
 - (2) occupational
 - (3) athletics
 - (4) affiliations
4. The courses taken and the reason for such preparation.

This last item might be useful later on for research work. The first item could be used for research work, too.

I am consulting my son as to whether or not he wants the Arbutus and will let you know by the first of January, as per your agreement."

Very Respectfully,

Doctor C. R. _____

Needless to say, the whole staff of the Arbutus, and especially the editor, appreciates this kind bit of suggestion on the part of Doctor C. R. Blank. We, the staff, hope that your son will take our small offering and be content with it, despite the fact that it does not contain the life history of every senior in school.

In addition to helpful bits such as this, there are always the fifty students per day who want to know when the book is coming out and is it coming out and why and is my picture in it?

THIS IS A LOUSY BOOK, BUT —

It is the best we could do. We apologize for the lack of certain pictures which would have added greatly to the interest of the book. We are sorry that financial restrictions made it impossible to carry any elaborate art work.

We are deeply grieved to find out names that have been misspelled, pictures that have been omitted. We regret that glaring grammatical inaccuracies are present in almost every word of our copy. Our knowledge of poetry is far too small to enable us to quote a catchy line from Keats or Byron alongside the picture of each senior. That would have been nice, though, wouldn't it?

We have no senior class will. Joe Schultz cannot leave his popularity and his curly hair to Geoffrey Thockmorton, nor can Yvonne Slurp bequeath her captivating charms to one of her less fortunate fellow students. Neither do we have a class prophecy. What fun it would be to visualize "Ross Smiley selling peanuts at the corner of 7th and Walnut" or Kate Henns, "Happily married to Spud Hamm."

We name no senior as the most likely to succeed. We make no prognostications as to who will be betrothed to whom. We do not publish nominations for the best-dressed, worst dressed, or most disliked male student. In short, we have fallen far short of typical yearbook standards.

We fervently hope that none of our subscribers will fall into the ways of sin because we failed to provide a sermon now and then, as is done in most college yearbooks. We apologize for the lack of the farewell note to the seniors that almost invariably occupies the last page of an annual. In short, we are sorry that we have not given you an annual that is like other annuals.

Maybe you will want to try the Arbutus again next year, or maybe you will enroll in Purdue and subscribe to the Debris. Don't you wish you had your money back?

I'm sorry, but I'm dated up until the Prom . . . Post-tubbing scene . . . Music School mob in an off moment . . . Wonder how the Delts were inspired to a scene like this for Homecoming . . . Perplexity . . . It was a knockout . . . It must be a free show (or mighty smutty) . . . Three fine mice (or are they men?) . . . Keep it moving, boys . . . Did you come to see the game, or???? . . . Fausch in action . . . My Hero . . . An unposed shot . . . A neat little package and Professor Robinson.

What's this—a baptism? . . . We haven't forgotten how to play . . .
 Ouch! . . . The battle is on! . . . Passed out? Nope, just a tubbing . . .
 Bob Collier hits his stride . . . Another tubbing; any cleaning or pressing . . .
 Who said a bandsman had a hard life? . . . No! Don't hit him! . . . Line forms on the left; hope I can find a friend.

By tearing out this page along the dashed line at the left, folding along the dotted lines in the proper order, and tucking in the loose corners, you can make a very serviceable paper cup. It will be useful on motoring trips and about the home, especially at night when it is hard to find a glass.
